Retailers report a 'decent' holiday season

The Taffy Barrel, pictured above, was one of a number of downtown businesses that reported fair numbers for the 2007 Christmas shopping season. Many contributed awareness of local shopping as a savior because of dwindling tourist numbers during the winter months.

Not too good, not too bad.

That was the general consensus among Charlevoix downtown businesses last week following what proved to be a slower Christmas season than previous years.

"We were steady but we were never really busy. We certainly weren't overwhelmed," said Linda Amstutz, employee at The Rocking Horse.

While concerns about toy dangers — the lead-poisoning scare among China-made toys likely didn't help the downtown toy store, Amstutz suggested — may have contributed to the sluggish season, the store was not alone in its lack-luster sales. Others, such as Momentum clothing store, The Clothing Company, Charlevoix Wear and C2 Gallery, noted slower seasons than last year, but, thankfully, not as slow as could have been.

"Considering the East Park (construction) project and the economy in Michigan, we really did all right," said Kirby Dipert, owner of Charlevoix Wear. "It was a good year, but it wasn't record setting."

Dipert's wife, Jacq Dipert, owner of The Clothing Company next door to Charlevoix Wear, noted business picked up as shopping time dwindled, and she saw more shoppers on Christmas Eve than in years past. Both businesses expect to fair well overall for the year, the Diperts said, thanks to strong fall sales.

"This was our strongest November ever, so I think overall we'll even out with last year," Jacq Dipert said.

Some stores, such as the Taffy Barrel, had little to compare to when considering 2007 Christmas numbers. Rich Root, CO-owner of the specialty candy store noted he and his wife survived their first Christmas in business, having opened in April 2007, and the couple was "pleased overall" with their sales.

"One thing that really helped us was having our website up," Root said.

Brandy Okerblom, manager of Up North Kids, a book store and more, said the store was a little sluggish in its second Christmas season, and emphasized the community needs to pull together during tough times to keep assets like attractive downtown businesses alive.

"That is what these stores are all about. We support the community during tough times, and the community supports us," she said.

Getting customers in to "see what we offer" seems to boost sales over time, Okerblom said, and she hopes Up North Kids will be seen as a community supporter that local shoppers will enjoy.

"If you want to support your community, now is the time," she said.

Other stores noted appreciation for local shopping was essential this Christmas season. Patrice Sinclair, manager of J. Phillips, said the season was very positive and went very well, thanks to Judge orders restitution

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Karla Sue Lockman, the Boyne City woman who embezzled at least $890,278.28 from Northern Preferred Ink of Charlevoix, has been ordered to pay close to half of the amount she took from the business.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema said $[illegible]204 [illegible] had already been recovered through the sale of Lockman's ill-gotten assets, leaving a total of $450,074.04 that she owes.

"The judge set the amount of restitution that was proven at trial," Jarema said. "I felt that that number was appropriate based on those numbers I showed at trial coming from the escrow account and going into her (Lockman's) Bay Winds personal checking account."

John Taylor, Chief Financial Officer for Northern Preferred and 1 of the nearly 30 victims still owed money, said the Judge's order is far from a win.

"I see it as closure," he said. "It hasn't been fun. What she (Lockman) did put me back to entry level position earning one-third of what I was earning."

Taylor, who has been in the business for 25 years and worked at Northern Preferred for nearly a decade, said his biggest gripe with the receiver's report is the court appointed receiver Bob Hoffman CPA did not speak with Northern Preferred's former employees or Taylor before setting the restitution amounts laid out in his report, and therefore may not have had enough information to submit an accurate report to the court.

A story in last week's Courier regarding the Downtown Development Authority seeking funding for the Interactive Water Fountain and trout ecosystem in East Park misstated amounts needed for the projects. The water fountain project is estimated at $380,000, and the DDA will contribute $200,000. The citizens' group raising funds are seeking $100,000 and the city will contribute $80,000.

Christmas sales steady, not overwhelming local shoppers.

"This year was better than last year for us. There was more local shopping and that always helps," she said.

June Cross, who owns John Cross Fisheries with her husband, John, said local shoppers were more reliable this season due to the lack of out-of area travelers.

"We did good this year but were down from last year. We just didn't have the travelers we usually do," she said, adding "with the economy the way it is, we really fared well."

Barb Bassett, manager of American Spoon Foods, noted a boost of business during those last days before Christmas, especially Christmas Eve, but said things overall were a little slower than last year. However it was "still a nice holiday season."

Shoppers' cravings for goodies didn't slow with the economy, and area fudge and goodie shops fared well. Jennifer Dean, a cook at Murdick's Fudge, said the shop was "very busy" throughout the season, mostly with mail orders, which is typical during the holiday season.

"Christmas is our busy mail order time. We ship everywhere from Maine to Alaska," she said.

Like others downtown, Murdick's Fudge saw a lot of visitors on Christmas Eve, with those last-minute shoppers indulging in the sweets. Across the street, Kilwin's also did well, noting only a slight slow down from last year.

The desire for walking shoes was slightly stronger this year than last, Carey's Shoes employees Shawn Trudeau and Christi Roman said, thanks largely to the snow. The Christmas sales season was "decent," the two said, noting Ugg Boots and Mammoth Crocks as "big sellers" for the season.

Michigan retailers are prepared for what should be the busiest shopping weekend of the year Saturday and Sunday before Christmas.

According to the Michigan Retailers Association, the weekend before Christmas is traditionally the biggest sales weekend of the year. Experts expected that to be true this year as well, despite the struggling economy, and responses from local businesses suggest that may be true.

The Association said earlier this month "a big weekend" right before Christmas could help retailers come closer to their projections for the season. Retailers went into the season projecting, on average, a 2.2 percent increase in sales over last year's holiday shopping season, according to the Michigan Retail Index survey conducted by MRA and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Based on the Association's examination of the credit and debit card sales it processes for thousands of Michigan stores, the Association estimates holiday sales were up less than 1 percent through last weekend.

Final counts for the shopping season are expected to be released by Jan. 10.

Meanwhile, the November Index survey showed that 42 percent of Michigan retailers increased sales over the same month last year, while 44 percent recorded declines and 13 percent saw no change. The results create a seasonally adjusted performance index of 48.1, down from 52.0 in October.

Thirty-seven percent believe their sales will increase for December–February over the same period last year, while 39 percent say sales will decline and 23 percent expect no change. The results create a seasonally adjusted outlook index of 56.0, down from 65.0 in October.

New year, new plan for Gohs' resolutions

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

In light of how far off I was on last year's New Year's predictions—I didn't lose weight, the county clerk didn't stop smoking, not only did city councilwoman Shirley Gibson and former city manager Mike Wiesner not make up, but Gibson decided not to run and Weisner was canned—I've sworn off prognostication for awhile.

With that in mind, I called my psychic advisor Magick Tammi (for those of you keeping score, I misspelled her name last time). She told me the next few years will be of significant growth for me at work. Whether that means my pile of hate mail will get higher or the number of mind-numbing governmental meetings I will attend is expected to increase, I am not sure.

She did say one thing which made me say, as my father used to say "I kid you not" (well, he didn't say kid, he said another word, but you get the point), she said, "there is something to do with a vehicle. Is it the brakes you've been concerned about?"

Now, truth be told I am not much of a believer in things supernatural, but knowing that the day before I called Tammi I had set an appointment with my mechanic to inspect my brakes—call the Muffler Shoppe of Charlevoix if you don't believe me—gave me a bit of a dizzy spell and made me stutter.

How she expects me to reconcile what she told me with the certainty that I already know everything and psychics are all frauds is beyond me.

That being said, let's get down to the nitty-gritty of this week's Crying Towel: The year at hand and how bad of a start it had.

They say March comes in like a lamb goes out like a lion, the lesser well known saying that December goes out with confetti and spirits and January comes in like the winner of a prune stew eating contest infected with a strain of steroid-fortified stomach flu.

No doubt many of you are still nursing yourselves back to health after trying to see how far you could push your collective endocrine systems during the holidays.

Granted, the last thing going through your mind at 3 a.m. on New Year's Eve was how you would feel the next morning or the one after that, but when those handfuls of Chex mix, two cheeseburgers, a quart of imitation Champagne and that last martini turned your stomach into host of the hobo Olympics by digging their metaphoric heels into your pancreas and tugging on fistfuls of esophagus in an attempt to do a Triple Lindy off the diving board of your tongue, you knew you had gone too far.

No doubt by the time you read this I will be back at work, under my desk and checking my pulse for irregularities.

Oh, when we were young we could down great gallons of beer and pints of vodka, but these days a six pack and a few glasses of buttershots and we need three days to recover.

And to make things worse, while Satan is playing the drum solo to "Wipeout" off both hemispheres of your brain, you get to think about all those things you did under the influence of Jell-O shots, Jager Bombs and some concoction your buddy swears he invented but tastes suspiciously like sweat socks and gin.

If you're anything like me, and kudos if you're not, you probably told someone you don't like how much you love them and you told at least one person you do like how much you hate them.

Someone wearing a kilt may or may not have burned his underwear while screaming indiscriminate epithets to, what is my best guess, someone who only he could see.

You probably scored poorly in a fight against what you hope was an inanimate object: It could have been a trash can, it could have been a popcorn machine and hopefully it wasn't a homeless person or someone's dog.

Someone may even have told the mayor that you are a borderline Adonis, but it's not important who said what and when and to whom because that person will never admit to having said it even if there were, say, three or four witnesses.

You enlightened individuals are all welcome to get going on bettering yourselves through exercise, diets and smoking cessation programs this 2008, but the rest of us are doing all we can to hold on for dear life.

Now, if you'll excuse me, I'm going to try downing some chicken broth and saltines and hope for the best.

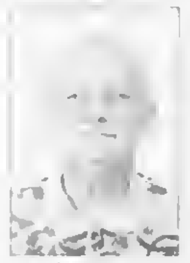
Numbers and us: How significant are numerals?



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Numerical measurement can be understood as a gift of science. Instruments for ever-more precise measurement are being developed constantly. Like any other part of the scientific effort, the use of numbers carries its own potential problems. Just as the knowledge developed by scientific endeavor can be used for good or ill, so can the idea of precise measurement. If science provides us with a measurement, we are likely to give it importance; maybe more importance than it deserves. Assigning a number to something often suggests a precision that may be unrealistic.

This contemplation of the import of numerical description was prompted by Malcolm Gladwell's review of a new book about I.Q. and intelligence. Let me admit a bias. I believe that Malcolm Gladwell is the best literary interpreter of the meaning of science currently alive. In his book, "The Tipping Point," he reminded us that small changes can have large consequences. And in a later book, "Blink," he clarified science's current understanding of how quickly our brains interpret the world around us.

We are surrounded by numbers and are constantly told that we should know them and use them. A two-point change in a politician's score in a poll can make him or her into either a viable candidate or an also-ran. A Body Mass Index above 25 tells us we are obese and need to do something about it. A cholesterol reading above 200 is given as reason for concern or possible medication. A credit score that is higher is better, and below a certain point such a score may be reason for denying a loan. Blood pressure numbers are a part of life, and high PSA scores can be reason for prostate surgery. An I.Q. score below 70 can put a child into the category of "retarded," and alter that child's possibility of appropriate education for a lifetime.

Virtually all measurement numbers arrive with some margin of error, or we might say, with some degree of uncertainty. Any number of "normal" or "average" should probably never be given without including how uncertain it is. What is "normal" now is almost never what "normal" was a decade ago. I.Q. tests have been repeatedly "reformed" in order to keep an average I.Q. at 100. People aren't that different in intelligence over time, but tests have been made more difficult and "reformed" to keep the average score at 100.

Just how much attention we should be paying to those specific numbers turns out to be a complex question. According to Mr. Gladwell an I.Q. score that would qualify as "normal" now would have produced a score in the "retarded" category 50 years ago, if we correct for changes in the tests taken and for the mysterious increases in I.Q. that seem to have no obvious reason. A two, three or even four point change in a poll percentage often has no meaning, since if you read the fine print poll scores commonly have a margin of error that may be as much as four points. A media-reported change in a politician's popularity may not be a change at all, but only a reflection of the margin of error or uncertainty found in any poll.

Next time someone cites a measurement number as a reason for some action, whether it be medical treatment, classroom placement or your vote, find out what the number actually means and what the uncertainty about it is. Better decisions will almost certainly follow. As Mark Twain once said, "Figures don't lie, but liars do figure."

Bridge tolls boosted

At a special meeting held in Detroit Dec. 21, the Mackinac Bridge Authority (MBA) board decided to adjust tolls incrementally. The decision was based on testimony from public hearings held in three communities in early December.

The following toll rates (per crossing) will go into effect Saturday, March 1, 2008.

-Auto/passenger vehicle - $3; vehicles with trailer $1.50 per axle

-Commuter - $1.60

-Motor home - $3.50 per axle

-Truck - $3.50 per axle

Additionally, the commuter toll will increase 10 cents per year beginning in 2009 through 2014. The passenger vehicle toll will increase to $3.50 in 2010, $4 in 2012, and $4.50 in 2014. A passenger vehicle with trailer will be $1.75 per axle in 2010, $2 in 2012, and $2.25 in 2014. The motor home toll and truck toll will each increase to $4.50 per axle in 2010, $5 in 2012, and $6 in 2014.

"We believe this is the best plan possible - balancing the need to continue maintaining the bridge with what we heard from the testimony at the hearings," said William H. Gnodtke, MBA board chairman. "The new plan is actually a combination of the two proposals developed from the public testimony we received."

The MBA board unanimously approved the decision after more than an hour of dialogue and review of the public testimony. In 2013, the board will review financial forecast data to determine future action such as a toll increase shown in 2014, modification of tolls, and/or bonding. Toll increases in 2009 and beyond will take effect on January 1 of the appropriate year.

The toll rates at the Mackinac Bridge were last adjusted in 2003. The 50-year old bridge is maintained and operated exclusively with toll revenue.

Rate changes effective March 1, 2008

-Auto/passenger vehicle - $3, vehicles with trailer $1.50 per axle

-Commuter - $1.60

-Motor home - $3.50 per axle

-Truck - $3.50 per axle

Also commuter tolls will increase 10 cents per year through 2014

Everyone in Antrim, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, or Emmett County, Michigan, who knows who Benazir Bhutto was, holler.

Everyone who couldn't answer that question, then identify where Pakistan is, and holler.

Everyone who didn't answer either question, holler.

The probable overwhelming silence is deafening.

One faltering-light possibility of democracy in Pakistan and perhaps one which could then have spread to the rest of the Mid East has been doused by an assassination that should never have happened to a peace-loving woman.

Why should we respond?

We are no longer an agricultural, tourist directed, who-cares-about-what-happens-in-those-places-in-the-world-where-nothing-affects-us people. What happens in Pakistan, in Somalia, in Darfur, in Dubai, happens to us. We must stop being ostriches with our heads in the sand and the resulting test of our bodies abundantly exposing our true natures.

We are a necessary part of the whole world.

Our involvement in our world is a must.

How do we start?

Do you know where?

Concerned in Bellaire,
Patricia W. Fox

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Hospital staff fulfills hundreds of Christmas wishes

The hardest part about donating gifts to a little boy Diane Lewis chose from the Giving Tree wasn't finding what he wanted; it was trying not to go overboard with lots of other presents, too.

With a three-year-old grandson herself, Lewis, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Information Technology and Call Center Manager, was one of nearly 100 hospital staff who made Christmas wishes come true for dozens of northern Michigan families in need.

"Some of them had very few things on their list and you just wanted to get more for them. I threw in a few more trucks, too," said Lewis. "It is the season."

Lewis, along with Donna Gengle, the Hospital's Information Technology Applications Manager, coordinated the gift drive to benefit Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan and its Paper Angels program.

Over the last several weeks, Hospital staff looked over the wishes of area children and families written on paper ornaments hung on the Giving Tree in the Hospital lobby. The lists requested everything from toys to household supplies and food items, and each ornament included the age and gender of the requestor. Staff purchased the items on their chosen list, and the goods were given to Child and Family Services for distribution.

"We ended up sending out of here seven carloads of gifts," said Lewis. "I could not believe it. I was just astounded at the generosity of the organization, of the people that work here. It was very heartwarming to see the outpouring of love."

Along with two families helped through the Women's Resource Center, in total hospital staff fulfilled the wishes of at least 90 area residents, who each received a minimum of three gifts.

Gina Aranki, marketing director of Child and Family Services, said the hospital staff deserves recognition for its generosity this holiday season to hundreds of foster families and kids, children victimized by sexual abuse, and others in need.

"It is a program that we created to assure that the children and families in our care receive holiday gifts," Aranki said. "Every gift is a big gift and we appreciate what the Hospital has done."

Benefit fund established

Lacey Richardson of Charlevoix has been faced with medical problems, and friends and family have established a fund raising effort to help afford a trip to Mayo Clinich in Rochester, Minn. in hopes of initiating recovery.

Richardson, 32, is faced with an undiagnosed physical condition that has left her unable to work or live comfortably, riddled with pain, bruises and seizures, family members said. A benefit fund has been set up at Charlevoix State Bank to assist with payment of a trip to the Mayo Clinic, planned for Jan. 9. Family and friends said anyone willing and able to help can make a donation in Richardson's name, and they thank any one who has or will help.

Use caution while keeping warm this winter

Some northwest Michigan residents are using dangerous methods to winterize their homes this year. During the cold months – December, January and February there is a sharp increase in home accidents involving fires and carbon monoxide poisoning. The Michigan Propane Gas Association (MPGA) is taking proactive measures in helping homeowners with energy efficiency.

"No one is talking to northwest Michigan homeowners about what not to do when it comes to energy efficiency," said MPGA President Wayne Kohley "As a result, they are putting themselves and their families at great risk"

Avoiding some basic safety pitfalls will ensure safe, warm homes for everyone," he addded

Dangerous Winterization Methods:

- Surrounding the foundation of a home with hay bales this is a major fire hazard;
- Using thicker versions of visqueen to cover windows this prevents windows from being used as an emergency exit (thinner plastic window kits are available);
- Wadding and stuffing paper into the sliding tracks of windows this is another major fire hazard;
- Using kerosene heaters indoors and near flammable objects – this could start a fire, cause burns, pollute the air, or cause asphyxiation. Using kerosene heaters indoors is actually illegal in Michigan

"The rural poor are frequently overlooked on energy use issues," Kohley said "They are more at risk because of their geographic isolation The MPGA stands behind LIHEAP, ready to assist these families and ensure they don't get left out in the cold."

Families who are at risk of having their power shut off may be eligible to receive government assistance One of these options is the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Protection (LIHEAP) program, which is federal money given to each state to assist families who may not be able to pay their heating bills The Department of Health and Human Services recently announced the release of $131 Million in LIHEAPL emergency funds to directly help rural families with energy assistance

The MPGA encourages low-income families to apply for the Federal Home Heating Tax Credit through the Michigan Department of Treasury by calling 1-800-827-4000 or by visiting www.michigan.gov/treasury. DHS is the designated agency responsible for leading LIHEAP. Contact www.mighican.gov/heatingassistance for more information.

The MPGA website, www.UseMichiganPropane.com., also contains these helpful suggestions.

Homeowners typically use these dangerous methods to trap warm air inside and block cold air from entering their homes. However, there are many free and low-cost methods to safely lock in heat.

Embezzlement victims to get at least some money

victim statements of restitution owed, he never contacted me," Taylor said. "He never looked at the books of Northern Preferred Title, he never looked at the accounts Karla embezzled from."

He added, "My biggest issue is the way the funds are being distributed."

Hoffman did not return calls by press time.

Taylor said 25 to 50 percent of his former employees are owed more than the blanket $2,000 amount which is set to be allocated to each employee regardless of their years of service or vacation and sick time owed them.

Taylor also said he does not hold much malice toward Lockman, but more on the corporate culture which may have had a hand in allowing her to do the things she did.

And, though she asked not to attend, Lockman was in court during the two-plus-hour proceedings held Friday, Dec 21 at Jarema's behest.

"I writted [sic] (writ of habeas corpus) her up for two main reasons: Number one, it's a criminal case, this affects her and she has a right to hear what is going on; number two I wanted her to sit and listen to the devastation she caused all the people in the county," Jarema said. "She didn't say boo."

While he could not pinpoint the day victims will have their respective checks-in-hand, Jarema said he hopes it will be by the first quarter of 2008.

"I have to submit an order detailing the Judge's numbers to all the attorneys that were there (in court) and they have to sign off on it," Jarema said. "They can't object to the amount or the numbers the judge set, but they do have to look at the language of the order to see if that is what the judge said."

However, Jarema added, the attorneys representing the various victims will have the option to appeal the Judge's decision.

The best case scenario, according to Jarema, is that the judge will receive all the required signatures allowing restitution to be disbursed

"I would like to get those checks cut from the receiver to the victims as soon as possible because they've been waiting a long time," he said "I feel good about it. I feel good that the judge has ordered restitution that is fair to the victims, but I'm just concerned the victims have had to wait this long to get what they're due."

In the days following the hearing, Lockman's attorney, Fred L. Gibson, said he had no objections to the receiver's report and said he has no intention to appeal the judge's decision.

"Other than to wrap up the entry of the order, my obligation is complete, I should say it was a self-imposed obligation because I promised Karla I would follow this through to the end regardless of the fact that I wasn't getting paid," Gibson said. "There are no further court dates set on this matter If she (Lockman) were to file an appeal, the court would appoint an appellate attorney."

> "This is not even close to dollar for dollar that I lost."
> John Taylor
> CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER OF NORTHERN PREFERRED TITLE

Lockman will have 42 days from the date the judge finalizes his order to appeal the decision.

The remaining $459,000-plus that Lockman owes is not dischargeable in bankruptcy and will likely follow her the rest of her life.

"A civil money judgment must be renewed every 10 years, but a criminal order for restitution exists forever," Gibson said. "A victim, in this case Northern Preferred Title Company, can hunt her (Lockman) down forever, can put a lien on any real property she has in her name, can garnish wages if employed"

Taylor said even with the nearly $40,000 he hopes to receive in restitution he will still be in the hole.

"This is not even close to dollar for dollar that I lost," he said "I got nothing for my time and effort in settling this matter over the last two years."

Barring an unforeseen change in her conviction or a win in Michigan appeals court, Lockman's 5- to 10-year prison stretch gives her an earliest release date of Sept. 20, 2011 with a maximum release date of Sept 20, 2016.

A jury found Lockman, currently residing in the Huron Valley Women's Complex in Washtenaw County, guilty of 2 counts of embezzlement by an agent or trustee of $20,000 or more from Northern Preferred from Jan. 31 to May 17, 2005.

Lockman has an appeal pertaining to her sentencing in process with the Michigan Court of Appeals which is being handled by a court appointed attorney other than Gibson.

When asked if he will ever reopen Northern Preferred Title Company in Charlevoix, Taylor said, "The plans are in the works but announcement of yes or no is still pending I've got to test the waters first to see if it is a viable option."

He added, "I'm a very optimistic guy and I'm holding on to my optimism as best I can. My wife and kids, and friends have gotten me through, and the community has really been supportive."

Lady Rayders remain undefeated with two more conference wins

BY ALLEN TELGENHOF
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Charlevoix Lady Rayders continued their unbeaten ways, racking up two more Lake Michigan Conference wins, defeating Traverse City St. Francis, 59-48 and Kalkaska, 56-35.

"The girls are really coming together," coach Bret Erskine said. "They are in great shape and it is showing in their play. Many of them played a lot of soccer this fall and that has helped."

Against St. Francis, the Rayders trailed by six at halftime but Erskine went to "Double Trouble," as the girls have dubbed K.C. McCary and Meredeth Rich in the press defense and the two of them, combined with Becca Madison, Alyssa Smith and Desi Faust, picked up the defensive pressure and erased the Gladiator lead.

"We switched it up a bit and those five got us back in the game," Erskine said.

McCary led Charlevoix statistically with 18 points and 7 rebounds.

The Rayders used a balanced attack for a more characteristic blowout win over the Blazers.

Rich led three Charlevoix players in double-figures with 11 while Murphy Gillespie and Brooke Whitaker scored 10.

McCary scored nine and Tammy Potter tallied eight. Potter and McCary each grabbed seven rebounds.

"With it being a big game for us, we went with a more senior-oriented lineup to get our more experienced players in," Erskine commented. "They did a great job and everyone off the bench contributed as well. It has been great that players off the bench come in and contribute right away. They are really doing a great job."

The Rayders (7-0 overall, 5-0 conference) have two tough games immediately after Christmas break, playing at undefeated Petoskey Thursday, Jan. 3 and the next day playing at Boyne City who is tied with Charlevoix for the Lake Michigan Conference lead.

MHSAA: Girls' cross country benefits from fall season changes

Participation in girls high school cross country in the state of Michigan increased 15.18 percent during the 2007 season compared to 2006, and it appears to be the major beneficiary of sports seasons changes being implemented this school year as a result of federal court action. The increase in girls cross country 1,054 participants more than offsets the losses in girls volleyball and girls golf at Michigan High School Athletic Association member senior high schools.

All three sports whose seasons were changed to the fall experienced drops in participation. Girls volleyball was down 3.08 percent (658 participants), girls Lower Peninsula golf down 8.97 percent (291 participants), and boys Lower Peninsula tennis was down 11.43 percent (93 participants). The MHSAA routinely collects participation data from member schools to report to the National Federation of State High School Associations.

The fourth fall sport for girls, Lower Peninsula swimming and diving, increased 0.94 percent (60 participants) versus last school year.

Among the other fall boys sports, football participation was up 2.45 percent (1,109 participants), boys cross country was up 5.05 percent (403 participants), and boys Lower Peninsula soccer increased 2.32 percent (338 participants). Overall participation for the fall for boys and girls was up 0.89 percent (1,015) over last year.

These results are based reports from all 766 MHSAA member senior high schools, comparing actual figures at the same schools between the current school year and the 2006-07 school year.

The school's responses to the MHSAA also included this information:

- 61 fewer schools made cuts in their girls volleyball programs
- 21 schools dropped freshman girls volleyball; and no programs were added
- 4 schools added junior varsity girls volleyball; and none dropped the program
- 5 fewer schools made cuts in their girls Lower Peninsula golf programs
- 22 fewer schools made cuts in their boys Lower Peninsula tennis programs.

This information indicates that not only is participation down in these sports this year, but the number of students trying out for these teams in these sports is down as well.

The MHSAA is a private, not-for-profit corporation of voluntary membership by over 1,800 public and private senior high schools and junior high/middle schools which exists to develop common rules for athletic eligibility and competition. No government funds or tax dollars support the MHSAA, which was the first such association nationally to not accept membership dues or tournament entry fees from schools. Member schools which enforce these rules are permitted to participate in MHSAA tournaments, which attract approximately 1.6 million spectators each year.

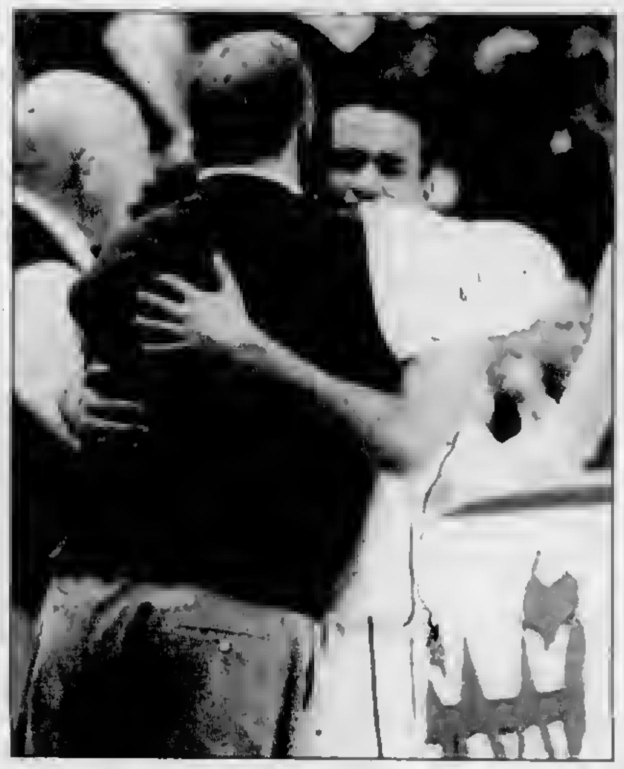
Youth hunt

Hunters ages 10 to 16 participated in a statewide special youth hunt Sept. 22-23. A property licensed youth was allowed to take one deer during this two-day hunt. This was the eighth year for the youth-only hunt in Michigan. Pictured (top) is Cameron Canupp, the 14-year-old son of Denny and Jeanne Way, who shot this six-point buck at 6:50 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 22. Also pictured is Charlie Blacker and Austin Themm of Charlevoix with the black bear shot during a dog run on Sept. 22 near Petoskey. The bear weighed 400 pounds and stretched over six feet in length.



Father, son team farewell

The Charlevoix High School Rayder basketball team ended its successful season on March 22, losing 67-54 to Saginaw Nouvel Catholic Central in the Class C semifinals at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University. (Left) Ty Haske, playing in his last game as a Rayder under the direction of his father, head coach Keith Haske, scored seven points and played relentless defense. The two shared a hug following the loss.

Alina Dhaseleer, a Charlevoix High School girls' cross country team member, wades through the mud hole at Charlevoix High School during the annual Mud Run Sept. 8. Dhaseleer was fifth in the 11-12 race.

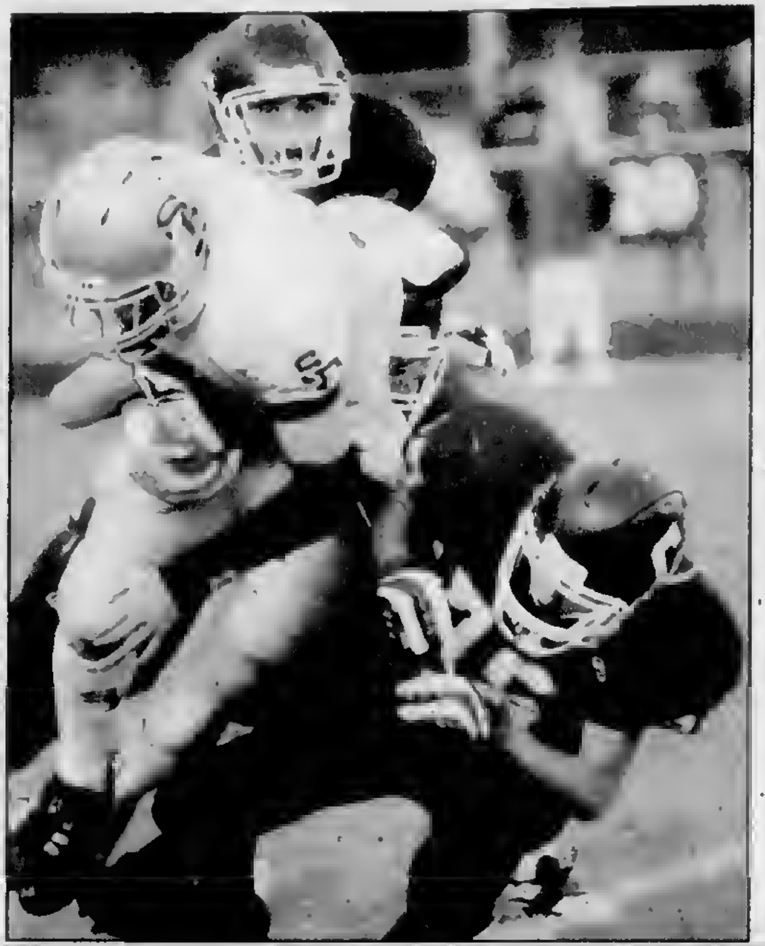
MORE SPORTS ACTION FROM 2007

Charlevoix's Scott Plude clears a hurdle en route to finishing second in the 110-meter hurdles at Kipke Field. Plude won the 300 hurdles as the Charlevoix boys won the April 23 four-team Lake Michigan Conference meet. Charlevoix also won the girls' portion of the meet.



Rayder football lost 28-15 to Traverse City St. Francis on Sept. 7. (Left) Charlevoix's defense knocks St. Francis running back Dan Brick off his feet after a short gain in the first half. Unfortunately explosive plays like these weren't enough to pull out the win.

Charlevoix pitcher Cliff Jones burns one in during the second inning of the Charlevoix Invitational opener when the Rayders faced Boyne Falls in April (photo from April 25). They beat Boyne Falls 14-0 and went on to beat Gaylord 8-7 for the tournament win.

Tips for heating safety

• Insulate hot water pipes and ducts wherever they run through unheated areas.

• Change your furnace filters monthly. Cleaner filters are more efficient.

• Seal up the largest air leaks in your home – the ones that whistle or feel drafty on windy days. The worst culprits are usually not windows and doors, but utility cut-through for pipes (plumbing penetrations), gaps around chimneys, recessed lights in insulated ceilings, and unfinished spaces behind cupboards and closets. All of the little invisible cracks and holes may add up to as much as an open window or door.

• Buy a furnace thermostat timer to lower your home's temperature at night or when you're not home. This can save up to 10 percent heating costs per year.

• Fill your propane tank before it is empty – this saves on out-of-gas pressure test costs.

Low Income Energy Assistance

Those who don't plan accordingly must not only deal with the safety hazards listed above, but skyrocketing winter heating bills as well. Low-income families often don't have money set aside to pay these higher bills and then face the possibility of having their power shut off when they need it most.

East Park project brings change to summer festivals

COVERAGE BY JULIE WITTHEOFT AND STEPHANIE CARANO
JAN. 31 AND AUG. 1

In January, the Courier reported local festival planners would not have their number one pick of event venues — East Park — for 2007 summer events, but they would have "a prime downtown location."

The East Park renovation project extended through the 2007 tourist season leaving festival planners who have typically called the park home, homeless. As event planners strategize hosting their summer attractions in two downtown parking lots, coordinators of Charlevoix's main event — the $250,000 Venetian Festival — began exploring their resources to keep the bulk of the week-long festival in downtown Charlevoix.

The 77th Annual Venetian Festival took place July 22-28. In the past, main events like Kids' Day, the Rhythms of Venetian concert series and the stadium fireworks display have been centered around East Park.

With the park under heavy construction this summer, Dan Barron, president of Charlevoix Venetian Festival Inc., said his group's focus is on keeping the festival downtown.

Despite some concern, good planning from committed planners brought success to the 77th annual festival, with coverage running in the Courier Aug. 1.

"Overall, it may have been the most phenomenal Venetian to date," Barron said. "We are most pleased at how smoothly things went at Lake Michigan Beach and how gorgeous a setting it provided."

Road Commission decision stirs distaste

COVERAGE BY BENJAMIN GOHS, ERICA GOFF AND PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
NOV. 21 WITH ONGOING COVERAGE

Following in the footsteps of many other cash-strapped road commissions around the area, the Charlevoix County Road Commission decided in November it will not be plowing or salting/sanding secondary or "local" roads on weekends or holidays this winter.

Commissioners voiced their support to the plan in November as proposed by manager Pat Harmon. The policy is a change from last year when crews would be called in to plow "local" roads if more than six inches of snow fell.

A strong outcry from county residents followed, including an official statement of opposition from the Charlevoix City Council, who noted public safety and economic interests as reasons to reverse the decision.

Crumbling and snow-covered roads will worsen before they get better, Harmon recently stated, adding while he sympathizes with people having problems, there is little he can do.

"If we can figure out a way to pay for this, I'm not opposed to providing that service (weekend road maintenance)," Harmon said. "I'd be more than happy to make sure it gets done, but we've got to be able to find a happy medium ..."

The problem comes, Harmon said, when weekend snow removal could cost around $100,000 that he simply doesn't have to spend.

Charlevoix named Community of the Year

COVERAGE BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
SEPT. 26

Out of the five communities that participated in the Michigan Economic Development Corporation's Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns program, Charlevoix was selected as the 2007 Community of the Year.

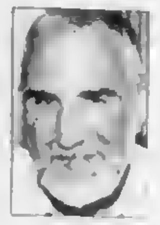
Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Director Keith Carey attended the Michigan Downtowns Conference in Traverse City in mid September and accepted the Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns Community of the Year award on behalf of Charlevoix.

"This award recognizes what we are on the cusp of doing. We are geared up to be the community of the future. What we've done thus far indicates to them (Michigan Economic Development Corporation) that our future shows nothing but promise," Carey said of the award. "This is the community's award. The community has demonstrated its commitment to this project from the very beginning. Residents have said, 'We've got a great little town, we like to live here and we can make it even better.'"

Charlevoix beat out the likes of Petoskey, Muskegon Heights, Oscoda and Tecumseh to take home the honor.

Charlevoix says goodbye to long-time manager

COVERAGE BY JULIE WITTHEOFT
JAN. 10



Mike Wiesner

Fireworks exploded at Charlevoix City Council's first meeting of 2007.

In a 4-2 vote, on Jan. 2 city council voted to initiate dismissal proceedings and to suspend current city manager, Mike Wiesner, who has held that post for 22 years.

Grounds for Wiesner's dismissal as stated by Timms are, "Failure to properly supervise the city treasurer regarding the issuance of a check to CCMS in the amount of $222,978; failure to properly supervise the city wastewater treatment plant regarding the falsifying of records by wastewater treatment plant personnel, failure to provide in a timely manner the city council with information that will be considered at a city council meeting, and failure to provide monthly reports regarding the operation of city departments. ."

Council's suspension of Wiesner, which stemmed from a motion by Gennett, was approved with pay for not more than 15 days.

Wiesnet was given the option of filing a request for a public hearing with Ochs by Friday, Jan 12. Weisner did not appeal, and vacated the position.

New City Manager

COVERAGE BY STEFANIE CARANO
JULY 4

Rob Straebel

The Charlevoix City Council decided unanimously June 28 to offer the position of city manager to Robert Straebel.

Straebel came to Charlevoix from the Village of Taos Ski Valley, N.M., where he served as village manager. His connections to Michigan include having family in the area and having graduated from Ferris State University.

Council offered Straebel a three-year contract.

Straebel was one of two finalists in the search for a replacement for former city manager Mike Wiesner, who the council terminated in January. Todd Campbell was defeated in the race for the position.

Murder mystery

COVERAGE BY BENJAMIN GOHS
SEPT. 5 WITH UPDATES THROUGH OCT. 24

A murder mystery in Eveline Township reads like a dime store crime novel according to investigators.

Charles Curtis Merriman, 58, of Eveline Township, was charged in September as a suspect in connection with the disappearance of his brother, William George Merriman.

Police were tipped off to this case when an old friend of William's contacted them with talk of suspicious activity.

Though the body has yet to be found, investigators believe a knife or ax was used to murder William whose last known whereabouts are linked to a financial transaction that occurred around 8:02 p.m. on June 15, 2006 at Glen's Market in Charlevoix.

On Oct. 16, 2006, cadaver dogs searched Merriman's parents' property in East Jordan where they found human blood.

A number of clues influenced investigators, leading to Charles Merriman's arrest and subsequent charge in October. Adding a twist to the already unusual case, Merriman did "something unusual" at the beginning of his preliminary examination Thursday, Oct. 18. He asked 90th District Court Judge Richard W. May for a different court-appointed attorney saying that he was not satisfied with the work his current defense attorney Kerry Zahner had done to-date on his case.

Judge May denied Merriman's request.

Wind testers gaining ground

COVERAGE BY BENJAMINE GOHS
DEC. 12

Thousands of acres of local land have already been designated as potential sites for wind turbine generators.

Representatives of Heritage Sustainable Energy, pleased the Marion Township Planning Commission approved two special use permits to allow anemometer towers used to test wind speed, must now await final approval from Marion's zoning board.

"We hope to go before the zoning board in January and get them (meteorological towers) installed in mid- to late- January," said Heritage project manager Rick Wilson.

The two 197-foot tall wind testing towers, one approved for Marion Township Supervisor Wilson Boss' property and the other on Marion resident John Frey's land, cost approximately $20,000 each and will remain there for one to two years.

"We've acquired somewhere around 3,500 to 4,500 acres of wind energy leases in Marion and a little bit in Norwood," Wilson said.

While some residents have questioned the plan, Wilson said the reception by locals has been positive so far.

"We really seek to achieve a level of enthusiastic support from the community and don't have any intent of developing a project that isn't compatible with what the community wants to see done in that area," he said.

Change in Chamber leadership

COVERAGE BY JULIE WITTHOEFT AND ERICA GOFF
OCT. 24 AND DEC. 19

Following almost three decades of service to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, president Jacqueline Merta announced her resignation in mid October.

"The end of 2007 is good timing to bring my career with the Charlevoix Chamber to an end. This will make it possible for the next half-century to be started under new management. It's been a wonderful experience working for the Chamber for all these years. It has been personally rewarding to watch Charlevoix grow..." Merta, who began her career as the executive director of the Chamber in 1976, stated in a press release.

The search for a new Chamber leader began, and Chamber Board members unanimously elected Charlevoix native Erin Bemis in early December. A five-member selection committee that included Chamber President Tom Conlan, Chamber member Kirby Dipert and Chamber board members Jay Bingham, Patt Blanchard and Linda Bradley, agreed Bemis stood apart from the other five finalists for the position. Bemis will represent a "new era" for the city, Conlan said.

Erin Bemis

"A new generation of leadership is emerging in Charlevoix and that is as it should be," he stated.

Bemis' position became effective Jan. 2.

The CCMS fiasco: resolved

COVERAGE BY JULIE WITTHEOFT AND BENJAMIN GOHS
JAN. 10 WITH UPDATES THROUGH DEC. 12

Charlevoix City Council took its fight for cash lost in a criminal money grab to the Michigan Supreme Court. The decision came less than a month after the Michigan Court of Appeals reversed a decision made by Charlevoix County Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas in June, 2006 to force the Michigan Municipal League Liability and Property Pool to cover the $222,978.36 cost of the "check mix-up" with CCMS, and also the $8,566.94 in interest the money would have earned had it sat in the city's coffers. Pajtas also awarded the city $4,616.80 for attorney fees incurred while defending a related lawsuit filed by United Fire and Casualty.

In Dec. 2006 the Court of Appeals ruled in favor of, MML, leaving the city "disappointed." It worked out in the end, however, and the Dec. 12 story written by Benjamin Gohs announced the correction of the problem. William Montgomery, owner of CCMS, a contractor hired to perform street work for the city back in 2001 and the man believed to have cashed a check accidentally addressed to him, made the second and final of 2 payments totaling $232,000, plus roughly $400 in interest, Tuesday, Dec. 4.

"It means the city is 100 percent whole," said Charlevoix City Attorney Jim Young. "It's really a question of having a fair and just result. Montgomery is the one that caused the problem initially by cashing a check and not turning the money over to his company, and then failing to pay the subcontractors that he used on a city project."

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema was credited with taking the initiative to retrieve the money, an effort Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson later noted was a key factor in the case an in "protecting the city."

Wynkoop Mine controversy

COVERAGE BY BENJAMIN GOHS
JAN. 31 WITH UPDATES

Wayne Wynkoop's limestone quarry was "silenced" after Judge Thomas G. Power overturned a Norwood Township Zoning Board of Appeals decision from mid-May 2006 that upheld Wynkoop's right to mine the property.

During the hearing, Wynkoop was accused of everything from destroying the Fritz Trail site and excavating without permits to having a conflict of interest by bringing his quarry proposal before the board on which he served.

The judge did not acknowledge the Fritz Trail comment and asked if the accusor had contacted the proper authorities if he/she thought Wynkoop had worked without proper permits.

The issue grew to a head throughout 2007, with the most recent update involving Wynkoop's decision to resign as Norwood Township Supervisor. Wynkoop called it quits amid a litany of legal back-and-forth, including a Nov. 7 ruling by a Traverse City judge to cease operations, between Wynkoop and the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety (NTCHS) over his desire, and their loathe, to operate his limestone mining operation. Wynkoop has since stated he will not relinquish his case.

County aids in Beaver Island tax collection

Charlevoix County Treasurer Marilyn Cousineau has stepped in to collect nearly $70,000 from more than 20 businesses in Beaver Island's St. James Township.

While some of the businesses have owed thousands of dollars since 2000, Cousineau said the St. James Township treasurer James Wojan refused to put the proverbial screws to his friends and neighbors for fear of making life uncomfortable on such a small island.

"They (treasurers) didn't really want to get into that kind of thing where they were pushing it too hard," Cousineau said. "My understanding is it is so close knit over there they didn't want to have to put a lien on anyone's property."

The tax owed is on personal property which encompasses equipment owned and used for business purposes and attachments such as a porch on a trailer, but does not include homes or land, however homes and land can be confiscated if

Charlevoix Area Hospital welcomes New Year's Baby

BY ERICA GOFF

Even though he arrived slightly after his Dec. 31 due date, Martin Larry Duff Evans was the first baby born in Charlevoix Area Hospital in 2008.

His mother, Sara Evans of Boyne City, said her little bundle of joy arrived "really fast" once she went into labor the morning of Jan. 3. Sara and her husband, Charlie Evans, welcomed their eight pound, four-ounce baby boy at 9:44 a.m.

"He was easy. I was only in labor for about four or five hours, and then he was here," Sara said.

Martin is the first child for Sara and Charlie, and despite not yet having siblings to greet him, there was no shortage of family at the hospital the day of his birth.

"My mom works here, and so do two of my aunts," Charlie said, referring to mother, Lynn Houtman, and aunts Norma Pott and Shelly Laisne.

The new grandma and aunts visited the baby last Thursday, as did other aunts, an uncle and various other family members.

The baby was welcomed by one seasoned professional in the realm of New Year's babies. Dr. Jeannie Haberer delivered the baby, and delivered last year's New Year's baby as well. The Evans thanked her for her help.

While Sara is happy to be mother to the 2008 New Year's baby, she said she had hoped he would arrive before Christmas, but "that didn't happen."

Man skips court, arrested downstate

Warrant remains for second criminal, with a $200 reward for information

Thanks to some coordination with the Dearborn Heights Police Department and the Bond Bonding bail bond agency, a Dearborn Heights man convicted of copper theft has been apprehended after failing to appear at his sentencing hearing.

A representative from Bond Bonding said Friday and local Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema confirmed, a car chase involving five police cars was necessary to make the arrest.

Thomas Jean Arender of Dearborn Heights was convicted in November 2006 of stealing thousands of dollars worth of copper from the Consumers Energy facility in Boyne City. Following a jury trial in Circuit Court in Charlevoix County, Arender was charged with trespassing on a keyed (locked) property, larceny of less than $20,000 and habitual third offense, Jarema said. Also convicted was his son, Timothy Arender-Morris, who now has two felony warrants out for his arrest, and is being sought for missing his court dates.

The elder Arender was scheduled last week for a pre-sentencing report appointment, and his sentencing in court Friday morning. The Dearborn Heights Police Department was alerted when he failed to appear, and police apprehended him following the car chase, assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara said.

Jarema said he made a motion in court Friday morning to forfeit Arender's bond and issue a bench warrant with no bond, which allowed the Dearborn officers to pursue him.

"He will be transferred from Dearborn to Charlevoix County, and will sit in jail until his pre-sentencing report can be done," Jarema explained. "Then his sentencing date will take place when the Judge can fit it in the (court) docket."

Both Arender and his son, Arender-Morris, were convicted of the larceny crimes, and Arender-Morris' wife, Gloria Morris, also believed to have been present on the scene at the Consumers Energy facility on at least one occasion, but believed to have remained in the car, was offered a deal to testify, Jarema said, adding, "I really want to see these two men get charged with this crime."

Bond Bonding said a warrant remains for the younger Arender-Morris' arrest, and a $200 reward has been offered for any information on his whereabouts. Arender-Morris is 26 years old, five-foot, nine-inches tall, and weighs approximately 145 pounds. He has short, cropped hair and a mustache and goatee. Jason Mueller, 7, of Charlevoix, received a Certificate of Recognition for his actions when his father needed medical attention this fall. Above, Mueller is pictured with Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan and Tiger Cub Master Christopher Snabes.

Scout helps save dad

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Jason Mueller may only be seven years old, but when confronted with a serious situation, he knows how to keep his cool.

Mueller proved his cool-headedness this fall when his father, Mark Mueller, went into seizures while working on the family's home in Charlevoix. Jason's mother, Janna Mueller, was home at time, and heard calls from outside from her brother-in-law, who was also working on the home. Mark had collapsed and gone into seizures, and Janna yelled for her son to help.

"I told Jason to call 9-1-1, and he did. He answered all their questions, and he stayed so calm," Janna recalled.

Jason, who was only six when the incident occurred in early November, said he doesn't remember a lot about it, but wasn't afraid to make the call.

"I was just helping," he said.

Janna said the problem occurred because of her husband's motor cortex stimulation implant, a device that issues electric shocks to treat pain. A side effect of the implant, she said, is that if the shocks get too high, he can have problems with seizures. Jason and his siblings, Jacob, who is five, and Caili, three, were told about their father's situation and had been some problems before, but "not this bad," Janna said.

"We kind of talked to them about it, and told them Daddy had this implant but if anything happened it would be OK," Janna said. "This time it really scared us."

After he called 9-1-1, Jason stayed on the phone, explained where he was, and went to the edge of the road to wait for the ambulance. His father was at the hospital for about four hours after the incident.

Janna said she is very proud of her son, who claimed his training in the Charlevoix Cub Scout Pack 11 helped him remain calm. She also said her husband thought it was "pretty cool" that his son responded so quickly.

Jason received a special Certificate of Recognition for his life saving action during a medical emergency from his Cub Scout Pack. He also had his picture taken with Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan and Cubmaster Pack 11 Christopher Snabes.

CORRECTION

Due to reporter error, it was stated in a recent story on the Lockman Embezzlement case that John Taylor is the Chief Financial Officer for Northern Preferred Title Company. John Taylor is actually the Chief Executive Officer, not the Chief Financial Officer, of Northern Preferred Title Company of Charlevoix.

Islanders refuse to pay taxes

TAXES

"It's kind of hard to go and take your neighbor's property."

Karen Wojan
ST. JAMES TOWNSHIP DEPUTY TREASURER

taxes are not paid in full.

St. James Township Deputy Treasurer Karen Wojan, speaking on behalf of her husband and St. James Treasurer James, said several of the business owners in question told her they would not pay the tax because it was unfair, but would not say which ones.

Many of the business owners on the list could not be reached, and the ones that were said they were not trying to make a statement by not paying their taxes.

"Every year we send out everybody their tax statements and quite a few don't pay it and then we send out reminders and still no payment has been made," Wojan said. "Our next step is to actually seize property and that's where it gets a little awkward because we are a small, close community."

She added, "It's kind of hard to go and take your neighbor's property."

The delinquency was discovered by Cousineau, who gets annual reports on those townships with residents who owe back taxes.

"It came up this year when the girl who does the personal property tax was going through and found this," Cousineau said. "She brought this in to me and I got on the phone with the state to see what I could do about it and I found out we could do an agreement between us and the township treasurer."

Wojan said she is delighted for the help.

"I think once there has been a precedent set people will realize that they have to pay their taxes," she said. "The consensus is that it's an unfair tax, but it's on the books and you have to pay it or a price is going to have to be paid."

Charlevoix County and St. James Township now have an agreement where the county will collect taxes until 2010.

And, while the Michigan Townships Association (MTA) officials said there are no penalties for treasurers who do not collect required taxes, they should be doing the job assigned them.

"The taxpayers hold these individuals (township officials) accountable for what is not done correctly and in this circumstance the general property tax act MCL 211.47 indicates that the treasurer shall collect personal property taxes," said Member Information Liaison with the MTA Evelyn David. "If they don't pay it, they have to make a personal request or send a letter and then if they do not pay the treasurer has a couple options for collecting — they have to exercise due diligence in collecting unpaid taxes."

Property equal in value to taxes owed may be seized and sold at public auction or the person owing taxes may be taken to small claims court, though defunct businesses are generally written off the tax rolls if taxes simply cannot be collected.

David added, "It is the duty of the individual to collect those taxes."

Cousineau is now working to alert those who owe taxes that she will give them yet another opportunity to pay but that this debt will not be forgiven or forgotten.

"I may give them as long as two years to pay and at that point, if no effort or no payment arrangement has been made, I may put a lien on their property," she said.

Preliminary figures as of July, and not including accrued tax, were $69,416.28.

House bill tyranny, not terror protection

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

This week's installment of what may soon be dubbed the "Terror Towel" is in direct violation of our Government's latest tribute to tyranny: H.R. 1955, the Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism Prevention Act of 2007, which passed in the U.S. House by a vote of 404—6.

HR 1955's $22 million commission, which cites the Internet as a prime facilitator of terrorist propaganda, said it will merely study and report on the finer points of "homegrown terrorism," not infringe upon constitutional rights of free expression online or otherwise.

The bill calls violent radicalization the adoption or promotion of extreme beliefs to facilitate ideologically-based violence to advance political, religious or social change and says homegrown terrorism is planned or threatened use of force to intimidate or coerce America to political or social ends—when the government demands obedience by force they call it law—but fails to define force, intimidation or coercion

I had to pull the founding documents from the totalitarian toilet to see how merely having radical beliefs was a no-no, but all I found was this little gem by patriot/terrorist Thomas Jefferson (to paraphrase Ustinov, terrorism is war of the meek and war is terrorism of the strong), "whenever any form of government becomes destructive to (life, liberty and freedom) it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government."

TJ knew governments must be aware of their mortality and possess a healthy fear of the governed, for it is not a question of "will?" they oppress, but "when?"

Don't get me wrong, I agree with his idea that "governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes."

So it's up to you to decide whether the following handful of examples are "light and transient causes" or abject tyranny when American citizens are: Forced to remove shoes and submit to unreasonable searches in areas of mass transit; held at length without due process (Yaser Hamdi, Jose Padilla to name two); subjectively disallowed from polygamy, animal sacrifice (while indigenous peoples hold peyote ceremonies and rabbis in certain sects of Judaism use their mouths to finish circumcising babies) in accordance with religious practice; prohibited from and punished for recreational drug use, though it took a constitutional ban to prohibit alcohol use; prohibited from and punished for engaging in the sex trades; caught in an ambiguous dragnet of wiretaps, e-mail monitoring and records searches—all violations, by our rulers, of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and 10th amendments, just at first glance.

An HR 1955 propaganda sheet states: "There are no provisions seeking to change the criminal code or set up a 'Big Brother' regime to put Americans under surveillance," as if Big Brother's regime didn't exist. If nary a law was passed starting today, you would still be a slave to your municipal masters.

When unjust laws turn patriotism to terrorism and convince good men to yield to injustice, extreme measures, as Thoreau wrote, must be taken. "Under a government which imprisons any unjustly, the true place for a just man is also a prison."

And even if freedom was an option, who would choose such an arduous path over the current means of sedation? With fat belly and digitally induced daze we consume masses of cheap goods to fill the void left by empty existence, but beware. Comfort and complacency bear a steep price. For even the blue-ribbon hog, gently shampooed, lovingly caressed and hand fed before the county fair will too find itself squealing in terror before the butcher's blade.

America is great not for what it is, but for what it could be, and while I would much rather see liberty delivered via civil disobedience than bloody revolution, criminalizing my right even to discuss extreme measures is a sure sign that it will take the latter over the former to end this jack-booted thuggery.

"He had committed—would still have committed, even if he had never set pen to paper—the essential crime that contained all others in itself Thoughtcrime," Orwell wrote. "Thoughtcrime does not entail death. Thoughtcrime is death."

Pets can offer love when it is most needed

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

There is unconditional love, it truly exists. Something most of us seek and hope to find.

Are you out there looking for Mr. Right or Mrs. Right? Longing for a relationship where trust, respect and love are mutual and appreciated no matter what occurs between you. In the early morning hours are you longing for a friendly touch, maybe a nose to rub against your own or a look that says, "let's do something fun today." Look no further my friend as I have found the answer. This always giving, wanting more, gazing-look-in-your-eyes kind of love is found by owning a dog. They greet when you come home, they want to participate in your activities, comfort you when you are sad and are interested in what you have to say. A description of this four legged creature sounds more like an advertisement in the personal want ads. Do you like long walks in the park, eating outdoors, playing in the freshly fallen snow? Are you seeking a good listener and some quiet time spent by the fireside?

I thought about this when a friend shared how they were dealing with the loss of a dear pet, and another friend who is presently caring for their dog that is experiencing a debilitating illness. I have witnessed dogs with children and watched how patient a canine can be when a child drapes themselves over the furry creature to share a book. It's a delight to see residents in nursing homes who light up when they see the wagging tail as a carefully aimed nose drops onto the their lap looking for a pat on the head or scratch under the chin. It truly is amazing how one creature of God can light up a room quicker than a supermodel wearing Ralph Lauren. No pretentious overtones, just plain and simple fur which they grew organically themselves, a figure that they love, and eyes that will look at you as if you were and always will be their best friend.

When children don't feel understood, the first thing they go to is their teddy bear or family pet. When a man is stressed and feels unappreciated, he'll take his dog for a walk.

When a woman is feeling overwhelmed with her work load she'll turn to her dog to share her problems. Not even a therapist can disagree about the positive effects a dog has on a family, school, or residential facility. Yes, there is responsibility, training, and attention involved on your part but you can't deny the rewards that far exceed the tribulations.

We raise children with hopes they will turn out well. Dogs sometimes follow through and respond a little quicker than children do. They aren't with us for a long time, which is probably why they work twice as hard to get us to like them. There is no doubt they have feelings that get hurt, but they recover quickly, rarely hold a grudge and forgive you for all your faults. Rarely have I viewed a dog scolding its owner. We've read stories about dogs saving lives by waking loved ones before a catasphrophe and their ability to detect seizures in humans prior to their occurring. Dogs can hear for some of us and see for others. They even make great doorbells. So as we progress during this new year you may want to consider adopting a pet whether it is furry and fluffy or feathery and flighty. Our winters are long and if you are looking for something new in your life this may be the answer. If your location, travel, or time prohibits you from such an endeavor, you might look into caring for a neighbor's dog while they are away or fostering a dog for a short term while a shelter may be seeking a new home for them.

It's true that animals can cause stress by their behavior at times, but in the long run, our own daily stressors are quickly reduced when our furry friend looks our way and we respond with a gentle hand gliding over their endearing face. A dog truly is man, woman and child's best friend and it's no coincidence that man's best friend can't talk. He will always think you are the most wonderful person in the world. Don't get a second opin-

HOW IS FREEDOM DEFINED?

Editor,

President Bush is a strong advocate for freedom. President Roosevelt advocated four essential freedoms before the second World War. One was "freedom from fear, which translated into world terms, means world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor-anywhere in the world." The military industrial complex countered that freedom with the slogan, "peace through strength." Time has proven that slogan to be a farce. The United States is the number one nation with weapons of mass destruction, both in quantity and variety. It has enough nuclear weapons to destroy civilization, and is the only nation to have used nuclear weapons in war.

After the second World War the victors prosecuted the vanquished for new crimes. "Crimes against peace that is planning, initiating, and waging war. Crimes against humanity such as extermination of racial, ethnic, and religious groups and other such atrocities against civilians." Those crimes resemble terror. The victors were not prosecuted for such crimes after the second World War. Does the War in Iraq, or the War in Vietnam, by the United States qualify as war crimes under those definitions?

MILLAGE FOR ROAD COMMISSION

Editor,

On a local tv station this week, I saw that an area is adding a local question to the January 15th primary ballot.

I thought that perhaps the Charlevoix County Road Commission could also add to the Jan. 15 ballot for Charlevoix County a request for millage to be able to plow the secondary roads on weekends.

I can see where the road commission needs to stay in the black on its budget. I can also see where the people living on these roads want to be able to get out, plus the issues of emergency vehicle access and being able to have school on Mondays.

Perhaps the Road Commission could give a figure of the dollar amount needed, what it comes to in terms of millage, and then what that comes to dollar-wise per household.

Just a thought.

Elks could herd to Charlevoix, if wanted

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Open meeting will question whether there is enough interest in the area to bring an Elks Lodge to Charlevoix

Where: American Legion Hall, 106, East Garfield St.

When: 7 p.m. Jan. 10

While hunters and nature buffs are encouraged to attend the upcoming meeting, it is really the Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks, not a herd of deer, which will soon gather in the city of Charlevoix.

And, according to locals John Hess and Chris Jones, they have a good feeling the Elks will stay.

"The magic number I was told to be granted a charter is 125," said Chris Jones, 20-year Elks Lodge member and Charlevoix Area Lodge Organizer. "I think we can do it. I'm very optimistic and I think it's a realistic number for us."

He added, "I think there are enough established members in the area and enough interest has been shown that it's just a matter of getting people out to make that commitment."

An informational meeting, hosted by two members of the Elks Grand Lodge in southern Michigan, is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 10 at the American Legion hall in Charlevoix, located at 106 East Garfield St.

The Elks mission statement is, "To inculcate the principles of Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity; to recognize a belief in God; to promote the welfare and enhance the happiness of its Members; to quicken the spirit of American patriotism; to cultivate good fellowship; to perpetuate itself as a fraternal organization, and to provide for its government, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America will serve the people and communities through benevolent programs, demonstrating that Elks care and Elks share."

"Current Elk members should attend and anyone interested in joining should also attend," Jones said.

Hess said he supports the idea because he would like to have a social club in the area which gives back to the community.

Jones joined because his father was an Elk and he grew up around the organization.

"I always wanted to join since I was old enough," he said. "On weekends we'd go out to the lodge and it was a family deal, a family function. We'd always have a picnic and other family functions and my mom had friends there."

He added, "I travel and the upside for me is when I go to a town and I see an Elks Lodge, I know it's a safe place to go to network, to relax."

Aside from children's charities and working with veterans, Elks Lodges nationwide work to educate people about drugs and drunk driving.

Currently, Jones said, the closest lodges are in Gaylord or Traverse City.

"The Elks always have a good presence in (their respective towns) and they do a lot of good," he said. "I think it would be good for Charlevoix; it would be good for us."

To qualify for membership men and women must be 21 years of age, American or naturalized American citizens and believe in God.

"Political beliefs do not come into play. In fact it's frowned upon to bring it up in that setting," Jones said.

While Hess and Jones are confident sufficient interest will be shown to obtain a charter, they said it will be some time before a headquarters is named in Charlevoix.

"We have a lot of work to do before that can be decided," Hess said. "This is going to take some time. We're not going to get the charter and have a clubhouse set up the next day."

Rehearsals open for LTCS concert

The Little Traverse Choral Society (LTCS) will begin rehearsals for its Spring 2008 concert Tuesday Jan. 8, under the direction of Tim Hendrickson. This is Mr. Hendrickson's second season with the LTCS. Hendrickson is currently the Director of Choral Activities at Delta College, University Center, Michigan. He comes to the LTCS from Midland, Michigan and is a talented director, organist and vocalist.

The LTCS is a non-audition, all volunteer chorus of singers who enjoy challenging music. Concert dates are April 12 and 13, 2008 at the United Methodist Church in Petoskey and the Cross in the Woods Catholic Shrine in Indian River.

The LTCS Spring concert will feature works selected expressly for their textual content. In fact, the theme for this concert will be 'Inscriptions' taken from various words written to commemorate specific moments, both good and bad throughout our world history.

Registration will be held before rehearsal on Jan. 8 and Jan. 15 beginning at 6:30 p.m. Registration is $30 for adults and $15 for students. Students at North Central Michigan College may earn one credit hour by registering for Music 102: Chorale II. In case of financial concerns, the registration fee may be paid anonymously by the LTCS Sponsorship Program. There are also opportunities for car pooling. Call 231-347-0272 for more information.

Mother of many remembered in Charlevoix

BY LOUISE NELLE
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

A Charlevoix woman who impacted the lives of many children through both adoption and foster care passed away Saturday, Dec. 22.

Friends and acquaintances of Pat Keehn, 63, remember her as a loving, generous person who not only adopted 14 children but helped an additional 85 through an emergency shelter which she and her husband, Bill, ran for three years.

"She was very, very intelligent and had a wonderful sense of humor ... she just had a very, very kind heart," said Acme resident Becky Dornoff with the Adopt America Network — a nationwide adoption system based in Toledo, Ohio.

Dornoff assisted with the Keehns' last five adoptions and has known the family for more than 15 years. Throughout the years, Dornoff said, Pat had a tremendous amount of energy when working with children and always went the extra mile to enrich their lives to help them get the most out of life.

"She really had a big heart. They (Bill and Pat) truly felt the need to reach those kids," Dornoff said.

The Keehns first entered the world of adoption as newlyweds in Arizona when they adopted their first son in 1974. Three years later, they adopted another son. During that time, Bill said Pat decided to own her own business, the Village Shop, and hoped to expand her business nationwide. But her plans changed as she reached out to more children.

"In less than six months we went from two to five kids," Bill said. "My wife made the decision to cancel her nationwide store."

As the years passed, Pat returned to the idea of expanding her shop. So in 1990 the couple moved to Pat's home state of Michigan and opened the Village Shop in Charlevoix. That same year, they also turned their home into an emergency shelter as part of the Michigan Department of Human Services.

During the next three years, 85 children passed through the Keehns' home staying anywhere from one weekend to three weeks. After adopting four more children, though, the couple had to close their doors.

"We adopted ourselves out of the shelter home business," Bill said. "We found out that if you had eight kids in your home you could no longer be a shelter home."

Even with nine children, Bill said Pat still browsed through the Michigan Adoption Resource Exchange book to learn about youngsters in need of a home. Eventually they adopted five more children to reach a total of 14. Of those 14, the majority were under the age of 7 at the time of adoption and all were special needs children.

Fourteen kids may sound like a handful, but being around the large family has always been a joy for Anne Fiedler and her husband, Jim, of Charlevoix. A family friend and fellow church member, Fiedler said visiting Pat, Bill and their children was a wonderful experience because the Keehns were so open. In addition to being loving and forgiving, she added that Pat also had a great sense of humor and loved to play games whenever the two families were together.

Another long-time friend, Deidra Splan of Onaway, remembers Pat as a person who always went the extra mile to care for others.

"She was very loving, very concerned about children in general. Always wanted the best for them," she said.

Splan met Pat through the adoption system, having adopted 24 herself. Not only was Pat wonderful with people but Splan said she was nurturing, calming and able to comfort children who came to her shelter during the middle of the night. And when it came to her own children, Splan said Pat did everything she could to help them succeed — such as home schooling them during the early years to give them the best start possible.

Even as Pat's health declined, Splan said her friend never stopped helping others and had a way of bringing out the best in people.

To put it simply, Splan said, "She had a gift."

Local schools support United Way

United Way officials honored staff at Charlevoix Public Schools recently for being the winners of the United Way School Challenge, sponsored by Lesky Insurance Agency.

The challenge offered a prize of lunch or breakfast for staff at the school that contributed the largest amount of funds to the Char-Em United Way Campaign, on a per-capita basis. United Way officials were on hand to thank campaign coordinators Carol Madison, Kelly Yaroch, and School Board President John McLean for their support.

"We are pleased to award the challenge prize to the staff at Charlevoix Public Schools," said Steve Andreae, United Way Vice-President. "The Charlevoix staff generously donated a total of $3,323, which is a per capita donation of $22.91 and a 279% increase over their donations the previous year. Since teachers and other school personnel are on the front lines of helping children and families, they know how great the need is at this time. These generous donations will help us make a difference in both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties over the coming year."

Gary Lesky of the Lesky Agency donated breakfast trays to teachers and staff in all three Charlevoix School buildings. "What a great opportunity to thank the staff of Charlevoix schools for their generous support of the United Way," said Lesky.

"The United Way campaign has now exceeded 75% of our ambitious $230,000 goal, and we are confident that we will exceed that mark," stated Martha Lancaster, Executive Director of Char-Em United Way. "Our Education Division, which includes all the public schools in the two counties as well as North Central Michigan College, increased its support by 68% this year. School staff donated a total of $15,490 or over 5% of our campaign. The Lesky Challenge was a fun incentive to encourage giving by school staff.

The United Way campaign supports health and human service agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Tax-deductible donations to the campaign continue to be accepted at P.O Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770. For more information, contact United Way at (231)487-1006 or charemuw@sbcglobal.net.

Community Foundations grants available

It is time once again to put local charitable dollars to work on behalf of the community. The Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation are inviting nonprofit organizations, educational institutions, and municipalities who are in need of funding to submit grant requests in support of their projects.

During the next few months, the community foundations and their Youth Advisory Committees (YAC's) will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, the arts and cultural events, environmental efforts, and human service programs. The YAC's, which are made up of area teenagers throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties, will award grants to programs that serve children and teens.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Emmet or Charlevoix County. The deadline for grant requests is March 3, 2008.

Applications are available by calling the community foundation office in your county. All applicants must call and discuss their proposals in advance. Foundation staff is available to offer advice and assistance to organizations interested in submitting a proposal for funding consideration.

Both community foundations are grassroots charitable organizations made up of various funds – all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, now and for generations to come.

For more information about the grantmaking process, establishing a fund, or making a gift, please contact the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation by phone at (231)348-5820, or by website address at www.phsacf.org. Contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation by phone at (231)536-2440, or by website address at www.c3f.org.

NWA awards acts of kindness

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Anonymous angels and good Samaritans may not be looking for a pat on the back for their efforts, but at one local school that's just what they may get.

While still awaiting final approval by the Northwest Academy Board of Education, school officials are optimistic the Excellence in Character Award will soon make its debut.

"It still needs the blessing from our board," said Northwest Academy school leader and Chief Administrative Officer Gary Stutzman. "I think more of this type of thing would be fitting in our school."

Shelia Davis, architect of the award, hopes to recognize students who do for others a couple times each year with a token of gratitude.

"A lot of kids may not get straight A's or excel in sports, but they may have just as much to offer society in life as the ones who get academic awards and who win trophies," she said. "Students, teachers and even community members who witness Northwest Academy students doing a random act of kindness can nominate them (students) for doing a good deed."

Davis said both staff and parents she has spoken with support the award.

"They are all just very excited about it," she said. "Northwest is unique in the way that they present education to kids. It's more of a small family thing. You feel like part of something special when you go there and I think this is why teachers want to acknowledge students for character and kindness and for reaching out to others."

She added, "When I brought this up to the Friends of Northwest Academy (a parent-teacher organization), immediately there were a couple of people who said they had seen one of the high school kids stop in the hall to help one of the (younger children) tie their shoes and there are some who volunteer their time outside of school."

Davis

Davis said the modern world has yielded generations of selfish people, making it more important than ever to praise acts of selflessness.

"I think we are really beginning to live in a 'me' society, so to see a child, especially a school age child in middle or high school, not be concerned so much about appearance or peers and do the kind of thing that builds those heart connections, I think that will make the world a better place," she said.

"I think we're losing a personal touch with people and this is a way to honor those efforts."

The award will include a ceremony and some type of prize, Davis said.

"My business, Heaven Sent Adoption Services, is going to be donating $25 per semester in a gift card or something that we really think will be good for the kids," she said. "I hope to solicit donations from the community as well."

Davis added, "We will give different things to different kids depending on their age and what they could use best."

Stutzman said it is important to recognize students for doing good.

"I think it helps to promote citizenship and that is important for our future leaders," he said.

Those interested in donating to the Excellence in Character Award should contact Davis at 237-9880.

Grammy winning artist to perform at Crooked Tree Arts Center Jan. 12

2006 Grammy winner Billy Childs, with his Chamber Jazz Ensemble, will take the stage at Crooked Tree Arts Center at 8 p.m. Saturday, January 12. Tickets are on sale now.

Nominated for a total of eight Grammy Awards, Childs received two of the coveted music awards for his 2005 album, "Lyric," one for best instrumental composition for "Into The Light" and the other for best arrangement accompanying a vocalist.

Childs' solo jazz recording career began in 1988, when he released "Take For Example, This...," the first of four critically acclaimed albums on the Windham Hill Jazz label. A long friendship with Chick Corea resulted in the jazz icon asking Childs to join his label, Stretch Records, upon Childs' departure from Windham Hill Jazz.

Other notable accomplishments include being twice commissioned by the Monterey Jazz Festival, and in 2000, Childs arranged, orchestrated, and conducted the Dianne Reeves CD, "The Calling: Celebrating Sarah Vaughn." He has also performed with his own trio in Carnegie Hall.

Currently, Childs is scheduled to work on a piece for The American Brass Quintet, The Imani Woodwind Quintet, The Jazz Chamber Ensemble with The Ying String Quartet, and another piece for the Los Angeles Master Chorale.

Tickets are on sale now. CTAC members, $20/adult, $8/student; non-members $25/adult, $10/student. Visit www.crookedtree.org, call (231)347-4337, or stop by the Arts Center at 461 East Mitchell, downtown Petoskey.

OBITUARY

MARY TAMMINGA

Mary Eileen Tamminga nee Andrews, nom de plume Princess of Doom, known aliases Savannah and Zelda; peacefully passed away on Jan 4. She was raised in Roseland, IL, enjoyed life in Crete, IL, and retired in Ellsworth Mich.

Mary was a loving wife, mother, and grandmother. She worked as a domestic engineer for 43 years. She will be remembered by her beloved friends as an avid follower of Christ, recovering Republican, independent thinker and a Second Amendment sister. Mary always lived life with a theme. She moved to Northern Michigan to breed wolverines, propagate the truth, swaddle herself in flannel shirts, and love black bears with abandon. Her hobbies included herbalism, scrap hooking, and exposing Satan's minions. She only went into the kitchen because it was between the bathroom and TV room. Mary would never leave the house without carrying a steno pad, bottled water and toilet paper. Being a prolific consumer of the printed word, she fancied herself a political pundit, conspiracy theorist and was a confirmed doubter of global warming.

Mary is survived by her loving husband Erv; children Peter (Marjorie), Jennifer (Kevin) Krueger, and Joy. She was the proud grandmother of six: Nicole, Scott, Dylan, Kaitlyn, Aden and Piper. She is also the sister of Susan Remely and fond cousin of Berniee Kandron and Judy Hurley. The funeral was held Monday, Jan. 7, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, Pastor Dan Gilmore officiating. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Good Samaritan Family Services, 9746 Main St., Ellsworth, MI 49729.

Vet Affairs meeting

A Department of Michigan American Legion service officer will be at the Emmet County Veterans' Affairs office, in the County Building, 200 Division Street in Petoskey, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday Jan. 16 to assist any veteran, or veteran's survivor, in filing a claim, replacing lost discharge papers, obtaining medals or signing up for VA health care. If unable to visit the office, you may call the service officer at 348-1780 at the time listed above for more information. Charlevoix County veterans should note that the American Legion service officer won't be in Charlevoix until Feb. 5.

New year, new leader for County Commission

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Commissioner Chris Christensen, District Two, was elected Chairman in a 4-2 vote over past Chair Shirley Roloff

Commissioners hope to "squeeze the most' out of tax dollars in 2008, and address goals set in 2007 not yet addressed

With a new year comes a new chairman and a new direction for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

During their yearly organizational meeting Wednesday, Jan. 2, District Two County Commissioner Chris Christensen was named chairman of the board in a 4—2 vote.

"I'm honored, which sounds cliché, but I'm honored the majority of the board feels I can do this job," Christensen said. "From my perspective it's not doing a better job than other chairpeople [sic] (former chair and District Six Commissioner Shirley Roloff), but it's a matter of doing the job in maybe a different manner."

He added, "I think each of the six of us have our own strengths and weaknesses and I wouldn't be surprised to see this chairperson's job bounce around a little bit."

By "bounce around," Christensen meant the title may be had by several or each of the newer commissioners in upcoming years.

"In this year I've been granted I'm excited and look forward to hopefully doing justice to the job as required," he said. "Specifically last year, the jail issue was resolved and so we've got a few lingering issues that I would like to see efficiently and quickly addressed as well as (addressing) the new issues as they arrive."

He also said he is "grateful to have a person with the presence like Shirley (Roloff)" to draw on.

In the end, Christensen said, he is but one man, and does not hold all the control.

"There are six of us that make decisions, and frankly five other people besides myself share responsibility. The chairperson is just the one that runs the meetings."

Christensen was chosen following a secret ballot after both he and Roloff were nominated to the chair position.

Former chair Roloff said she is relieved the position went elsewhere.

"I am busy and the newer commissioners wanted a change and so they got it," she said. "I think things are going fairly well and I think I've been a fairly decent person, but I still have other things to do."

She added, "I don't need my name tagged with a (title) and I think Chris (Christensen) will make a good chairperson. I have no problems with that at all."

Roloff's 2008 goals include working on her pet project of recycling and getting renovations done at Whiting Park in addition to doing what she can to have county road issues resolved.

District Four Commissioner Joel Evans echoed Roloff's thoughts that Christensen will do a fine job.

"Shirley did a good job and we've appreciated her and I think Chris (Christensen) will do a great job," he said

Evans is excited about the upcoming year and plans to do all he can to squeeze the most of governmental services out of tax dollars.

"Things are tight in Michigan and we need to be responsible to the taxpayer," he said. "I am working on the menu at the jail trying to find ways to lower the cost to the taxpayer"

District Three Commissioner Ron Reinhardt also supports Christensen.

"I have known him (Christensen) since high school when I was his coach in basketball and I think he will do a really good job," he said

Reinhardt hopes to work on ensuring the county maintains financial solvency.

"There is basically a lot of fine tuning I think we need to work on," he said. "We need to come up with ways of coming up with financing down the road with the state of Michigan's economy."

He added, "We need to tighten our belt and I will represent the people in the third district as best I can."

District Five Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt said he supports Christensen as the new leader and hopes to address some issues he feels were not taken care of in 2007.

"We went a year asking for certain things to get accomplished and they have not even been brought back up," he said. "We asked for job descriptions from all the department heads and have not received them and we have some personnel and maintenance issues to work on."

Drebenstedt added, "I think Chris (Christensen) has young, fresh ideas on the same old problems and I think he's willing to try something new instead of the way it's always been done."

District One Commissioner Shirlene Tripp could not be reached by press time.

Rayders rebound from first loss, seize control in Lake Michigan Conference

Bouncing back.

A little less than 24 hours after losing its first game of the season, the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team got back on track.

And, in the grand scheme of things, Friday's 51-42 victory over Boyne City is more substantial than Thursday's 52-46 loss at Petoskey.

"We took care of the ball better than we did against Petoskey," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said Friday at the Boyne City gym. "This was a nice win. It's always hard to play over here."

The win gave the Rayders sole possession of first place in the Lake Michigan Conference at 6-0, while Boyne City — which entered the game as the only other team unbeaten in the league — is 3-1. The Rayders are 8-1 overall, while Boyne is 4-3.

Charlevoix plays a non-league game at home against St. Ignace on Wednesday, Jan. 9, then goes to Elk Rapids, 3-4, 3-2, for a conference game on Friday, Jan. 11.

Juniors KC McCary and Meridith Rich sparked the Rayders on both ends of the court against Boyne as the Rayders took a 14-10 first-quarter lead and did not trail again for the rest of the evening.

"Those two soccer players, KC and Meridith, they don't care about starting, they don't care about scoring, they just want to come in and play defense," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "They give us a lot of energy."

Rich scored a team-high 11 points and McCary had eight. Ten different Rayders scored. Jessica Knysz scored 13 points to lead Boyne.

A Knysz bucket to start the fourth quarter got the Ramblers within five, 35-30, but her Charlevoix counterpart, Murphy Gillespie, scored inside and then on two free throws to get the lead back to double digits.

"Jessica is a really tough matchup for us," Erskine said. "She's a head taller than any of our players, but we really concentrated on her with some double teams, and did a pretty good job."

Charlevoix guard Meridith Rich (34) makes a pass by a Boyne City player Friday in the Rayders' 51-42 Lake Michigan Conference victory.

One night before, the Rayders' dropped a hard-fought battle to unbeaten Petoskey, 52-46.

Tammy Potter had eight points and Alyssa Smith added seven for the Rayders, who committed more turnovers than Erskine would have liked.

"When you turn the ball over as much as we did, you're not going to win many ball games," Erskine said.

"I think the girls were mad at themselves because we let them right back into the game. We were ahead at one point in the second quarter, but they exploited us on defense and they took it to us."

Charlevoix-East Jordan ski action

The Charlevoix-East Jordan boys' ski team hit the slopes in Boyne City last week, joining other area teams in kicking off the 2008 season.

Charlevoix-East Jordan fell to the home Boyne City Ramblers who put forth a dominating performance in the giant slalom and also won the slalom en route to winning the six-team meet.

The Ramblers finished with 31.5 points, while Harbor Springs was second with 63, followed by Elk Rapids, 120.5; Grayling, 142; Traverse City St. Francis, 145; and Charlevoix-East Jordan 153.

Charlevoix-East Jordan finished with 68 points to win the girls' event. Boyne City was second with 78, while Harbor Springs and T.C., St. Francis tied for third with 88 points apiece. Grayling was fifth, 137; followed by Elk Rapids, 194.

Charlevoix-East Jordan senior Katherine Rowley won the girls' GS in 46.73 seconds, while Boyne City's Cristina Roland won the slalom in 1:08.01.

Rowley paced the Charlevoix-East Jordan girls with her win in GS and a second place finish in slalom.

Also for Charlevoix-East Jordan in slalom, Elizabeth Hasseld was seventh while Emily Bajko was 10th. In GS Hasseld finished fifth.

Also for Charlevoix-East Jordan girls, Lizzy Hofweber was 14th GS, 15th slalom; Stephanie Poindexter, 14th slalom, 21st GS. Amanda Fritsch, 23rd GS, 25th slalom.

For the Charlevoix-East Jordan boys, Nic Williams had the best individual finish as he was 13th in GS. Other Charlevoix-East Jordan boys: Tanner Fisher, 14th slalom, 29th GS; Zach Smith, 16th slalom; Justin Williams, 17th slalom, 20th GS; Michael Cardwell, 17th GS; Joe Hidakastu, 27th slalom.

Rayder boys extend streak to seven

They say it's lonely at the top.

Unbeaten Charlevoix likes the solitude.

Gotshall

Cory Gotshall scored 18 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, and Justin Friske added 16 points Thursday as the Rayders took sole possession of first place in the Lake Michigan Conference boys' basketball race with a 72-54 victory over Kalkaska.

The victory lifted the Rayders to 7-0 overall and 4-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference, while Kalkaska slipped into a second place tie with East Jordan in the league at 3-1. The Blazers are 4-5 overall.

The Rayders resume defense of their league championship on Thursday, Jan. 10, when they go to Elk Rapids, 2-4, 2-2. But first, the Rayders were to entertain rival Petoskey on Tuesday, Jan. 8. The Northmen, a 59-54 loser to Charlevoix in the second game of the season, are 5-4.

Brock Yenglin added nine points and seven rebounds for the Rayders against Kalkaska, while Nate LaBlance had eight points and six assists, and Kyle Jones added six points and six steals.

John Kasza scored 19 points and Travis Schuba added 15 for the Blazers.

Charlevoix won the JV game, 61-47. Bill Ivan had 12 points and 11 rebounds for the Rayders, and Clayton Mitchell had 12 points and six assists.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Couple brings books back to downtown Charlevoix

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

What does Charlevoix's downtown need?

A bookstore. So says Dianne and Bill DuPont, owners of the soon to be Round Lake Bookstore.

The couple said they have been nterested in opening a bookstore for some time, and are hoping to open in the Round Lake Bookstore in the spring of 2008 — "around April 15 or so," Dianne said. This is not the first attempt at such an endeavor for Dianne, who in fact almost purchased he Bridge Street Book Shop from Dianne Foster in 2002.

"The timing wasn't right, and hings just didn't come together as they needed to)," Dianne DuPont said.

Now is the right time, however, and things are coming together for the Round Lake Bookstore, which will occupy the Rose Cottage Garage, currently being remodeled for the purpose. The shop will offer a "cozy atmosphere," Bill and Dianne said, and will bring together their collective interests, talents and experiences.

"After things didn't work out with (buying) the Bridge Street, I thought I should try working in a book store to see if I liked it and wanted to do that," Dianne said.

So try she did, working with Jim Berlage at the Bridge Street Book Shop in the summer of 2003, remaining there until it closed. Bill said he and his wife were "very sorry to see that (store) go," as they are "good friends with Jim." They will now use the experience and "even greater love and real appreciation and knowledge of what Charlevoix residents and summer people like to read," Dianne said, by providing adult readers with the text they enjoy.

Both are avid historic fiction and historic non-fiction readers, Bill and Dianne said, and will serve as an outlet for others interested in that genre.

"Downtown Charlevoix needs a bookstore and Dianne and I are just the right people to provide it," Bill said, adding his wife will "be doing the lion's share of the start up and everyday stuff," while he will be there on weekends to help.

While Bill and Dianne are excited to offer the service of reading for adults, they do not plan to complete with the other bookstores which sell used and children's books.

"We will be too small to compete with the other downtown bookstores we will not be selling many used books or children's books," Dianne said.

Bill, who has lived in Charlevoix since the early 1990s, will continue his weekly commute to Troy where he practices law.

Dianne said the store will also embrace a partnership with the Charlevoix Public Library, working together on events such as book signing, author visits and other projects.

"We plan on working hand-in-glove with the library, and I think we can really help each other out," Dianne said.

Project to 'connect' homeless with services needed

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Members of the Char-Em Collaborative Council have aken the bull by the horns in regard to their efforts to end homelessness in the Northern Michigan area by planning a way to "connect" individuals in need of help with the resources available.

Project Connect, which will be held from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Emmet County Fairgrounds Feb. 13, will bring ogether an array of services — offering help with everyhing from employment to hygeine to education to financial assistance — offered free to hose in need of such help. The concept of Project Connect, which essentially 'connects' homeless or extremely low-ncome individuals and families with services, originated n San Francisco a "few years ago," said Lorraine Manary, coordinator of the Collaborative Council, and the idea has spread throughout the country.

"Members of our Continuum of Care Committee (which works on housing and low-income issues within the hi-county area) saw a presentation on this in December and were sparked by the idea," she said. "They really took off with this."

While still in planning stages, Manary said the project will utilize a city model that brings a variety of organizations, businesses and community volunteers together in one place to "put the services needed (by homeless individuals) within their reach." The hope is that transportation will be available to help get individuals and families to the fairgrounds and perhaps to where they may need to go after the event, and offer help while they are there. It is "tagging on" to a tax preparation event the Northwest Michigan Human Service Agency has offered for a number of years, Manary explained, and will expand on that concept.

"There is a push in Michigan at the state level around the issue of homelessness in general, and this was an effective way to reach that population," Manary said.

The event fit well into the Char-Em 10-year Plan to End Homelessness, a guide many communities in Michigan have developed not only to address housing issues but also to help qualify for state funding programs. Manary said homelessness is a real problem for which real answers are needed.

"Our economy is tearing people apart. There are a lot of people homeless or on the verge of homelessness that have never experienced these kinds of financial troubles before, so they don't know what kinds of services are available to them," she said. "They are just kind of thrown into it, and it is scary."

The homeless population in Northern Michigan is visible, Manary said, living in campgrounds and under bridges in nice weather, and are often seen in places such as Manna Food events and area libraries. Some are living in cars, pulling camper beds on backs of trucks, and some families are sending children to school after spending the night in a car.

"These people can be seen. Sometimes you see them plugging a cell phone in at a library or something, because they want to remain connected and present themselves as being OK, but they're not," she said.

Manary said organizers hope to get area banks involved to offer financial and tax help. She has also invited hair dressers to give haircuts, Michigan Works representatives to help with employment searches, Women's Resource Center representatives for any help they can give, and other organizations, including Charlevoix Area Hospital. A free hot meal will be provided around lunchtime, and boxes of food will be donated by Manna Foods.

Manary emphasized the need for help from the community to make the event successful. Any one interested in volunteering on or before the event is welcome, and she also encouraged donations from area businesses, suggesting such things as hygeine products or dental care items. Anything "tangible they can take away with them" will be of benefit, she said.

Lighthouse restoration could begin this spring

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

A partnership between the City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Historical Society, a state-wide effort to save Michigan's lighthouses, and financial commitment from Charlevoix citizens, could soon come to fruition with anticipated construction on Charlevoix's South Pier lighthouse.

Charlevoix Historical Society board President Mary Adams said a lot of work — which began locally in 2001 — has gone into preparation, research and fundraising for the project that will restore the lighthouse to its original state and its original red color, relying on an approximately five-year fundraising effort. Structural components of the lighthouse will be re-enforced, electrical elements updated, and the entire structure will be "strengthened," during the first phase of construction, Historical Society member David Miles said. The next step would be to repaint the now white lighthouse, restoring its original red color, a requirement from the Secretary of Interior, a guiding-force in historical preservation projects.

The cost of those two restoration steps is estimated to be $183,000, hoped to be raised within a five-year period that began in 2005. The State Historical Preservation Office (SHPO) has been a major contributor to the efforts, having established the Michigan Lighthouse Project in 2000 with the goal of offering grant awards to communities such as Charlevoix that serve as homes to Michigan lighthouses.

The money from SHPO can only be used for lighthouse preservation, and lighthouse stewards, in this case the Historical Society, can apply for the $40,000 grants every year. The grants require a 50 percent match be raised, and so far two grants, with local matches, have been received.

Adams said an extra boost was received in 2007, thanks to a private grant project that agreed to offer $10,000 challenge grants for five years. The dollar-for-dollar challenge grant sparked further interest for local fundraising, and the Society raised $11,743.23 in 2007 to contribute to the project.

"This helped tremendously with our goals," Adams said, adding the Society raised much of the money from sale of lighthouse items such as hats, T-shirts, sweatshirts, bumperstickers, magnets and other items.

"We hope to appeal to anyone. This is the type of fundraiser everyone can get involved with because you can spend as much money as you want, even as little as $1 or $2 for a sticker or a notecard," Adams said.

With the local funds and the grants, Adams said the Society should be able to begin taking bid applications for work, and hopefully begin work in the spring. The system in place, governed largely by SHPO and the Secretary of Interior, is somewhat complex, she said, and works on overlapping phases. First, architectural plans must be submitted, a step already taken, and the plans must be approved at the state level. Then the architect(s) can prepare bid documents, which also require state approval, then work can begin.

The process will begin the following year with the next phase of construction, at the same time construction from the first phase is underway.

Specific requirements must be met, Adams explained, and the project "has to take the lighthouse back to the 1948 condition, according to Secretary of Interior standards." Such efforts, while complex, are tasks that "have lots of people excited because they grew up with a red lighthouse," and many realize the historical importance of the fixture.

"In addition to the fact the Coast Guard still utilizes the lighthouse (for the safety of incoming vessels,) it is also one of the most visible things within our city," Adams said, noting it is an "important landmark," and "one of the most photographed lighthouses in the Midwest."

Background

In 2001, SHPO contacted the City of Charlevoix with the news that the South Pier lighthouse was scheduled to be "excessed" in approximately three years. SHPO also said the City would likely be eligible to obtain ownership of the light if it would work in conjunction with a non-profit which would act as a steward of the project. This led to the partnership between the City and the Historical Society, and the three entities — SHPO, the City and the Society — worked together to devise a plan that would transfer ownership to the City and responsibility for the fundraising, restoration and ongoing maintenance of the lighthouse to the Society.

A committee was established within the Society to oversee the project, and that committee began efforts to obtain an Historic Structures Report to outline the condition of the lighthouse, and provide cost estimations and recommendations for restorative work.

Charlevoix's South Pier lighthouse is slated for restoration work, which Historical Society members hope can begin this spring. The timeline is dependent upon state approval.

The U.S. Coast Guard began excessing its lighthouse inventory in the mid-1990s. In 1997, they announced they were decommissioning more than 75 Michigan lighthouses. The Michigan State Historic Preservation Office then established the Michigan Lighthouse Project which awarded its first lighthouse grants to local governments and non-profits in 2000.

East Park, Ferry Beach 'moving right along'

Work at the Ferry Beach Boat Launch is expected to be complete within the next two weeks.

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Two major projects enhancing Charlevoix's landscape and recreational attraction are ongoing and on-schedule, Street Department Superintendent Pat Elliot said.

Construction at East Park is "moving right along," Elliot said, with crews braving blustery, cold winter weather, currently focusing most attention on indoor work on the Harbor Master building and roofing work on the Performance Pavilion. Elliot said he has been pleased with the various trades at work on the site, and commended the contractors attending the tasks.

"All of the contractors have really come to the table on this, and they've really done a bang-up job," he said, noting especially Hallmark Construction, who "has continued to work despite these poor winter conditions."

Elliot noted three major areas of progress: The Harbor Master building, the Performance Pavilion and Plaza C, which will be the walkway and steps that will lead from Bridge Street (the west side of the Park) down to the water.

Interior work in the Harbor Master building is currently underway, including plumbing, heating and electrical/mechanical work, as well as the stone masonry work expected to make the facility a unique attraction that speaks to Charlevoix's history.

"This masonry design is meant to be reminiscent of the Earl Young design," Elliot said, noting the intricate design and painstaking work of applying it around electical designs in the building.

Installation of the glazed block on the interior of the building, seen mostly in the bathrooms and showers of the building, is also underway, as is the installation of the glass windows that will face the harbor when the building is complete. Roofing work, including waterproofing and preparing for the planted bed areas on the roof is also underway.

The Performance Pavilion is seeing roof work now as well, and crews are constructing the walkway that used to be Mason Street that will lead pedestrians through the park to the water.

Elliot also noted locations of the anticipated front streat and interactive water fountain, and, indicating the aesthetically appealing layout of the park, the extended green areas and the planted areas on top of the Harbor Master building, he said the finished product will be a "unique and environmentally friendly" park.

In another part of town, workers attended to the Ferry Beach Boat Launch project, which will remediate complications for boaters due to lowering water levels. Crews have formed and poured concrete ramps, constructed structural steel supports for ramps, and cut and removed the concrete curb on the existing ramp. That ramp will be extended, giving boaters more room to back their boats into the water.

The project, which was set back due to a hold on state funding, was expected to be complete by Christmas, but "the weather did not cooperate," Elliot said. Some good weather has allowed for some catch-up and work is expected to be complete within the next two weeks.

about their store and its home in the Rose Cottage Garage, they are concerned people may have trouble finding the store. Visitors to the store can enter either from the back parking lot behind the police/fire stations or from the front side of Rose Cottage on Mason Street next to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. It will be "a quick walk up Hoop Skirt Alley from Bridge Street," the new owners said, with plenty of parking and "right in the heart of things."

"We are both excited to begin this new venture," Dianne said.

The first SHPO grant application was approved in late 2002, and the Society began fundraising efforts in 2003, raking in $5,390 by September of that year.

Such efforts have been ongoing since that time, including the City of Charlevoix's application for ownership of the light for the lighthouse in April 2005, a request approved by the Secretary of Interior in March 2006.

Adams said the project is one that is important not only on regard to the state's historical perspective but also, for many, on a personal level.

"People often have a very emotional attachment to lighthouses, and this is something that is a huge part of Charlevoix's history," she said.

The project could, in the end, tack on some additional costs — bringing the total close to $233,000 — if the group decides to do some additional historic elements such as installing brass fittings and other interior work. That step is optional in terms of state standards, Adams said, and will only be pursued of citizens support the idea.

"We will see if there is still a commitment to do the option items. If the community does not support it, we won't do it," she said.

she joked. She and Charlie said they are very excited, and already have a vast amount of gifts waiting for their son at home.

"We're big Michigan fans, so he's got a lot of Michigan stuff," Martin's proud father said, adding he already purchased necessary football equipment for his son.

Sara joked her boy has a better wardrobe than she does, and she intends to get plenty of pictures of him in all of his new clothes.

Other family members of the baby include grandfather Chuck Evans, grandparents Mike and Cathy Hoffman, and godmother, Tiffani Bruch, who is the mother's younger sister.

Charlevoix Area Hospital welcomed the baby and congratulated the parents with a gift basket.

Grim future for Boyne City-Charlevoix Road

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

A town hall meeting with state and local officials regarding the condition of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road confirmed what many Charlevoix County residents already knew. The road is a mess and no help is coming.

The meeting, which was hosted by State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R—Bellaire) came to fruition after he received an onslaught of communiqués from his constituents.

"I have to say I represent a lot of roads. There is a lot of mileage out there in my four counties and I have never received so many comments, so many questions, so many concerns as I have of the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, and that's why I'm here," Elsenheimer said. "The bottom line is I think there is still a need out there to do a couple of things. I think we need to look at how it is that we get to a point where this road can be addressed to bring it to a level that is safe, that we're all comfortable with ... before 2012."

He added, "We're glad that money has been set aside for 2012, we're glad that it's on the table, but I think we all would like to see it moved up because we all know what winters do to roads in this area ... and we all know how difficult it's going to be in the future if things get worse and worse on that road."

Elsenheimer was joined by Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon, managing engineer of the Traverse City Michigan Department of Transportation office Rise Rasch, and David Langhorst, who works out of Gaylord, the MDOT Regional Transportation Planner for the upper 24 counties in northern Michigan. Senator Jason Allen, who was scheduled to attend, canceled for unspecified reasons.

Elsenheimer turned the microphone over to Harmon for a brief overview of the road commission's status.

"We've got ... the road (repair) scheduled for 2012. Charlevoix County gets approximately $391,000 a year for road construction (and) that money has to be shared with the City of Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, and transit can come to the table and have a piece of pie if they want ... and the Village of Boyne Falls."

Harmon said the plan is to use 2011's and 2012's monies on the decaying road, but that the combined $880,000 or so in funding will barely put a dent in the cost.

"At today's cost, to go from Boyne City to (US)31 it's going to cost roughly five million bucks," he said. "If the road commission could have that money for 10 years there still wouldn't be five million dollars."

Elsenheimer added that Charlevoix County is not alone in its concerns.

"What I'm hearing from you Pat (Harmon) is not any different than what I am hearing from other communities, other counties around the state," he said. "Most road commissions statewide have made cuts. There have been layoffs at road commissions statewide. There have been many counties, including my hometown Antrim, going to staggered plowing. It's not just

County and state officials assured residents there is no financial help coming any time soon and lauded a concerned citizens group for working to find solutions to the crumbling Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Umulis hopes for Mrs. Michigan title

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

She's got the evening gown, she's got the swimsuit, she's got the jewelry and she's got the experience. So, Tanya Umulis says she can't give up the tierra yet.

Last year's second runner-up in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant said she wasn't planning on participating in the event's 34th contest in 2008, but, when she looked at the website, read the information of the 2008 contestants, and thought of her fond memories of her involvement in 2006 and 2007, she just couldn't resist.

Umulis has been competing in beauty pageants since her early teens, already having earned a number of titles — Miss Teen Northwest Michigan 1998, Miss Charlevoix 2000, Miss Sunburst Teen 2001, Miss Lake Michigan 2003 and a number of others — and finished with notable success in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant. Named third runner-up her first try in 2002 and second runner-up in 2007, she feels she is ready to let go of some of her anxiety — "You worry so much about what they might ask you and what it's going to be like," she said, — and focus on her efforts to go for the crown.

"I love it, I love every bit of it," she said about participating in such pageants, describing the demanding workout regimen of

New leader for Norwood

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

With 12 years of experience in township government, Tim Boyko was recently named as Norwood Township Supervisor.

Boyko's Dec. 26, 2007 appointment came in the wake of the resignation of former supervisor Wayne Wynkoop in November, 2007.

"I just wanted to offer my service for the short-term to the community," Boyko said. "This is nothing more than doing my civic duty."

He added, "Without predicting the future, which I'm not good at, it was my intent to just act as a true interim, meaning I would not pursue the position in the primary in August."

BOYKO

Tom Mielke, chairman Norwood Township Planning Commission, said Boyko is a good choice.

"They (Norwood Township) had three good candidates that I think would have done an excellent job," he said. "Although I don't think Wayne (Wynkoop) used his position in any manner to further his own cause, the perception was definitely there by many and to that end (having a new supervisor) I think it helps the township and I think it will help the healing process."

Board member Sadie Bartosik, who is out with an injury, was the only member absent from the board during the vote.

Norwood board trustee Denny Way said he feels it was Boyko's years of service in Hayes Township which put him above the other candidates.

"I would have felt comfortable with any one of them," Way said. "I think one of the things that gave him (Boyko) the edge is the fact that he had been re-elected twice and he has a lot of leadership skills."

Meeting offers limited good news for local road

Nearly a quarter of the approximately 40 people who attended the meeting spoke on the issue of the road.

And, while some attendees were disappointed to hear there is no significant impending state or federal aid until at least 2012, some say there were a couple bright spots.

Connie Saltonstall offered a list of proposed solutions from the group Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County, of which she is a member.

The list includes various exploratory options like looking into economic fund grants, a countywide gas tax, tribal grants, making Boyne City-Charlevoix Road a historic trail and even selling bonds to pay for reconstruction.

"Boyne City-Charlevoix Road was built in 1958. The road is 50 years old," she said. "It's a dangerous road and it behooves us to take care of the citizens in our county to get it fixed as soon as we can."

Elsenheimer reinforced the importance of grass roots organizations through an anecdote about a similar group with a similar problem in Gaylord who managed to push their representatives who found a chunk of funding large enough to fund the project.

"It was all locally driven and the project is actually not an MDOT project. It's being constructed by the road commission," Langhorst said.

Elsenheimer added, "We are doing exactly the same kind of thing in Charlevoix. I can't promise you the same kind of results. I can tell you that I will do what I can from the state level, which is exactly what we did in the Gaylord project."

Langhorst said MDOT is merely a funnel for gathering funds from the federal and state government and funneling them back to various agencies. Harmon said not only are his funds severely limited due to state financial woes, but he expects significant cuts over the next few years.

"What Pat (Harmon) is describing is the same boat MDOT is in," Rasch said. "Trying to fund (projects) . with dwindling federal funds and dwindling funds from the state."

Potential funding, which may be more trouble than it is worth according to officials, includes federal earmarks, or funding requests attached to other bills which generally are paid out over time and require 20 percent matching funds. Charlevoix would need to obtain nearly $1 million in matching grants to qualify for $4 million needed in today's dollars, if that federal funding was even made available; making Boyne City-Charlevoix Road into a state trunkline is not likely to happen and officials said it would even further delay the timetable for reconstruction due to much higher costs of bringing the road up to trunkline standards.

Michigan State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Bellaire) spoka to a crowd of approximately 40 during a town hall meeting on the condition of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road on Tuesday, Jan. 8.

Members of the concerned citizens group said they will continue to rally their representatives and work to find funding for the project.

Congressman Bart Stupak offered similar news during his visit Jan. 10. See page 9 for coverag of that story.

Norwood Township board selects new supervisor

Boyko said he would like to work on the township's as of yet unfinished master plan and advocate for open government.

"People will see that we can operate not only fully compliant with the letter of the law, but with the intent of the law," he said. "I think that will go a long way in possibly resolving some of the negative feelings in the community."

Way said he has had both Wynkoop opponents and supporters weigh in on the new supervisor.

"I've had actually a number of people who have expressed their happiness that we chose him," Way said. "People feel like he will step up and bring the township back together and possibly get some old issues behind us and move on to new things."

Boyko stressed that he is only one man, and that he is part of a team.

"There are many parts to local government and I've asked for everyone's help," he said. "Most people have been encouraging. They were glad to have an opportunity to start fresh and somewhat turn the page."

He added, "I think the key to looking forward is to install confidence in the local government. My goal is to have diversity in all the appointments that can be made by the supervisor."

Way, too, said he is eager to get to work on township business and hopes the change in leadership will help focus attention on getting things done.

"We've got some roads that need attention and it's rather hard to focus when the past supervisor had so much on his plate," Way said. "I look forward to this fresh start. I think he's (Boyko) going to be able to lead us in the area of doing people's business rather than wallowing in past issues."

He added, "I think, in general, the community is going to rally behind him and rally behind the board. I think a lot of people didn't have a problem with board members necessarily, but took out their frustration on the board as a whole because of the supervisor."

The Towel Cries: 'Clean coal to the rescue'

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

As a gratuitous whiner from way back, I was a bit peeved by a lecturer who, a couple years ago, spoke on the ills of complaining without also suggesting a solution—Though I should point out that Mr. Ph.D. didn't give even one example of what to do about all the complaining that goes on, but what do I know?

Fast forward to a couple months ago (which is actually going in reverse from here, but not really if you were still thinking of the thing I was talking about from a couple years ago. If you're still following this you might want to go get some little chocolate donuts and O.J. and put on some Pink Floyd) when I began receiving press releases from a concerned citizens group trying to prevent seven coal-fired power plants from being built in Michigan.

'Cause if it's one thing Michigan doesn't need, it's economic stimulus, but I digress (and I've been doing a pretty fantastic job of digressing), by which I mean setting aside extra time to brood and cultivate a couple of blue ribbon ulcers on my duodenum.

Then, during midday Pepto' and Tums, I had a greeny tell me they were against wind turbines, which was, to quote Kinison, like "Christians against Christ."

How could they be against coal, or nuclear for that matter? France gets 80 percent of its electricity from nuclear, while we rely on atomic energy for only 19 percent with coal making up 60 percent and natural gas, wind and solar rounding out the final 21 percent.

In all seriousness, though I'm pretty sure all hope of that went out with the munchies reference, we have the opportunity to produce clean, sustainable energy, and not only that, we have the power to pull Michigan's economy out of its fiscal nosedive.

I'm with the people who say coal-fired plants are filthy because they were grandfathered in several decades ago before more stringent air quality regulations were imposed, and that's why I propose that we mandate and implement clean-burning coal technology until we can use 100 percent nuclear; make trains the mainstay of travel and shipping in the U.S.—clean air, more jobs and getting off the Arabian teat are just a few good reasons to do so.

And before you start screaming "Oxymoron! Oxymoron! Gohs-a-moron!" or call the commissioner to light up the Gore Signal, yes coal is dirty, unless it is burned in a closed loop process wherein the ash and Co2 are reclaimed before having a a chance to pollute.

Not only do we have an estimated 300 to 1,000 years worth of coal under American soil, the new clean-burning coal technology is estimated to produce near zero emissions.

And don't think the efficient and environmentally friendly train is a thing of the past; we didn't stop using trains because they don't work, but because there was a time when we changed over to cars and trucks because there was a time when oil was both cheap and bountiful.

"These green goblins of armchair environmentalism will be the first to tell you we have four percent of the population and produce 25 percent of the pollution, but instead of pressuring legislators to mandate clean-burning coal regulation, they are working to stop the plants from being built at all. They favor anecdotal projections on solar and wind energy which are not yet viable in lieu of coal power which, even if not completely innocuous, would be vastly cleaner than current means.

Look, simply eating granola, bringing your own bag to the grocery store and wearing moccasins hand sewn by a Cantonese third-grader before they are shipped on a diesel-powered scow that gets three knots per gallon and slapping a "Go Green!" bumper sticker to your V8 SUV does not an environmentalist make.

Don't get me wrong, I'm no friend to the environment. I burn Styrofoam; I don't recycle glass; I throw batteries in the trash knowing they could form a toxic landfill soup that will transform woodland creatures into wisecracking mutants with superhuman strength that eventually land their own animated TV series and children's clothing line.

When the plastics industry says "reduce, reuse, recycle" I say "burn baby burn"; When the grocery clerk asks "paper or plastic?" I say "baby seal skins."

I'm sure we could learn much from those liberal tree-huggers who use only wind, solar or donkey-driven turnstile electrical generators to power their patchouli extractors—listen up you hawks set on invading Iran, Libya and Outer Mongolia: We need that oil for tanks, warships and bombers.

Ear to the Ground asks: Where has all the funding gone?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Reading both local and national news I am reminded of the rap-like song from "The Music Man." "We got trouble, Right here in River City With a capital 'T.'"

There is no money to repair the Charlevoix-Boyne City road, even though it certainly needs repair. There isn't enough money to clear snow on weekends on some of our local roads. Bridges across the nation seem to be in need of at least inspection if not repair. And just last week it was announced an enormous, 150-year-old charity hospital in Atlanta, Georgia might have to close its doors because counties around Atlanta, which benefit from its services, are unwilling to provide any funds to support it. Other charity hospitals are in similar difficulty.

What do all those concerns and many more besides have in common? They are the product of the unavailability or the misdirection of public funds, tax moneys that are supposed to provide a suitable infrastructure and make civilized living possible for our citizens.

We have been sold a bill of goods, and have come to believe that taxes are bad. Calls to reduce taxes are sufficiently popular to get almost anyone elected to high public office. And since it is often a few years before the lack of funds for necessary public works and services becomes critical, those people most vocal in promoting reduced taxes can find other events to blame for the failure.

The idea that "tax and spend" is a bad thing has been attached to liberal political positions. Try this as a new thought: Tax and spend is what a democratic (small "d") government is SUPPOSED to do. The government is not a business. It does not manufacture anything that can be sold at a profit, except for collectable coins: A democratic (small "d") government's source of funds to support the general welfare (roads, snow removal, safe bridges, health services for those in need, etc.) is the taxes paid by its citizens. With insufficient funds available, those local and national services must be eliminated or reduced. It hardly requires saying that fraud and waste must be kept to a minimum. But such misuse of funds is hardly reason to abandon the basic needs.

It is unlikely that private entrepreneurs will come forward with the money for roads, snow removal and bridges, although they might help with the hospitals. Roads and bridges could all be supported by tolls, collected from any one traveling on them, and I do understand that there is an economic theory suggesting such arrangements are the best way to operate a society. Hospitals could all be operated for profit and those who cannot pay could die in the streets, an idea supported by the same sort of economic theory. Those who need snow removal on their piece of the public road could be forced to pay for it each time it is needed. We certainly have enough privately owned snow removal equipment.

As interesting to economic theorists as the ideas in the previous paragraph might be, they do not seem to me to constitute a successful democracy. The appropriate argument is not about whether taxes ought to be raised or lowered, it is about what the taxes are to be spent for: HOW to rebuild our failing infrastructure and troubled health-care system is a good question. Whether to rebuild them with taxes is a fruitless question.

Tax and Spend is what a government of the people is supposed to do. It is not a bad idea promoted by one political party and opposed by another. If you really want only private toll roads, private for profit hospitals only, privately built and maintained bridges, and privately financed snow removal, vote for Ron Paul. He will surely carry us in that direction. If you think we can do better than that, give up the idea that taxes are a bad thing...

Mrs. Charlevoix County seeks Mrs. Michigan crown running five miles a day, striving for the right diet, keeping up on all current events, and trying to prepare for potential interview questions.

"I love competition and people pushing me. I find myself so stressed I wake myself up at night thinking about it all," she said. "I love losing sleep over it, having my muscles ache and the whole thing. This event is perfect for me."

With all of her pageant experience, Umulis has also learned to recognize what she enjoys about this particular pageant. The Mrs. Michigan America pageant invites married women of many statures, from the veterinarian with nine children to the newly wed going to school full time, to compete for a crown they all believe in.

"This isn't about who has the perfect family and the perfect marriage and the perfect house and the perfect job. It's about being able to balance what is on your own plate, no matter what it is," she said. "You get people from all across the board."

Umulis is currently balancing a fulltime job as a retail manager and sales consultant in downtown Charlevoix, a full load at Central Michigan University as she seeks a degree in elementary education, and caring for her husband, Matthew, and their two dogs, Dora and Rocco. She also loves to cook, fish and take care of things at home.

Umulis also strives to be active in the community, volunteering whenever she can for various events in Charlevoix and doing what she can to support her two "platform" causes: preventing abuse and neglect of children, and preventing abuse and neglect of animals. While the Mrs. Michigan America pageant does not require contestants to choose a platform cause as many pageants do — Umulis said organizers consider contestants to have plenty on their plates with careers and families and accept volunteer efforts in whatever arenas possible — but she would like to get on board with national organizations involved in preventing such abuse and neglect if she earns the crown.

"Living in a small area like Charlevoix, I don't have the opportunity to walk down the street and do something directly for a national abuse organization. But if I held that title, I'd like to be able to bring such opportunities to Charlevoix," she said.

Umulis moved to the Charlevoix area when she was 10 years old, and has since enjoyed strong support from the community in her efforts to seek pageant titles. She said her crown from 2000, when she was named Miss Charlevoix, was earned largely through the support of area businesses. While seeking other titles, including Mrs. Michigan, she also needs and appreciates the local support.

"I could never do this without the generosity of busniess owners in this town. Charlevoix has always supported me," she said.

Despite the common perception that pageants bring out the cattiness in contestants, along with declarations of wanting world peace, Umulis said this pageant, while still competitive, instills camaraderie and mutual respect among contestants.

"When you get to this level, you're among women who have invested so much time and money you would assume the reasons behind it are pure. I am proud to be in a room with any of them, and humbled to be with women who have accomplished so much," she said.

Having been given the honorary title of Mrs. Charlevoix County, Umulis will represent Charlevoix in the Mrs. Michigan America Pageant to be held in Grand Rapids in March. The pageant is the only nationally televised pageant for married women and will air multiple times on Women's Entertainment Network. Knowing her strengths and weaknesses in competition, Umulis said she is ready to earn her title and advance to that national level.

"I want to represent women across the state, to spread the message of home and the message to volunteer," she said.

LETTERS to the editor

BETTER SPORTS COVERAGE NEEDED

Editor:

It was disappointing to us and many other Rayder sport fans when we checked out the Courier's TOP SPORTS MOMENTS OF 2007 and found nothing regarding the championship CHS volleyball team. It wasn't the first time the Courier slighted the team and the individuals that have won back-to-back conference championships (32-0 record the last two years in league play.) In addition, they had players receive All Conference, All District, All Region and All State recognition. The fact that the Petoskey News-Review and its outstanding sports department did cover the CHS volleyball with pictures and excellent articles, does not relieve the Courier from their responsibility of sharing with its readers the "success story" regarding the 2007 volleyball program.

Through the years we have watched volleyball played at many levels (Olympics, professional, college and high school.) The Rayder ladies played at a high level, have excellent coaches, and deserve the credit and recognition that the Courier should give them. After all, not everyone takes the Petoskey News-Review and the many former community residents and alumni that subscribe to the Courier may have no idea what accomplishments were achieved by their hometown volleyball team.

When the All Conference selections were released, the Courier led off the story with the girls from Boyne City that made the team. The Charlevoix girls (Murphy Gillespie, Desi Faust, and Aubrey Way were first-teamers and Michelle Burke, Shauna Spencley and Tammy Potter received Honorable Mention) were buried in the article elsewhere. Nothing was ever mentioned about the all Regional team (Way and Gillespie) and when the All State team was chosen two (Gillespie and Way) were chosen, yet, the Courier's one-line story mentioned only one of the girls.

Rayder pride is something that sets CHS athletic teams and players apart from all the rest. Tradition is important for all ages in our town. It's too bad that the Courier doesn't appear to recognize this. We had a granddaughter that played volleyball. We traveled throughout the North watching them play and became close friends of the many parents, fans and players and they represented our town and school in outstanding fashion.

To not recognize them for their accomplishments in 2007 must have been an oversight. The Courier has become much improved in the past few years but recognition was missing while this team earned and deserved better and Title IX supposedly assures it. It was a great season and congratulations go to the players, coaches and parents, for CHS volleyball was indeed a 2007 Charlevoix Top Sports Happening.

VOTE FOR MCCAIN

Editor,

The voters who will be (did go) going to the polls on Tuesday, January 15, 2008. I want to thank you for your participation to make a change for all the people of this country.

In 2000 the majority of voters including myself said we wanted Sen. John McCain. He was the right person to be the republican nominee. I believe with what is happening in the world today all of us should vote for the same person we thought then to be our nominee and that is Sen. John McCain of Arizona.

Please help me to send a person that would make a difference in Washington, that person being Sen. John McCain.

Martha married Steve Paterka on June 16, 1949. They raised four children: twin sons Steve Jr. and Charles ("Chuck"), and daughters Sally and Diane. Martha was a devoted wife and mother, and took tremendous pleasure in serving others through the gifts of her hands. Her love for family, neighbors and friends was evidenced by her homemade pies and breads, pine needle baskets and crocheted rugs. Martha and her husband Steve enjoyed a long happy life together gardening, camping and traveling. Steve preceded her in death in 1985.

She is survived by her sons Steve (Kathleen) Paterka of Charlevoix, Chuck (Judy) Paterka of Ann Arbor, daughter Sally (Victor) Malkowicz of Boyne Falls, daughter Diane Roberts of East Jordan; grandchildren Stanley (Renee) Malkowicz; Abigail (Patrick) Carter; Kenny (Mary) Roberts; Lorraine, David, Jimmy, and Margie Roberts; a niece Susan Merrill, and numerous great and great-great grandchildren.

She was predeceased by her brother Charles Svoboda, sister-in-law Jane Svoboda, nephew Harold Svoboda, son-in-law Bob Roberts, and grandson Bobby Roberts.

Martha was a member of St. Mary Church and St. Mary Rosary Altar Society. A humble, deeply devout woman with a loving heart and arms always ready to give a hug, Martha will be deeply missed.

Visitation was held at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix on Tuesday, Jan. 1, 2008. The Rosary was recited at 7 p.m. The Rite of Christian Burial was celebrated at St. Mary Church, Charlevoix Wednesday, Jan. 2, 2008, with the Rev. Jerry Hunko and Rev. James Gardiner co-celebrating.

Stupak offers glimmer of hope for Charlevoix road fix

BY FRED GRAY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Congressman Bart Stupak on Thursday offered a glimmer of hope for federal assistance to Charlevoix citizens seeking funds to reconstruct the 17-mile long Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

"We might be able to do something under 'safety,'" Stupak told the News-Review, before addressing nearly 100 people at a town hall meeting in the Charlevoix Public Library.

"They tell me there's been 400 accidents in four years out there. I would make an argument then for safety, so you might be able to get an annual appropriation," he said.

He said he might also be able to fund part of the project through the U.S. highway bill that's scheduled for renewal in 2010.

"I would need the road commission to say it's a priority. Other than that, the federal government is not about to come in and start bailing out local roads," Stupak said, adding that the county could vote a county-wide millage for roads or bond for the project, expected to cost $4 to $5 million.

He said Menominee and Dickinson counties in the Upper Peninsula have passed millages that bring in several million dollars annually for roads.

County road commissioner Pat Harmon thanked Stupak on behalf of the county and said he will provide information that he had requested about the road.

Stupak, D-Menominee, met with representatives of the "Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County," including Jerry Matelski and Connie Saltonstall, a former county commissioner.

The group, which met with state Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer on Tuesday, has scheduled a meeting for 9-11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 12, at the Boyne City public library to discuss what they have learned from the Tuesday and Thursday meetings.

> "I would need the road commission to say it's a priority."
> Bart Stupak
> U.S. CONGRESSMAN

Stupak listed a number of bills enacted by House Democrats, who have sought with varying success to pass the Senate and have been signed into law by President Bush.

He said he expected that the United States would not disengage from Iraq until the next president of the United States takes office.

He said that the "surge" – the additional 30,000 troops Bush sent to Iraq last year – was not working, because it had not met the 18 benchmarks it was supposed to meet.

"The surge will never work because they're not doing the reconciliation in the government, even something as simple as oil — how they're going to split the oil proceeds between the different groups, or ending corruption, or setting up paramilitary groups."

"If you bring all these people (U.S. troops) in and not do the political part, it's not going to work," he said.

"How long are we going to be there? Until we get a new president. We can't get such a bill through the Senate and if we did, it would certainly be vetoed. And I'm concerned that candidates running for president on both sides say we're going to have some combat troops in Iraq, even when they're there (in office). And I just think that's wrong.

"I didn't vote for the war to begin with. I'll do everything I can to support the troops; but I think it's in our best interests to get out of Iraq, sooner better than later," he said to a round of applause.

School board vacancies

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Voters could decide May 6 who fills two seats on the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education.

The filing deadline for potential candidates to the office is 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 13.

"I haven't made that decision yet," said 20-year board member Larry Levengood when asked if he will run for yet another term. "I haven't really given any thought to it."

Levengood said the most fulfilling part of the job has been to see students come in and then go on to become productive adults.

"There are tons of challenges and lots of frustrations in terms of things you want to accomplish," he said. "There are many barriers, obviously in recent years the funding issues have become very significant."

His advice to those interested in running: "Buck up and be prepared for some challenges, but still go in with a lot of enthusiasm and ideals."

"Fight for what you believe in," Levengood added.

Board member Diane Kilkenny declined to comment except to state in an e-mail, "I am still weighing my options and will get back to you as soon as a decision is reached."

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik said he feels the current board is doing a wonderful job, but said new members are always welcome.

"There's not a specific quality we're looking for, but in a prefect world, obviously, we are looking for someone who has passion for kids and education and someone who has the time to make the commitment," he said. "The four major areas in which board members are involved, I personally think, are personnel, budget, hiring and long term planning."

He added, "the educational process, not just here, but all over the state of Michigan, is dealing with financial issues and those challenges that come with it. But, the key is we need to focus on the students first."

Interested parties must submit a nominating petition or a $100 fee to the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office.

For more information, call the superintendent's office at 547-3200 or the county clerk at 547-7200.

Filing deadline for candidates is 4 p.m. Feb. 13

Area law enforcement gets training from Russia

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Moscow native and 30-year American citizen Lee Shaykhet instructs various law enforcement officials during self-defense classes at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office on Friday, Jan. 11. Here Shaykhet, inventor of the painZmethod of commonsense defense tactics demonstrates the safe, effective way to control and search a subject, played by Sheriff Deputy Ben Speigl.

Roundhouse kicks and karate chops may make good TV, but Lee Shaykhet, creator of the painZmethod of self-defense, said real dangers require real solutions.

Nearly three dozen law enforcement personnel across Charlevoix County attended training sessions in Shaykhet's Russian method of what he calls "quick closure" to learn those real solutions.

"These are simple, practical applications that I designed to help the officer control people who want to fight him without getting the officer hurt, without getting the subject damaged in any shape or form by giving them the capability of controlling them right away," Shaykhet said. "If the officers can control the situation, they don't have to stand there and fight because people get hurt from fighting."

Born in the former Soviet Union, the 52-year-old Shaykhet began his career as a self-defense instructor by teaching Russian military units to be more efficient fighters before he risked life and limb to move to the U.S. in 1979 during the height of the Cold War.

"The kinds of things I do are not based on muscle at all. You can have a small female deputy with a big guy who is out of control and just like that the situation is under control," Shaykhet said. "It works based on leverage, based on your positioning, it works with basic mechanical principles."

He added, "It looks professional and it also sends the message that we are not here to hurt, we are just doing our jobs."

To meet him on the street one might not think the trim, 5'8" tall Shaykhet of average physical stature to be a lethal human weapon.

Dressed in green army fatigues, the jovial gentleman walked officers through each move, asking them if they understood and commanding them to affirm.

"We try to talk to people and get them to comply, which is not always possible when we have people who are intoxicated, when we have people who are mental patients, when we have people who are high on drugs," he said. "This system allows the officer to control the subject immediately."

Through a rich Russian accent and concise English, the Moscow native continually stressed to the officers the idea that his method is about maintaining control, not escalating a bad situation.

While teaching how to properly handcuff and search a subject, Shaykhet held officer Ben Speigl, playing a rowdy suspect, to the wall and showed how to calmly and firmly stay in control of the situation.

Shaykhet instructed officers to use their elbows, not their fists, to drive an unruly perpetrator back into submission.

"Remember, one per customer," he said while swinging his elbow into the air to demonstrate the move. "We don't want to hurt them, just to maintain control."

Shaykhet said more and more police departments are moving toward this type of training because some traditional methods, such as martial arts, are insufficient or impractical.

"Martial arts are very good from many standpoints, but they require a lot of practice. They require a lot of involvement," he said. "They require somebody to go home and practice ... and people, as a matter of fact, are normally not capable of doing that."

He added, "Very complicated things fall apart in practical applications because you can't get the bad guy to stand still for a half an hour so you can do 20 perfect steps — I would call that wishful thinking."

According to Shaykhet, because so many criminals carry their own handcuff key at all times, and because prison is a place where criminals can hone their skills, it is important for officers to follow procedures which significantly reduce the chance for a mishap.

"The bad guy goes to prison and he's practicing so he knows how to grab the officer's weapon and kill him," he said. "Some people say people go to prison, they get rehabilitated and unfortunately you should think of prison as more like a gladiator school. These people have all day to themselves and they pump iron to get stronger and they practice how they are going to assault the officer and be a better criminal."

Shaykhet added, "It's scary, but it's true."

The 30-plus year veteran instructor said he was amazed how complicated and ineffective some American law enforcement tactics were when he emigrated from Russia.

County seeks input for Future Land Use Plan

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

The six- to eight-month process of developing a new Future Land Use Plan for Charlevoix County would be pointless, County Planner Larry Sullivan said, without input from the public.

"If a plan doesn't have the backing and support of the public, it's just a report that will sit on a shelf somewhere and never get used," Sullivan said.

That is why the County Planning Commission has been and will continue taking steps to incorporate public input into their efforts to develop a new plan for the county, an effort that began nearly five years ago when the commission began developing a county Vision Statement. Sullivan said opportunity for input will continue throughout all stages of the process, which is intended to produce a succinct, useful plan that outlines the future of Charlevoix County in a meaningful way.

"We are truly hoping for a tremendous amount of public involvement. A plan written in a dark closet isn't going to be effective," he said.

A series of meetings, or "vision sessions," held in the fall of 2002, in addition to compilation of online, written and verbal input from the community, led to the development of an accepted county vision statement, which will form the foundation of the new plan. Because it has been some time since that statement was created, an online survey was offered to "ensure the statement is still valid," Sullivan said. Responses were gathered from mid-November to December, and the Planning Commission and Planning Department Staff will review the responses to determine if any changes are warranted.

"If we're not on the right path at that point, there is no sense in moving forward (without adjusting the statement.) We want everyone on the same page and in the same mindset before we continue," Sullivan said.

For further information or questions contact the Charlevoix County Planning Department at 547-7234 or via email at planning@charlevoixcounty.org.

"The process has and will be demanding for the commission, Sullivan added, but involving the public has been a priority for the board since efforts began. There are state requirements in terms of allowing public input before enacting such a land use plan, but the commission decided to incorporate public input much earlier than required, and more frequently, to ensure public support of decisions made.

Charlevoix County's old plan was more than 30 years old — "it was very dated," Sullivan said — so the group decided to develop an entirely new document, one Commission members hope will be user-friendly. Sullivan said short "snippet" sections will be included with demographics, population information and other county facts, and the entire document will "hopefully" be only 20 to 40 pages long.

"We want this to be something people will pick up, read and use. You can't drop a 50 or 100 page document on someone and expect them to read it," he said.

The commission will hold a special meeting Jan. 22 to discuss the findings from the survey, which brought in a "substantial" amount of input, Sullivan said. The group is also working to develop goals, objectives and policies for the plan to "guide our efforts." Some policies and goals will "morph" old language and ideas with new, and once they are created they will be made available to the public for input.

"We'll have that up online and do a mailing to neighboring governmental agencies, bodies within the county, and organizations and service clubs to get input," Sullivan said.

By the end of February, Sullivan expects to have a complete rough draft of the plan, which will also be made available to the public for review. Following input, the commission will incorporate changes as necessary, and send another draft to appropriate governmental bodies. A public hearing will be the next step, again inviting community involvement, and further changes will be incorporated if necessary. Then the plan will be presented to the County Board of Commissioners for final approval. Sullivan said he expects that to take place approximately eight months from now.

"We want to work with the community as much as possible and pose the question to them, 'Do you think the county is doing what it should be doing?' We think it is good to incorporate those opinions as one of our tools (in the process,)" he said.

Minor injuries in snomobile area accident

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a Personal Injury Accident on the Chandler Hill Snowmobile Trail on Dec. 29, 2007. The accident occurred on Harmon Road, near Springbrook Road in Melrose Township.

Kimberly Ann Livingston, 26, of Commerce, Mich. was riding her snowmobile up a hill when she went head on with another snowmobile. Adam J. Wannamacher of Cloverdale, Ohio, drove the other snowmobile. Allied EMS Service transported Livingston to Northern Michigan Hospital where she was treated for her wrist injury. The Melrose Township First Responders assisted the Sheriff's Office.

Hey Jane!

M.J. Cargill

Hey Jane!

My husband is very sick and we want to contact a grandson we have not seen in 20 years. This is a sad story because at one time we saw him almost weekly until he was 7 years old. But his parents (our son) had an ugly divorce and his mother moved with him to another state. Along with his father we lost all of our rights to keep in contact. Now we want to see him to let him know how much we love him. The BIG problem is our own son. He is against us making contact. He was badly hurt by this boy's mother and he doesn't want us to bring up the old issues. What do you think, should we ignore our son's feelings or go with our own? Torn up

Dear Torn Up

Go with your own! 20 years is a long time to work on issues and your own son's time is up. Contact your grandson and let him know your love him. Don't waste another minute. Give him a hug for all the empty armed grandparents out there who have also been victims in divorce wars.

Good Luck

Jane

"I think the sheriff's office is always looking for cutting edge procedures for any kind of crisis we have to deal with," he said. "I think all police officers would prefer, if they get into a situation where they have to take somebody in to custody, that no one is in harm's way and this seems to be a great approach to that."

Lasater added, "I've talked to several officers and one thing they all indicated that was appealing to them was it is easy to remember what to do in a crisis situation with adrenaline flowing. It is an easy procedure to recall."

A Moscow University graduate, Shaykhet has taught thousands of officers from states, including Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, Florida and countries including Canada and teaches civilian classes to both adults and children and has even partnered with a security group to implement a training program for children to protect themselves from pedophiles, bullies and other would-be assailants.

Search for two new city employees narrows

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

The search continues for two new City employees — an Airport Manager and a Human Resources Assistant — and City Manager Rob Straebel said the task of narrowing the field of candidates is underway.

Having decided earlier this fall to create the two part-time positions, Council first advised Straebel to begin advertising for an airport manager in November. The position was one that existed in the past but had been eliminated due to budget constraints and other issues, but Council decided the time had come to fill it again. A total of 68 applications were submitted for the part-time position, which offers a pay rate of $25 to $30 per hour based on qualifications and experience.

Straebel said he and other city employees narrowed the field of candidates to nine, and expect to begin interviews this week. He hopes to have a hiring decision made by the end of this week or early next week.

Advertising for the Human Resources Assistant came about two weeks later due to additional discussion by the council, and it was agreed in early December to seek a part-time assistant for a similar base pay — $25 to $30 per hour— with a yearly review. Council members, and City employees, agreed the position may not be necessary after the development of policies and job descriptions and other priority duties are handled; however it may continue to be necessary to handle other tasks. As of last week, Straebel had received 47 applications, and the deadline is Jan. 18.

In other news:

- Straebel said work on the 2008-2009 budget has begun internally, and, like many other municipalities in the state, Charlevoix will be facing a crunch in the upcoming year.

"Revenues are stagnating, so we'll have a hard time maintaining expenses as they are. We'll have to make some major cuts to all departments, and it will be a challenging process," he said.

- He expects a special meeting with Council to be held later in the month to begin discussing the budget in more detail.
- Council made necessary appointments to city boards, which were approved as follows:
- Ralph Duan to the Board of Review
- Council members Gabe Campbell and Greg Stevens to the Board of Review
- Gary Anderson, Patricia Miller, and Shirley Gibson to the Zoning Board of Appeals
- June Cross as Planning Commissioner on the Zoning Board of Appeals
- Patricia Blanchard to the Downtown Development Authority
- Marie Niswander to the Housing Commission
- Dan Buday and Bryan Vollmer to the Planning Commission
- Conrad "Bud" Klooster, Jr. to the Compensation Commission.

Northern Michigan couple embraces adventure

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Many people with an itch to travel, a yearning for adventure, a desire to chase a dream, think about the places they'd like to go or risks they'd like to take. For many, those risks seem too great, and those dreams never become reality.

Not so for Dick and Gaila Mallery.

"People think we're bad influences on each other because we don't do things conventionally," Gaila said, sharing the story of the decision she and Dick made three years into their marriage to sell their belongings, pack up and travel the country for a year.

"That turned into seven and a half years. We've always had that wandering bug," she said.

The two have stories most only dream of, having spent nearly eight years cruising the country, getting short-term jobs when they ran out of money, and, once their traveling slowed, settling in Northern Michigan and starting a business that appealed to their interests in outdoors: The Dick E. Bird News, a bi-monthly newspaper that explores "nature in your backyard and beyond" with information on topics such as birdfeednig, squirrel self-defense, hiking, travel, humor and more. Dick's interest in outdoors has also led to the publication of two books, and a third self-published book written with Gaila. The two work side-by-side to publish the newspaper, published in Northern Michigan for more than 20 years, and enjoy the freedom self employment offers.

And what have they done with that freedom? Continued to make others think they are crazy.

In 1997, while on a family vacation, Dick and Gaila, along with then nine-year-old daughter Maggie, were near the Continental Divide and began talking about how, years before, Dick's father had been in the same spot, and how "if you were to be traveling along the Divide, you'd cross the road right here," he said.

That, Gaila said, "got the ball rolling."

"Dick had been talking about hiking the Continental Divide for a lot of years, and I really pushed him to do it," Gaila said, adding Dick would stop and ask, "Am I being realistic? Am I being irresponsible?"

She said she told him to go for it, because "life is too short."

Dick said he had in fact been thinking about making the trek for more than 30 years, having gotten interested in the travels of another hiker, a man named Eric Ryback, who made the trip shortly after Dick joined the service.

With some savings from the publication of his two published books, the ability to take their business on the road, and some serious planning, Dick got his chance, partnering with Gaila and Maggie, and started his journey in April 1999. The trio took a family picture at Mile Marker 0 in Annalope Wells, New Mexico, the starting point of the trip, and set off, Dick on foot through the "back country," and Gaila and Maggie in a recreational vehicle, pulling a car behind, on the road planning to meet Dick at checkpoints to refuel him with food, water, and other necessities along the way. It turned out, they said, to be quite an adventure for all of them.

"We both experienced what I like to call 'trail magic,' meeting some really wonderful people along the way that really helped to make it all happen," he said.

A flat tire, a lack of water, a run-in with bears, late mail ... the trip included a number of rough spots, but the Mallerys enjoyed the experience, they said.

"It was just so incredible," Gaila said, noting one of the most important parts, for her, was the bonding experience between family.

"My parents started the trip with us (in an RV driving ahead of us) and were just going to stay a few weeks to make sure I knew what I was doing," she said. "They left once, then turned around made the whole trip with

Travel talks begin at library

First, hiking 3,800 miles along the Continental Divide. Next, sharing the "spirit of Shackelton" while treking through Antartica. Then Mexico and Germany ...

These are the travels visitors to Charlevoix Public Library get to embark on during the Travel and Adventure series that started last week. Travelers visit the library at 7 p.m. Tuesday nights to talk about their experiences, show pictures and share tales.

Nearly 40 people attended the first talk of the series, given by Dick Mallery of Acme, Mich. who talked about his hike along the Continental Divide, a trip he made in 1999. His stories of equipment failure, help from other people and interesting situations brought soft sighs, large smiles, wide eyes and bouts of laughter from the audience.

"This guy with a ZZ Top beard told me to go back inside and tell the bartender my credit was good and order whatever food I wanted," he told the audience, sharing the story of one of his many stops on the journey, in a small town with one restaurant

SPORTS reviewing the action

Rayders rebound from first loss, undefeated in league

BY ANDY SNEODON
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS EDITOR

Charlevoix's Austin Wilhelm (25) works the ball up the court in the Rayders' 56-55 loss to Petoskey last week. Petoskey's Dustin Dibble follows Wilhelm.

Nobody likes to lose and, frankly, with the things have gone around the Charlevoix High School boys' basketball program for a decade, it's an unfamiliar feeling.

And in the long run, it's not what happens in early January that really matters, anyway.

The Rayders dropped their first game of the season Tuesday, a 56-55 non-conference heartbreaker to rival Petoskey in their home gym which ended Charlevoix's dreams of a perfect 20-0 regular season.

But any residual from that game was washed away Thursday when the Rayders rebounded for a 71-52 Lake Michigan Conference victory at Elk Rapids.

And with several players returning from injuries for the game against the Elks, coach Keith Haske and his team are clearly focused on what's ahead, not what's behind.

"We're back at full strength and that helps because it gives us all that depth that we started the year with," he said Thursday.

Nate LaBlance, held to seven points in the loss to Petoskey, scored a game-high 19 to lead the Rayders, as they remained perfect in the Lake Michigan at 5-0. They are 8-1 overall and were ranked No. 1 in the Class C state poll by the Detroit Free Press and the Detroit News, and No. 5 by the Associated Press, entering the Petoskey game.

The Rayders play host to Elk Rapids on Wednesday and go to Harbor Springs on Friday. Both are league games. The Rayders hold a two-game lead in the league standings over East Jordan, Traverse City St. Francis and Kalkaska.

Justin Friske added 15 points and Weston Bryan had 10 against the Elks, while Thomas Parrish dished out five assist. Brock Yenglin had six rebounds and four blocks. Zac Dreffs scored 17 points to lead Elk Rapids, 3-5, 2-3.

The Rayders led, 34-32, at halftime, then outscored the Elks in the third quarter, 21-5.

"Defensively we really stepped it up," Haske said. "We probably played one of our better halves defensively."

Against Petoskey, the Rayders led, 48-41, with under five minutes remaining before the Northmen surged to take a 50-48 lead on a Steve Behan 3-pointer with 3 minutes, 24 seconds remaining.

LaBlance answered with a triple to put Charlevoix back in front, 51-48, and the see-saw race to the final buzzer was on.

Tim Bellmer scored on a short baseline jumper with 12.3 seconds left to put Petoskey up 56-55. Charlevoix had one final chance at a last shot, but guard Cliff Jones' jumper hit the rim and bounced away.

"You'd like to win all the close ones and the reality is you don't," Haske said after the game. "We talked about learning from the game and getting better. It's real tough to go undefeated. You start carrying that monkey on your back and the silver lining is it's OK, it wasn't a league game and you hate to lose to Petoskey . . . they found a way to win, so hats off to them."

Corey Gotshall scored 18 points, Friske had 10, and Jones added nine to lead the Rayders. Petoskey senior Dustin Dibble, who played as a freshman and a sophomore at Charlevoix before transferring, scored 20 points to lead Petoskey, while Behan finished with 14.

Charlevoix jumped to a 13-0 first-quarter lead before the Northmen chipped away and took their first lead, 21-19, with under two minutes left in the first half. The game remained relatively tight the rest of the way with the Northmen's largest lead, six points, 34-28, coming midway through the third quarter. The Rayders then pulled in front by seven, 48-41, on a Jones steal-and-layup with 4:53 to play.

Petoskey won the JV game, 71-40. Bill Ivan and Casy Helstrom scored eight points each for the Rayders. Clayton Mitchell scored 16 points to lead the Rayder JV to a 54-42 win over Elk Rapids. Alex Foster and Tyler Jones added eight points apiece.

Petoskey defeated the Rayders in the freshman game, 63-43. Boog Nitchman had nine points for Charlevoix.

Lady Rayder action

Back to work, and back to normal for the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team.

The Rayders disposed of St. Ignace, 53-38, in a non-league game, and Elk Rapids, 56-39, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest last week to improve to 10-1 overall and 7-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference. Charlevoix enters the week — it entertains East Jordan on Thursday, Jan. 17 — holding a two-game lead on the Red Devils, 8-3, 5-2, in the league.

MALLERYS

us. They loved it."

There were some scary moments both on the trail and on the road for the Mallerys. Gaila said the first time Dick was late getting to a check point — two days late — she was distraught thinking of all the things that could have gone wrong.

"I was thinking about snake bites and the Texas Chainsaw massacre and all kinds of things. I was a mess," she said.

She eventually went to a Park Ranger Station to report him missing and initiate a search, but Dick arrived as she was providing the information. He had sent messages to her about being behind schedule but they hadn't come through. They improved on their system after that, and the next time he was late was not as bad.

Dick had his own troubles along the way, including a run-in with a long-horn steer on a ranch somewhere in Colorado while searching for water. He said he ended up giving water to a pig, some chickens and the steer before getting his own.

He experienced some physical challenges as well during the 3,200 mile hike to Glacier Northern Park in Canada. The blisters in the beginning were "awful," he said, and took about 600 miles to walk off. His toes turned black from the nerves becoming agitated from the walking and his toenails fell off. It didn't bother him enough to stop, however, and in 2001 he hiked another 600 miles along the Continental Divide, picking up where he left off in Glacier National Park and continuing on to Jasper, Alberta, Canada.

Dick hopes to make the 1,000-mile track to the Yukon.

Gaila was largely responsible for documenting the trip, sending emails to friends and family at home using her own information and typing Dick's stories from the trail, which he recorded by voice during his stops at check points. At the time, Gaila said, the idea was just to keep track of their adventure, but it turned into the couple's first self-published book, "Crossing the Divide: A family adventure along the Continental Divide." The book includes photographs from the trip as well as commentary from both Gaila and Dick about their experiences. It is available for purchase at Horizon Books in both Petoskey and Traverse City, as well as on the Mallerys' website, thenewspaperthatwalks.com. That site also serves as a connection to their newspaper, The Dick E. Bird News, which can be subscribed to through that site or by calling (800)255-5128.

Dick has been trying to convince Gaila to make the next hike with him, and the two are considering either a 800-mile trek across the Arizona Trail or walking the Pacific Crest Trail, which also goes from New Mexico to Canada but goes through the Sierra Mountains and a more western route.

Regardless of where they go, the Mallerys are sure to keep moving.

Support available for autoimmune conditions

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Group to meet at 11 a.m. Jan. 26 at the Family of Faith Church, 203 E Upright

Michelle Traverse knows most people don't even know what fibromyalgia is. She also knows those who do need some support while they try to cope with it.

"It is hard. It's hard on you, it's hard on your family, and sometimes you just need to say, 'hey, I don't feel good today,' and have someone understand," she said.

Traverse suffers from the chronic systemic disease, a condition that encompasses a vast amount of bodily functions and a long list of troubling symptoms, the worst of which being chronic pain and fatigue, and she knows of other individuals who share her frustrations with the condition. That, she said, is why she decided to get involved with developing a support group for fibromyalgia patients and other individuals battling autoimmune diseases.

"It is comforting to acknowledge the fact you're not alone, and to have someone there to say, 'I know how you feel,'" she said.

The group's first meeting is planned for 11 a.m. Jan. 26 at the Family of Faith Church, 203 E. Upright, in Charlevoix. (For more information call 547-0580.) Traverse said she hopes the group will meet the last Saturday of every month, inviting speakers and offering a network of communication for anyone suffering from an autoimmune disease.

"You need to have a good support system, someone that knows what you're going through, can talk about what works for them and what doesn't, talk about medications, and just dealing with it all," she said.

One of the many symptoms of fibromyalgia, and most other immune system conditions, is depression, a symptom Traverse said people she's talked to have trouble with and need help for.

"I know so many women that have this depression, and it's a big thing, it's a big deal," Traverse said. "You're so tired and in pain, and you just want to close the door and stay inside."

Not only is the disease painful, tiring and stressful on the body, it is also stressful on the mind due to dealing with it, realizarion it is chronic and therefore will not go away, and trying to deal with the difficulties others often have with understanding the condition.

"A lot of times people just don't know or understand there is anything wrong with you. You look normal, you don't look sick."

The National Fibromyalgia Foundation describes the disease as a chronic pain illness characterized by widespread musculoskeletal aches, pain and stiffness, soft tissue tenderness, general fatigue, and sleep disturbances. The most common sites of pain include the neck, back, shoulders, pelvic girdle, and hands, but any body part can be affected. Despite looking "normal," as Traverse said, fibromyalgia patients experience a range of symptoms of varying intensities that wax and wane over time, making it hard for them to prepare for or deal with the condition.

Hoping to provide support for others as well as create a networking group for herself, Traverse said she hopes to maintain the group, and the regular monthly meeting schedule.

Parking problem solved

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

An agreement reached between the City of Charlevoix and the two commuter air services in the city — Island Airways and Fresh Air Aviation — solves two key issues, parking and revenue, and benefits all three entities, City Manager Rob Straebel said.

City Council members agreed the plan was a win for all, unanimously approving a contract last week that allows Fresh Air Aviation to offer parking permits to its customers to park in the municipal airport parking lot across the street from its Marion Center - US 31 location. The contract requires Fresh Air Aviation to sell parking permits to customers using the same fee structure established for its neighbor, Island Airways, with revenue going to all three entities: Fresh Air will retain 10 percent of revenue, 40 percent will go to the City of Charlevoix, and 50 percent will go to Island Airways.

Straebel said that amount "is agreeable" because, as the municipal airport's contracted Fixed Based Operator (FBO) which essentially means it is the acting manager responsible for maintenance, repair, snow removal and other tasks at the airport, Island Airways is entitled to 50 percent of the permit revenue.

"This creates more revenue for all three entities, and it really came together well," Straebel said. "We are always looking for ways to create a self-sustaining airport, and having parking fees is one step toward that goal."

Another problem solved by the agreement is parking for Fresh Air Aviation customers. Straebel said city zoning regulations for parking are developed by a formula based upon the square footage of the building in question. According to a memorandum from city Zoning Administrator Dianne Martore, business and professional offices are allowed 1 parking space for each 200 square feet of floor space. Therefore, Fresh Air Aviation's 1,200 square foot building only allows for 6 parking spaces, which is not enough to adequately serve its customers.

The newly approved contract, which will go into effect as soon as all necessary signatures are obtained — Straebel estimates early as the end of this week — requires Fresh Air Aviation to provide customers with parking permits on a daily, weekly, monthly or annual basis, submitting a detailed report each month to the city regarding the number and types of permits sold. The contract will expire April 1, 2011, the same time Island Airway's FBO contract expires.

Straebel said he is happy with the agreement.

"I hate to use such a cliche phrase, but this really is a win-win-win for all involved," he said.

Straebel also told Council the agreement was reviewed by City Attorney Jim Young as well as Fresh Air Aviation and Island Airways representatives, and approved by all. To pass the agreement, Council also had to amend the Fixed Based Operators Agreement with Island Airways, attaching to it terms of the new contract with Fresh Air. That amendment was also reviewed and approved by necessary legal entities.

The fee structure established by the City is subject for review each budget year, and is scheduled on calendar years. Fees set for 2008 are:

- One day: $2
- Overnight: $3
- Weekly: $15
- Monthly: $45
- Six months: $75
- Six month primary (closer to the terminal): $150
- Annual: $150
- Annual primary: $300

that didn't take credit cards.

With no money and no food, Mallery was in need of help, and he found some with the bearded man, eventually making friends with everyone in the establishment.

"I think every cowboy in the region bought me a beer that night," he said.

Mallery told the audience why he made the trip — it was something he wanted to do for the past 30 years, having read about another hiker who made the trip in 1968 — and had been an avid hiker for many years. He's hiked across Ireland and made other journeys, but this trip — first he hiked 3,200 miles from New Mexico to Canada, then two years later picked up where he left off in Glacier North Park and hiked 600 miles to Jasper, Alberta, Canada — was by far his longest.

Mallery's wife, Carla, and their daughter Maggie, made the trip as well, driving in "the front country" in a recreational vehicle and meeting Dick at checkpoints along the way offering food, water and other necessities. Both Dick and Carla have some incredible stories to tell about the experience.

"The people we met along the way were wonderful," Dick said, [illegible] few examples of what he calls "trail magic," which is what happens when strangers take the time to help out a traveler in need.

One story involved a couple of Native American Indians who met Dick on a reservation in Wyoming, noticed he was quite cold, possibly sick and out of food, and felt bad for him. They couldn't give him a ride off the reservation because their truck didn't have a license plate, but they offered to drive him around the reservation until he could warm up.

"After about an hour they liked me pretty well, and invited me in for dinner," he said. "They did warm me though it wouldn't be very good because the girl's father made it and he was blind."

Carrying a 26-pound pack and using hiking poles, and wearing cheap light hiking boots with sole inserts, Dick made the hike, walking through blisters, heat stroke, dehydration and all kinds of weather. Getting supplies on such a long hike, he said, requires use of post offices along the way and someone reliable to send supplies to the offices along the route. Most post offices have a log hikers can sign into, and he found he was not alone on the trail that summer. Two girls from California were making the hike as well, along with a man named Andy from Florida.

"I ended up walking about 400 miles with Andy," he said.

Dick told of food poisoning in New Mexico, dehydration in other areas and [illegible]. He walked through desert, snow, rain and everything in between and [illegible] to try it again, hoping to embark on the next leg of his journey, the next 1,000 miles of the Continental Divide from Jasper to the Yukon, at some point.

The next installment of the Travel and Adventure series will be held at 7 p.m. Jan. 22, when Rand Shackleton, decendent of reknowned explorer Sir Earnest Shackleton, describes his trip through Antartica. The events are free and open to the public. For more information call 237-7340.

High school athletes adjust to new sports seasons

BY AUBREY WAY
TEEN SCENE WRITER

With winter sports in full swing, athletes and students are finally able to adjust to the winter season changes, but they aren't as easy to get used to as they'd hoped.

With basketball games four days a week, the fan base has changed because it is hard to go to every game during the week. Many have to choose between the girls and boys team and which games they want to attend.

Another new item is the boys' teams aren't playing on Friday nights until the days swap for the boys and girls programs. The game schedule now has girls playing Wednesday and Friday, leaving the boys to play on Tuesday and Thursday, and starting Jan. 16 the days will switch for the two programs..

Another new change is that ball games are being played on Wednesdays, a day that used to serve as a break from games and a chance for teams to just practice. Now with gym time conflicts the conference needs to play on Wednesday nights.

"I don't like that we have to play on Wednesday nights," said senior Kandis Way. "It's hard for me to get to youth group because we have games, but if we don't have a game we usually have practice that night."

Not only are the athletes adjusting to the different seasons and changes, but the fans have to adjust as well.

"I don't like that both girls and boys basketball seasons are the same. Having so many basketball games a week is too much and people don't want to go to them all," said senior Justin Klooster. "I don't think it's fair to the girls because most people would rather go to the boys' basketball game which makes smaller crowds for the girls' games."

The boys seem to be drawing more fans right now, but as the girls continue to succeed their fan base should return. Some of the biggest reasons fans choose which ball games they'll attend are financial reasons. The gas they use when they travel throughout the conference is a factor, as well as the entry fee to each ball game.

Despite the changes the athletes are facing, both basketball programs are performing well. The Lady Rayders remain undefeated in conference.

"With the seasons changed our games have a different atmosphere to them," said senior Desi Faust. "We don't have as many fans and it's harder and not as fun to play without the support of our fans."

The male Rayders are also undefeated, and aren't impacted as much as the girls.

"We don't let the little things affect us," said junior Weston Bryan. "The gym times are tighter, and other than the games days, we haven't had that much change."

Everyone is beginning to adjust to the changes and some like the changes while others are upset about everything. The Charlevoix Rayders are playing hard and not letting the changes get under their skin.

Norwood: We are not tainted

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Hopes of healing in Norwood Township were recently dashed in light of the harshest accusations to date — claims of impropriety — against planners Tom Mielke and Denny Way.

Karen Ferguson, the attorney for the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety — a group opposed the former supervisor's limestone mine — submitted a letter to the township board detailing her allegations.

"The Court voided the Planning Commission's grant of the Special Use Permit and reversed the decision because of the Supervisor's conflicts of interest, abuse of office beyond what court cases allow, and the appearance of impropriety on the part of Planning Commission members," Ferguson stated. "The taint of the planning commission remains. Until all commission members are replaced by unbiased members who were not appointed by former supervisor Wynkoop, the planning commission is conflicted from deciding the Wynkoop Special Use Permit."

WAY

"These things the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety have said about me and other members of the board are nothing new," said planning commission chair Tom Mielke. "Judge (Thomas) Power said he didn't believe anybody on the planning commission did anything wrong, yet here you have their lawyer rehashing the same old stuff."

Ferguson also accused Mielke of acting as an agent for Wynkoop.

"I have never prejudged this case and I have never worked for him (Wynkoop)," Mielke said.

Ferguson accused Way of acting as Wynkoop's agent and his

City gives Walgreens OK

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Planning Commission is prepared to welcome Walgreens to the city, having approved site plans presented last week, provided a few conditions are met.

Noting they are ready to have the "blight" of the old gas station on the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31 removed and replaced with a new, attractive addition to the city, Planning Commission members offered their support for plans discussed by architect Mark Drane of Rogvoy Architects and Todd Wyett, owner of the property and Chief Executive Officer of Nextgen Energy, LLC.

"I think it is hugely important to develop that piece of property. It's a blight and has been for more than 10 years now, and it's time we got it cleaned up," Commissioner D.J. Way said.

Commissioners present shared concern over traffic issues at the M-66/US 31 corner location, which "gets really busy and hectic" during the summer months, Commissioner June Cross noted. Others agreed, requesting Walgreens and contracted firm Rogvoy Architects look into potential ways to correct the problem.

"I don't think Walgreens will have a problem with that at all," Drane said of Way's suggestion to put a third drive on the property leading to Stover Road.

Currently a dead end, Stover Road offers a potential connection to the proposed parking lot, and Drane and Wyett agreed checking into the possibility of adding either an

She is actually the Aktion Club Coordinator, and accepted the flag along with LaRosa in order to present it to the Charlevoix Public Library for use in it's public meeting room.

Township officials deny lawyer's accusations inability to act without prejudice because the two have a business relationship.

"Way's company (was) the recipient of a Dust Control Contract for over $4,480 that Mr. Wynkoop voted to approve," Ferguson stated. "Mr. Way stated in a township board meeting that he had a personal account with the Township Attorney, who will most likely be retained to advise the Commission on the next special use permit proceedings."

Way said his working relationship with Wynkoop is no secret and that it does not prevent him from functioning as a competent commissioner.

"On at least two occasions while a Board member, and once while a Commissioner, Mr. Way went to the County Road Commission, essentially acting as the Wynkoop Defendants' agent seeking a commitment relative to the Wynkoop gravel pit and funding improvements or maintenance of Norwood Road to county standards," Ferguson further stated. "Denny Way's father is chairman of the Road Commission."

Way said at best Ferguson twists the truth and at worst is an outright liar.

"I have been doing dust control at Wayne Wynkoop's facility for 15 years. He's a paying customer like the other 200 customers in northern Michigan and Northern Michigan Dust Control has been doing dust control for Norwood Township for approximately eight years because we have the best product and we give them a very good price," Way said. "To say that in some way Mr. Wynkoop was awarding me or my company the contract to get a favorable ruling is absolutely false. And as far as his body shop: We have 45 semis and the Wynkoop body shop was next door to our business. When we needed something repaired, he was the most convenient and usually the best priced place."

He added, "She (Ferguson) assumes I have no character, no morals and that, quite honestly, I can be bought. She doesn't know me very well. As far as Mr. Turner, I have had no account with Mr. Turner, never. I have no idea where that came from."

As to the accusations of meeting with road commission members as an agent of Wynkoop, Way said the meeting in question was no different than the meetings in years past.

"The road commission meets every year with all the townships to address their upcoming needs," Way said. "And yes, my father is the chairman of the road commission, no doubt about that. I'm not really sure what her point is on that. I'm very upset when she writes in here saying I was essentially an agent of Wynkoop. It is a blatant lie."

He added, "It should be very clear that I voted 'No' on Mr. Wynkoop's application (for a Special Land Use Permit.) So, if I was in fact clearly his agent or clearly if he had somehow swayed me, I shouldn't have voted no on his proposal."

Way also addressed Ferguson's accusations that the planning commission somehow engaged in impropriety.

"Mrs. Ferguson knows they're not true and it's just an attempt to scare and threaten members of this board into resignation; and I will not be intimidated. They would like to see the entire board removed so they could put their own people in and get a favorable ruling."

He added, "The judge said in court that he thought the planning commission members did a good job of deliberating on it. He saw no conflict of interest problems and the only thing may have been an appearance on Mr. Wynkoop's part (of impropriety)."

Ferguson's letter also claimed Wynkoop's operation "greatly harmed the value of neighboring property owners' use and enjoyment of their property and their property values."

Wynkoop said the NTCHS had the opportunity to present evidence of actual damages in court and failed to do so.

"To this day there has been no documentation that supports any one of those claims," Wynkoop said. "They claim damage to wetlands and impact on their property—where is the evidence? Where are the videos? Where are the DEQ reports?"

The most recent complaint filed with the DEQ on Wynkoop's property yielded an on-site visit on Jan. 10 by an official from Gaylord wherein no violations were discovered.

> NORWOOD PLANNING COMMISSION MEMBER

"And as far as the appointments she complains about, it should be known that only once in all my years on the board did we ever have more than one interested party apply for a position on the board," Wynkoop said. "It's kind of hard to appoint people who never applied for the positions."

Ferguson's letter accused board member Marilyn Maynard of bias due to a $25,000 settlement which she received and that was proposed by Wynkoop in an unrelated matter.

What Ferguson failed to include was that the township's insurance company advised the township to settle the matter or face a lawsuit which could have cost Norwood as much or more than $100,000.

"Karen was our attorney at the time and she advised us. She told us this is how we need to do it," Maynard said. "I can remain objective. I don't owe Mr. Wynkoop anything from that settlement; in fact, most of those fees went to Karen and her former firm. She keeps bringing it up like I went on vacation or something."

She added, "I was really disappointed, as much time and money as we spent with her, to have a former attorney slamming you. I guess I thought it was incredible."

Wynkoop said at the time of the Maynard settlement, Ferguson applied for the position of Norwood Township's attorney.

"We said, 'This woman is threatening to sue us; We can't hire her,'" Wynkoop said. "I think she's a little bitter."

Ferguson's letter closed by stating no planning commissioner has interest or ability to protect Norwood's historic value or natural beauty.

"That is absolutely false," Way said. "In our master plan we have taken great steps to protect those valuable resources."

He added, "I currently have 60 acres of property that I am going to donate to the Little Traverse Conservancy for a conservation easement. Don't sit there and say there are no commissioners that have any interest in protecting any of our natural resources. Again, it's a flat out lie and I'm sick of it."

Norwood Township Supervisor Tim Boyko said he has no plans to remove or call for the removal of any planning commission members.

"They have to examine their own conscience; I do not examine people's conscience for them," he said.

During the Monday, Jan. 13 meeting, David Strawbridge was appointed to the planning commission to replace the seat vacated by Gerry Straub and Maynard and Way were reappointed.

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

"I love my job, I love my job, I love my job." It was my mantra through more than a dozen crummy careers.

Now, I should preface the following by pointing out that I am not a cheery fellow to begin with. Oh sure, there was a time when I was, dare I say ("Dare, dare" Cleavon Little whispers) a happy-go-lucky individual, but then I turned 7 and have been in one sort of funk or another ever since. The shrink blames my fatalistic father, while I prefer to think it's because life is all a big accidental nothing playing out on a dying rock hurling through space, but that's a paranoid delusion for another time.

Mix my maligned mental state with a smear of craptastic careers and I'm surprised I haven't climbed a clock tower by now—(SEE ALSO Joke material to avoid: Mental illness, assassinations and hating one's job et al.)

And for those of you thinking it's this line of work, this news business, which has made me such a miserable SOB, who asked you?

Don't get me wrong, I don't fantasize about pulling the heads off kittens or pushing the wheelchair-bound down steep hills (the IRS does not appreciate competition) but I have had my fair share of angst and increased stressors recently.

Last week began as usual. Five calls and a half-dozen e-mails reminding me that I am a poor writer, I'm not as clever as I thought I was and at any given time I am one or more of the following: Racist, bigot, anti-Semitic, conservative, liberal, gay, homophobic, capitalist swine, socialist pig, and I even got an e-mail from one Dr. Jasper Bruner who, peddling herbal supplements, wrote, "Your click does not admire to do it with you for reason of your male device size. Don't miss this good possibility to solve the problem."

I had had enough. Not only was Dr. Bruner accusing me of having a less-than-admirable device, it was going to be up to eight weeks before the pills arrived.

I stared at my 1912 Royal typewriter, pre-loaded with the piece of paper upon which I may someday write my resignation letter, it stared back, daring me to make the first move.

I began to brainstorm, by which I mean the six-and-a-half cells not affected by Krylon paint fumes or Anheuser-Busch (SEE ALSO: dumb teenager) began doing gray matter squat thrusts which caused intense pain and a mild nosebleed.

I had to whip up a scenario the wife would believe: "You see honey, I had to quit because the office is full of communists."

She'd never buy it. She knows I have a soft spot for Gorbachev.

"But dear, I'm being sexually harrassed by my boss."

Who was I kidding, the last time anyone but my wife gave me so much as an amorous glance was 1992 when Homer, the family St. Bernard, was in heat.

It was no use. She would see right through my schemes, and let's face it, I had grown accustomed to a certain lifestyle afforded me by the liberal media; I wasn't about to go back to living like a peasant in flyover country.

Then I got this e-mail with "DO YOU HATE YOUR JOB?" in the subject line. It read: "Purchase a rectal thermometer made by Johnson & Johnson. When you get home, lock your doors, draw the curtains and disconnect the phone so you will not be disturbed. Take out the literature from the box and read it carefully. 'Every rectal thermometer made by Johnson & Johnson is personally tested and then sanitized.'"

The glee I felt in knowing that somewhere, some poor schmuck was getting the cold glass shaft 40 hours a week dissolved when, after curiosity overcame, I sneaked down the health and beauty aisle at the local supermarket.

It seems the device (Johnson & Johnson's, not mine) is not personally tested, but the point was taken: There are jobs out there that are a true pain in the ... well you get the idea.

I'm sure I could be doing much worse things like cleaning kennels again, working the gut table at a slaughterhouse or being Hillary Clinton's head cosmetologist—how many coats of primer do you lay on that mug before you get the grapes to tell her it ain't gettin' any better?

And I get the shivers just thinking of the poor bugger who translates Bush's speeches into rebus format before W. gets hold of them.

All I can say is, I love my job. I love my job. I love my job.

A Look at Life remembers the wisdom of 'Buscia'

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The aroma of pickled beets permeated the air coming from this small Michigan basement. I opened the clean, well worn, door, peered into the depths below and took a deep breath before venturing down. I was fearful the basement monster would touch my leg as I passed over every space between each step. Safely arriving near the bottom of the steps my attention was drawn to the large aperture that was simultaneously crackling and hissing. There she was, big and black and sitting as stately as her highness. She once served a purpose for heating water but her current career was meant for canning fruits and vegetables by my Buscia (pronounced Boosha). The site of this large cast iron stove will remain etched in my memory forever. Even though its brightly lined flame could be seen from the crevices in the metal door it remained remarkably cool where I stood. The fieldstone walls gave relief from the heat emanating from the stove. The temperature was just right for boiling the glass jars rattling in a porcelain kettle that rocked back and forth as if trying to avoid its own heat. Beets picked earlier from the garden had been scraped and sliced and placed into bowls and then covered in a vinegar mixture. On a bench nearby, kitchen utensils lay carefully in a neat row creating a look more like a surgeon's table. By the time my foot finished the last step and landed onto the cement floor I could see Buscia in her flower print apron whirling around to grasp another jar. She would fill it with the deep, purple colored vegetable displaying the ease of an artist who knew which stroke was needed for the finishing touch. Those warm beets would cool in their glass containers while sitting stacked on old pine shelves waiting their turn to be enjoyed at a future meal.

My first memory of helping cultivate fruit was in the summer of 1955. Sorting grapes and cherries into quart and pint containers and helping Buscia pick plums for her jams and jellies was a job my parents felt I could handle and it would teach me to appreciate hard work. This was not my favorite task? I loved to saunter into the herb garden and take in the smells of savory spices. When I was sent to look for dill to finish making pickles I would quickly run to the garden and find no excuse to stay a little longer, lingering in the fragrances set before me. Busica had a flower garden as well which became part of my horticultural education. I was fascinated by the appearance as well as the names of the plants she grew, in particular; bleeding hearts and money plants. Both created such an interest in this young child as I really thought the one flower bled and the other I could use to buy candy with at the store. Buscia would give a hearty laugh when I would share those thoughts.

I knew Buscia accepted me no matter what trouble I may have gotten into at home or school. The feeling of love and acceptance nourished me in ways I hope to pass on in my own grand parenting. A grandparent has the ability to quickly forgive and forget and the time and patience to listen. But what I appreciated most about my grandmother was her knowledge of cooking and gardening which she gladly shared. I consider myself fortunate to have additional values and another language that comes from living in an ethnic home. Growing up in a Polish Catholic family there was the tradition of having a water font filled with blessed water at every bedroom doorway. Vigil candles always remained lit in every bedroom next to a photograph of the Madonna. Even though the future singer by the same name grew up in a neighborhood nearby there was no confusion as to who was in this photo.

During my childhood relatives lived in close proximity to one another. I was able to spend more time getting to know my grandmother and when she came to visit at our home I would introduce her to my games as well. My favorite was the dropping of our dolls down the clothes chute. What a magnificent invention this was. Originally designed to assist the housewife with her laundry by opening a small door and placing dirty laundry into it with hopes the clothes landed somewhere near the washing machine. I thought clothes chutes were a great way of communicating with friends in the basement and our imagination never ceased with ideas of what to put down them. The clothes chute never caught on at Buscia's house but she did eventually get herself a milk chute.

Buscia is a Polish slang word for grandma. As a child it was easy for me to confuse babushka and Buscia since they sounded similar. When I was asked to get mom's scarf sometimes I'd bring grandma over instead. It's not surprising I made that mistake, they are more alike than just the vernacular. They both keep you warm and wrap themselves around you. So for all the grandma's out there, continue to create memories for the patchwork quilt of children's minds, we will always remember you as I remember Buscia.

East Park will have fountain and trout stream

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

What: Fundraising efforts continue for an interactive water fountain in east Park

How much: approximately 80% of the $100,000 in private donations has been raised, and $55,000 worth of grant applications have been submitted; DDA wil contribute $200,000 and the city will contribute $80,000

When: The park project, with fountain and trout stream, is expected to be complete in June

All plans are a go for an interactive water fountain and a trout stream ecosystem in the new East Park, city officials say, and things are on schedule to bring all summer events displaced during last year's construction home to the park in 2008.

"We are going to be in great shape to accommodate those events that had to be held off site last summer. The city and the DDA (Downtown Development Authority) are very pleased with where things are at right now," said Keith Carey, DDA director. "We are on track to have things done in June."

One element Carey and others are excited about is the "overwhelming" support and outpouring from the community, a response that he said cleared up any doubts about whether plans for an interactive water fountain in the park was something the community wanted.

"If there were any questions as to whether the community was behind this project, I think they have been answered," Carey said, referencing the "outstanding" progress the community fundraising team, the Fountain of Youth Committee, has made since kicking off its campaign in late November.

John Winn, chair of the Fountain of Youth Committee, said approximately 80 percent of the $100,000 goal had been raised as of last week, and more is anticipated.

"There were a number of people who pledged to make donations after the first of the year, so I am anticipating more coming in," he said.

Donations have come in a form both Winn and Carey said they wanted: a large number of "smaller" donations from a cross-section of the community rather than a few large donations from a small segment of the community.

"We now know the support runs the gamet. We've gotten checks of all sizes from people from all walks in the community," Carey said, and Winn echoed his statement, noting the "large number of people getting involved in this."

While Winn and his committee continue their efforts to raise the privately donated portion of the $380,000 necessary to construct the fountain, Carey is working on raising grant funding to reduce the amount of private funds necessary. So far, the DDA has applied for four $5,000 grants, from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the Frey Foundation, the Dow Chemical Foundation and the Great Lakes Energy People's Fund.

Carey said he is hopeful about each of the requests, as well as a larger request — one of $35,000 — made to the Grand Traverse Band of Odawa and Chippewa Indians. That funding would come from the two percent Revenue Sharing program that requires the group to contribute money from casino revenues to area communities. Carey said Charlevoix projects have been supported in the past by the tribe, so he is optimistic about this request.

"They (the tribe) actually contributed $29,000 to the purchase of the former Wharfside building on the foot of Mason Street. That purchase allowed us to open up the area there in the middle of the park, so they've already contributed to the project," Carey said. "We are hopeful they'll continue that support."

The various grant programs have varied deadlines, and Carey hopes to hear as early as this month or next from the Grand Traverse Band of Odawa and Chippewa Indians, next month from the Great Lakes Energy People's Fund and the Frey Foundation, and before March from the local Community Foundation.

Despite the optimism in regard to the grants, Carey said the Fountain of Youth Committee will continue seeking private donations "with the anticipation that we don't receive a dime."

"We can't afford to anticipate that money. It is important to assume private donations will be the sole funding source for that $100,000 difference," he said, adding "any money we receive will be appreciated but we're not counting our chickens before they hatch."

Carey said Winn has "been a champion for this private fundraising effort," having "harnessed that community spirit and transformed that spirit into tangible financial support."

Carey also noted the trout stream, while not included in the private fundraising efforts or the grant applications submitted to date, will definitely be included in the park, as it continues to be noted as a priority in the scope of the project.

"That trout stream is absolutely going in and remains a critical part of that project and the Harbor Master building. The DDA is committed to that and the city is committed to it," he said.

Carey said DDA will be contributing $200,000 to the cost of the fountain project, and the city will contribute $80,000. Winn said his committee has already presented funds for the project, and progress has begun.

"A contractor has been signed, we've had an engineer do some material ordering, things are on track," he said.

> "That trout stream is absolutely going in and remains a critical part of that project and the Harbor Master building."

Crooked Tree Arts Center presents a Gallery Talk series

Gail Hosner, the Visual Arts/Education Director at the Crooked Tree Arts Center, will be giving a series of gallery talks beginning Jan. 3. Community groups or individuals are welcome to join Gail in a walk of the galleries as she discusses the current exhibitions at CTAC. This will be an informal, unscripted view of the exhibitions including the back-story behind the exhibits at CTAC.

Hosner is responsible for much of the currating at CTAC. She holds a BA degree in the History of Art from the University of Michigan with concentrations in both photography and ceramics, and an MS degree in Textile Design, Marketing and Management from North Carolina State University. She was once the preparator for the exhibitions at the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts and a framing and exhibition designer in Phillips Gallery in Salt Lake City working in connection with the University of Utah Museum of Art.

"I have been asked by groups in the community to speak on the process of currating and installing exhibitions. The questions have ranged from the content of the exhibition at hand to how I select wall colors and install the art. The talks have gone so well that it was suggested to me that I run a series discussing exhibitions currently on display at CTAC," Hosner stated. "It is one of the things I love to do most of all, that is sharing with interested people all of the exciting work I am privileged to do at the Crooked Tree Arts Center."

Gallery Talks with Gail Hosner are free and open to the public. If you are a larger group it is recommended that you contact Gail in advance at the Crooked Tree Arts Center (231) 347-4337.

Charlevoix Elks meeting a success

On Thursday January 10, Chris Jones called the informational meeting of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to order.

The meeting was held at the American Legion post on East Garfield in hopes of organizing a Lodge for Charlevoix. Lynn Cook, special representative from the Elks Grand Lodge, was present to educate the crowd of approximately 50 potential Elks on the mission of the Elks, as well as to answer any questions the attendees had.

The mission of the Elks is as follows:

To inculcate the principles of Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity;

- To recognize a belief in God;
- To promote the welfare and enhance the happiness of its Members;
- To quicken the spirit of American patriotism;
- To cultivate good fellowship.
- To perpetuate itself as a fraternal organization, and to provide for its government, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America will serve the people and communities through benevolent programs, demonstrating that Elks Care and Elks Share.

All in attendance unanimously agreed that Charlevoix wants and needs an Elks Lodge, but that requires the commitment of 125 men and women who are interested in serving the needs of the Charlevoix area through membership in the Elks.

After hearing the overwhelming support for the Elks, Chris Jones challenged the audience to bring at least one friend to the next meeting.

The next step to forming the Lodge is for interested potential members to attend the meeting planned for Saturday, Feb. 2 at 1 p.m. at the American Legion Post. Attendants are asked to bring a friend who would be interested as well.

Applications for membership will be available at that time, and a $50 membership application fee is required. Should there not be 125 charter members, your fee will be refunded to you in full.

The Elks will contribute to the Charlevoix area with assistance to needy children, veterans and through its scholarship program. For information on the web, please go to the Elks web site www.elks.org. If you have further questions, or are unable to attend the meeting on Feb. 2, please contact Chris Jones at (231)675-6440 or chxelks@yahoo.com.

10 things you never knew about Kristie McCoy

Bringing you closer to your neighbors.

This month's "10 Things" caught up with 29-year-old head waitress and mother of two Kristie McCoy of East Jordan. McCoy has served thousands of customers during her 15 years at the Flap Jack Family Restaurant in Charlevoix.

Q 1. What is your favorite food?

A. I'd have to say the vegetable fiesta at the Red Mesa Grille

Q 2. What are your hobbies?

A. I like taking my children sledding and reading to them and going to the school to each lunch. My kids are my passion.

Q 3. What is the toughest part about waitressing?

A: The toughest part would be knowing what kind of mood someone is in, feeling somebody out. If they are having the worst day, I want to make them happy. If they just want to be left alone, I want to take their order and leave.

Q 4. If you could change one thing about yourself or your world what would it be?

A. If everyone could do something little it would make a difference. I use cloth bags and I was at Wal-Mart grocery shopping not too long ago and this lady behind me didn't know they had them and now she does. I made a difference and that makes me feel good.

Q 5. If you could meet anyone, who would it be?

A. My grandpa. I never met him.

Q 6. What is something nobody knows about you?

A. I love football. I talk football with my regulars and they take me seriously.

Q 7. What's the best part about your job?

A. I love serving people. I like getting to know my customers and I take pride in my job.

Q 8. What is your big dream?

A. I really like to travel --no place in particular, just to experience different cultures.

Q 9. What really makes you mad?

A: People who talk down to me. People walk in and think they're better than you because you wait tables. I like respect.

10. Where do you see yourself in five years?

A. I want to be living in Wisconsin---gotta go where the jobs are.

Meeting hoped to spark 'smart growth' in area

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Any community can grow, but not every community can grow with smarts.

The greater Charlevoix community is taking steps to ensure its growth, which Land Information Access Association Executive Director Joe VanderMeulen said "is inevitable," is smart, and occurs in a way that preserves the community's resources.

"We want to take care of those values and aspects of the community that we hold dear to our hearts, like water preservation, transportation issues, preserving farm land and green space," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel.

Embracing that idea, the City of Charlevoix is partnering with other local municipalities — Eveline, Marion, Hayes, Norwood and Charlevoix townships guided by the Partnerships for Change Program, to build a cooperative planning effort to ensure growth of the community is "smart." Said to foster "smart growth land use policies across the Charlevoix community," collaborative efforts will begin with an organizational meeting Jan 30. VanderMeulen, whose company will act as a liaison for the project working with the local municipalities and Partnerships for Change organization, said the meeting will serve as an opportunity to begin necessary discussions "to find a way for each of these different governments to make change together" in their planning efforts.

"We want to create a basis for discussion for the future," he said.

The meeting is not, however, the first step these municipalities have taken to that goal. It is "picking up" from efforts that began two years ago when a committee with representation from each local entity got together to "look at the larger community and ask ' What do we want to become and how do we want to grow?'" VanderMeulen said. That group, led in part by then Charlevoix City Planner Gary Harsch, applied for a grant from the People and Land Program funded through the Kellogg Foundation. That funding was used to gather data about the municipal entities to decipher the "types of development that were preferable" for the area. That community-wide planning exercise became known as the Charlevoix Area Multi-jurisdictional Comprehensive Smart Growth Land Use Initiative. VanderMeulen said the report that was produced was "a good working plan, and a lot of work went into it," and the new Smart Growth Initiative will put that plan into action.

"The plan suggests ways to develop more efficiently. For example, no one wants to build a new water and sewer system if you don't have to," he said, noting the potential for saving tax dollars if good planning is utilized.

Collaborative work is also vital, he added, and the new effort will help guide cooperative, efficient planning.

"Each municipality has its own Planning and Zoning Authority, so we want to help sort out how those groups might collaborate and make a good individual plan," VanderMeulen said.

A grant from the Partnerships for Change has already been awarded, and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has contributed a matching grant of $5,000, to be awarded at the Jan. 30 meeting.

Straebel noted the benefit of corroboration among government entities, adding by working together area municipalities can "focus our efforts more efficiently and effectively to identify issues in the city, county and townships." He said input from the community at large is also welcome, noting this and all future meetings of the group will be open to the public.

Assisting with the efforts is the Land Information Access Association (LIAA), a nonprofit formed 15 years ago to help citizens and public officials work together to create sustainable communities. It is the head of the Partnerships for Change program, which offers services to municipalities that wish to work together in planning efforts. To move forward with the plan, each municipality has been asked to contribute a portion of the funding required ($500) and begin work on many of the plan's key topics, including managing development of 'big box' stores, shoreline and stream corridor preservation, lighting and dark sky issues, managing road corridor development, controlling blight and unsightly situations, and farmland and open space preservation.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. in the Community Room B of the Charlevoix Public Library

New groomed cross country ski trails to open in Charlevoix

There is a new Little Traverse Conservancy that opened this year on Boyne City Road between Burgess and Maple Grove Roads, just south of Lake Charlevoix Farms and across from Camp Seagull. Periodically, the trails there will be groomed for cross country skiing this winter. There will be tracks set for classic xc skiing, and, depending on conditions, there may be some grooming for skate skiing.

The area was formerly known as Lake Charlevoix Farms. It has been renamed the Nathan Barry Driggers Memorial Nature Preserve. Winter parking is along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. There is a Little Traverse Conservancy sign at the trailhead. The Conservancy's website is www.landtrust.org

Annual cherry recipe contest at Friske's

One of northern Michigan's most important agricultural crops, cherries, is the main ingredient in Friske's Fifth Annual Cherry recipe contest, planned for Saturday, Feb. 23. This year's categories will be chutney and compotes, and cobblers, crisps, and puddings. Anyone 18 and older, except professional chefs and Friske employees and their immediate families, are invited to participate. Registration packets are available for pick up at Friske's Market on U.S. 31 in Atwood, or by calling (231)599-2604. Information is also available at www.friske.com

Contestants may submit recipes in both categories, but only one entry per person may qualify as a finalist. Six finalists will be selected from each category. The only requirements are that each entrant submit an official entry form with recipe(s) by Monday, Feb. 11 and if chosen as a finalist, brings his/her prepared dish to Friske's Farm Market Feb. 23 by 10 a.m. Contestants must be on hand at the time of judging to be eligible for prizes. Judging criteria includes visual appeal, taste, originality, best use of cherries and ease of preparation.

Great prize packages have been donated by Friske Orchards, Smeltzer Orchard Company, Leelanau Fruit Company, Leeland Cherry Company, Swanson's Juice Mill, Black Star Farms, House on the Hill, Jordan Inn, Inn at Grey Gables, Indo China Garden Restaurant, and Water Street Cafe. First, second and third place prizes will be awarded in both recipe categories.

Judging will begin at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 23. Local chef Poto Peterson of Tapawingo, Traverse Magazine food editor Emily Tyra, radio personality Jon Jolly and Petoskey News-Review food editor Babette Stenius will serve as judges. The public is invited to view the presentation of the prepared dishes, watch the judging and sample the best of Michigan's cherry chutney and compotes, and cobblers, crisps and puddings. United Way nearing goal

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Nearly there.

Martha Lancaster, Executive Director of the Char-Em United Way, said the organization is creeping up on its $230,000 goal for this year's annual fundraising campaign, and is hoping to wrap things up within the next month or month and a half. Still waiting on a few corporate pledges, Lancaster does not yet have a final number — there are also a few local campaigns that are wrapping up — but she is happy with the outcome.

"Giving has gone up across the board this year," she said.

The United Way Board of Directors set the 2007 campaign goal at $230,000 — 15 percent above last year's goal — because "we knew the needs in the community have increased due to the tough economy," Lancaster said. The group also knew, however, a reasonable goal was necessary, one that took into consideration the hardship of giving during such economic troubles.

"This (goal) was really a compromise between those ideas. We wanted to be realistic about people's ability to give," she said.

A number of area businesses offered continued strong support, including St. Mary's Cement and Harbor Industries, who Lancaster said "continues to be our best business supporter." She also noted an increase in school giving this year, as well as undeveloped giving from individuals and businesses of $500 or more. Lancaster also reminded gifts large and small are welcome.

"Every little bit counts. This is a campaign that can be very affordable," she Riders participate in the 2007 Community Ride-In.

Public welcome to Ride-In

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Come one, come all, rain, snow, sleet or shine, say members of the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club as they plan the eighth annual Community Ride In.

Riders, watchers, supporters and community members who just need something fun to do outdoors are invited to the Jan. 26 event, to be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Ferry Beach, which includes free food and hot chocolate, prizes, and networking opportunities for area riders. Club member Leah Olson said this is the largest public snowmobile event of the year, and one that is fun for the whole family.

"This is really great for everyone. You can ride in or drive, walk, run, however you can get here, and we'll have something for everyone," she said.

Thanks to support from a number of area businesses, the club will have a number of prizes to award at the event, including snowmobile jackets, dinner gift certificates, oil, hotel overnight stays, and much more. And, she said, there will be heat for those visitors not-so-fond of numb limbs and runny noses.

"We will definitely have heaters down there," Olson said. "This will be a great way to get out of the house and do something fun."

Wife to the current club Vice President, Olson said she has only been with the club for three years and was not a rider before that. She "married into it," she said, adding the club and the opportunity to ride is something anyone can get into, and it is easier with a little help, such as from the Snowmobile Club.

"We have some really experienced area riders and some of them take an annual trip to the U.P. so they know that area. It is a lot easier and safer when you are riding with someone who knows the area and trails," she said.

If the burgers, brats, chili and hot chocolate don't grab enough attention, Olson said the wide array of sleds on display are sure to catch some eyes. The display "runs the gamut" of sleds, she said, including "some really classic old sleds," brand new, top of the line machines, and everything in between.

There will also be information available for anyone interested in joining the club, which currently boasts nearly 30 members. Why join? Olson offered a few perks to club membership, including:

- Helping support the sport of snowmobiling in Charlevoix County
- Involvement in social events, group rides and interaction with fellow riders
- An opportunity to do community volunteer work that directly benefits your sport
- Discount on Charlevoix Snowmobile Club clothing

For more information on riding in general and the club visit the website, www.chxsnowmobile.com.

'Unconstitutional' Patriot Act movie discussed by citizens

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom hosted the documentary "Unconstitutional" at the Charlevoix Public Library as part of the group's Film and Speaker Series.

At least 14 people attended the viewing and the 45-minute discussion on the necessity and constitutionality of the USA PATRIOT ACT, a bill passed in the weeks following the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks on the Pentagon and World Trade Centers, which the government deemed as a necessary step to keeping America safe from terrorism.

"The law was proposed, it was passed in the senate, the house and the president signed it within one week, within three or four days," said Ellis Boal, the Charlevoix area resident who introduced the movie and initiated the discussion. "That is an astonishing record for a piece of legislation to go through so quickly and so soon after Sept. 11. And it's a very dense piece of prose. It's not something you could internalize quickly."

The movie 'Unconstitutional,' which questions elements of the Patriot Act federal legislation passed after Sept. 11, 2001, was shown at the Charlevoix Public Library last week.

He added, "it's not like reading a novel, it's quite complex. It covers several different things but they're not all related to each other: Surveillance procedures, money laundering, then border security is thrown in, terrorism investigation and victims and families of terrorism."

Boal said he tried to find an exact definition for what the American government says terrorism is, but was unsuccessful.

"I couldn't find exactly what is the definition of terrorism and that is something which has made me think a lot," he said. "It's a political judgment, in my opinion."

The 90-minute film highlights the lowlights of the Patriot Act including the detention of hundreds of people in America after Sept. 11, 2001, some of whom had been tortured and deported, according to the movie.

David Cole, Law Professor at Georgetown University, was interviewed for the film.

"He swept broadly, he swept blindly until the number was over 1,000 and people started asking questions and they said how many of these 1,000 people have been charged with crimes of Sept. 11 and the answer was zero," he said.

In the movie, Rep. Peter DeFazio is seen telling his fellow members of the house that the Patriot Act was printed in the middle of the night and no one was given time to read it before a vote was called.

"These are critical issues. This is what we're fighting for. These are our civil liberties," DeFazio said.

Following the movie, Boal opened the discussion with a few thoughts, including that he felt the movie inferred that simply following the constitution was the answer to preserving freedom.

"The people who wrote the constitution were slave holders and within a few years of enacting the constitution, the Alien and Sedition Act(s) (of 1798) was passed," Boal said. "I don't think it's good to romanticize the people who wrote those words and hold them up as paragons of virtue."

He added, "The constitution could use a good deal of improvement."

Instead of being a single law, the Patriot Act alters portions of more than a dozen preexisting laws which allow the government to do everything from holding, for as long as it sees fit, anyone—citizen or not— people named enemy combatants; view your library, financial and medical records whether you have committed a crime or not, and search your home without a warrant so long as the government claims the search is necessary to an ongoing investigation.

"How could they have gotten something so complex and so dense into one piece of paper within weeks of Sept. 11?" Boal said. "The answer is they didn't; they had it prepared and ready to go and used Sept. 11 as an opportunistic, as a way to get something through that they'd been planning for some time."

Audience member and local filmmaker Rebecca Glotfelty said she is amazed how naive she is concerning the government's actions.

"You hear about all the people who have been detained. I have the feeling of what does that mean? How many people were detained? And then you see these cases where they were detained for 10 months, a year, still in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. I guess what shocks me ... I haven't seen any interviews with family members or people who have been detained," she said. "I think more people would be outraged if we heard more about it. If these people were Christian or Jewish there would be outrage — as there should be."

The consensus among those who spoke was that media outlets are either afraid or too apathetic to pick up the stories of the alleged civil rights abuses explored in the movie.

"Lord only knows, where are we headed as a nation?" said Charlevoix resident David Nedwick. "There are a lot of questions and ... it's just scary."

Ellis asked the crowd what concerned citizens can do to combat the apparent encroachment on civil liberty.

"The 10 steps to establishing a fascist state," said attendee Tim Boyko, were, "you have the enemy without and the enemy within, you control borders, you set up a series of private nondisclosure prisons."

He added, "Stalin did it. Hitler did it. All the other fascists states did it. It's an established M.O. — it's insidious."

Dave Wassenaar said he has friends who still remark on the air of paranoia during World War II.

"There is quite a bit here that reminds me of nazism and communism," he said. "As a clinician, I'm aware of the classics of paranoia. It can be in government officials, it can also be in the government, all the way down to the citizens."

He added, "That's a sad commentary for any country that we're going in that direction."

The peace league's next film presentation is "Outfoxed" and is scheduled for Jan. 29 in the community room at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Law enforcement geared up for cyber crimes

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

If desperate times require desperate measures, then surely digital times require digital solutions.

Charlevoix may be off the big city beaten path, but that does not mean it is behind the times as seen by the Charlevoix County Sheriff Office's creation of a computer forensics department.

"I think it's going to be a very good asset to our area," said 23-year veteran of the Charlevoix County Sheriff Office Lt. Patrick Avery. "If you send an e-mail to someone threatening them for money, we can seize the suspect's hard drive and find stuff because, even though it's deleted, it's not actually deleted."

Whether it is a matter of identity theft, child pornography or the aforementioned Internet extortion, Charlevoix County Undersheriff Don Schneider said Avery was the obvious choice from the beginning.

"He did excellent," Schneider said. "He's enthusiastic and the detectives are already giving him hard drives to examine in cases I can't speak to because they are open, but he is already supporting them with his education."

The six-week training course at Eastern Michigan University cost approximately $6,000.

"You can't put a price tag on fixing problems and gathering evidence to support a warrant for arrest," Schneider said. "In some cases you may get some resolution for people if it is about money or in the case of child pornography, it's just a matter of probing and having evidence that there is a person online dealing in child pornography."

He added, "The bottom line is, if we don't move swiftly when we know a predator is out there, that person can be out there abusing other children or in another case defrauding someone with their computer. Whatever the scenario, time is an important factor."

In the old days, Schneider said, it could take a minimum of a year for the Michigan State Police crime lab to examine a suspect hard drive and report the findings.

"Depending on how large a hard drive is, it could take a couple weeks to a couple months to investigate that hard drive, but it beats the 10 months to two years (wait) the State Police have right now," Avery said.

Schneider said the State Police are overwhelmed with work.

"Eventually we would like to have another forensic computer examiner, but again, it's a matter of funding," he said.

Believe it or not, Schneider said, computer-based crimes are on the rise everywhere.

"It seems like computers are the gun, as it may, of the day," he said. "Instead of going into a bank and going and holding someone up (for money) with a gun, instead they use computers to go into someone's credit account or checking account and take money."

According to the FBI's 2006 Internet Crime Report (Read the full report at http://www.fbi.gov/page2/march07/ic3031607.htm), 207,492 fraud and theft complaints for a total cost of $198.4 million were filed in 2006.

"The 'average' complainant was a man between 30 and 40 living in California, Texas, Florida or New York. Individuals who reported losing money lost an average of $724; the highest losses involved Nigerian letter fraud, with a median loss of $5,100," the report stated. "Nearly 74 percent of the complaints said they were contacted through e-mail, and 36 percent complained of fraud through websites, highlighting the anonymous nature of the web."

The FBI details numerous types of scams designed to part you from your cash and how to protect yourself.

Some of the most popular include:

- Auction Fraud — Before you bid, contact the seller with any questions you have, review the seller's feedback, use caution when dealing foreign sellers, understand refund, return and warranty policies and do not pay in cash.
- Counterfeit Cashier's Check — Inspect the check, ensure the dollar amount matches in figures and words, check to see that

Charlevoix administration building 'up by summer'

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted unanimously last week to hire Integrity Construction to build the district's new home.

Wasting no time to get the Charlevoix Public Schools Administrative offices out of the basement and into a new facility, the Gaylord firm owned by Glen Catt is expected to break ground this spring.

"We had 10 bids from Saginaw and Midland and all the way up in the Upper Peninsula," said Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik. "The targeted completion date is in July, so the building should be up by summer."

The winning bid to construct the 3,000 square-foot structure came in at $409,000.

"We were pleased with that (cost) because it is below what we anticipated," Janik said. "We're pleased that the bid was so competitive and I'm pleased the firm has ties with northern Michigan."

He added, "We're on budget and on goal for the projects approved from the 2003 sinking funds."

The school's next project to be put out for bid is the new bus barn/maintenance garage.

"That will pretty much complete the projects committed from those 2003 funds and we do have the resources for both of these projects," Janik said. "And, I think it's important to note that those funds cannot be used for operations, those are for building and improvement projects only."

The dilapidated two-story house which once housed the Charlevoix Schools administration offices is currently on the market for sale.

"There have been some inquiries, but we have not had a formal offer," Janik added.

It's syrup time for Friends of the Wagbo Sugar Bush

Courtesy photo

That sweet season is coming around again and the Friends of the Wagbo Sugar Bush (FWSB) are getting fired up for collectin' sap and makin' Maple syrup. This all-volunteer group has been running the 1600-plus tap maple syrup operations at Wagbo for two years now, producing maple syrup for sale to support the nonprofit programming of the center. The FWSB also offers seasonal educational tours/ field trips and an Annual Maple Syrup Festival, held the last Saturday of March.

The FWSB is always looking for new Friends. This is the perfect opportunity for anyone with an interest in maple syrup, making and/ or eating who likes to be outdoors in winter (and/ or in front of a roaring fire!), enjoy working with others toward a common goal and can spare some time between now and April. Training is provided and regardless of prior experience, there is a way to help out and support this historic, cultural, agricultural, and economic venture at the farm. Activities may include but are not limited to: tubing system maintenance and firewood collection; boiling sap and bottling syrup; education and special events; record-keeping and marketing. FWSB is also looking for someone with experience running an evaporator. Families are welcome. Day and evening hours plus the chance to earn syrup through a greater time commitment are available.

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Rayders overcame some "inspired" ball from Harbor Springs early in last week's match up, overcoming Harbor Springs' 20-13 lead after a quarter, and pulling away to remain undefeated in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Benefit fund hoped to help diagnose condition

Lacey Richardson of Charlevoix has been faced with medical problems, and friends and family have established a fund raising effort to help afford a trip to Mayo Clinich in Rochester, Minn. in hopes of initiating recovery.

Richardson, 32, is faced with an undiagnosed physical condition that has left her unable to work or live comfortably, riddled with pain, bruises and seizures, family members said One trip to Mayo has already been made, but afforded no diagnosis. Now Richardson requires an expensive procedure to help. A benefit fund has been set up at Charlevoix State Bank to assist with payment of another trip to the Mayo Clinic. Family and friends said anyone willing and able to help can make a donation in Richardson's name, and they thank any one who has or will help.

the account number is not shiny in appearance, inspect the check for additions, deletions or other alterations, contact the financial institution on which the check was drawn to ensure legitimacy and obtain the bank's telephone number from a source other than the check, make sure the drawer's signature is not traced.

- Credit Card Fraud — Ensure a site is secure and reputable before providing your credit card number online, don't trust a site just because it claims to be secure, promptly reconcile credit card statements to avoid unauthorized charges, beware of providing credit card information when requested through unsolicited e-mails.
- Nigerian letter or 419 — If the opportunity appears too good to be true, it probably is; do not reply to emails asking for personal banking information, be wary of individuals representing themselves as foreign government officials, beware when asked to assist in placing large sums of money in overseas bank accounts, do not believe the promise of large sums of money for your cooperation.
- Identity Theft — Ensure websites are secure prior to submitting your credit card number, do your homework to ensure the business or website is legitimate, attempt to obtain a physical address rather than a P.O. box or mail drop, never throw away credit card or bank statements in usable form, be aware of missed bills which could indicate your account has been taken over, never give your credit card number over the phone unless you make the call, monitor your credit statements monthly for any fraudulent activity, report unauthorized transactions to your bank or credit card company as soon as possible, review a copy of your credit report at least once a year.

"This is still fairly new for departments to have this capability, but the victims of these crimes need to have the issue resolved as soon as possible," Schneider said. "Therefore we felt it important to have our own internal forensic examiner certified to search those hard drives and extrapolate the information needed, the evidence needed to convict that crime."

Lt. Avery will work not only with the sheriff's office, but with the police departments of Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls when necessary.

Call your local police agency if you feel you have been the victim of a cybercrime.

entrance/egress or at least an egress there is feasible. The move will require approval from Walgreens and possibly the Michigan Department of Transportation, which has already approved the suggested site plan with two driveways. Cross' concern on the issue was supported by others, including chairman John Hess.

"That is a bugger of a corner. I've seen people almost die there trying to make left hand turns," he said, noting he would like to see "some kind of traffic analysis done there" to help with decisions of potential action on the issue.

"Now is the time to do it, not after (construction)," he added.

The Commission's final resolution approved the site plans presented, with the condition of checking into the traffic concerns, receiving written approval from MDOT concerning plans, receiving formal approval from Soil Erosion and Sediment, and with the understanding all requirements and regulations from the Commission and City of Charlevoix are met.

Commissioners also expressed concern about foot traffic near the corner, worrying pedestrians crossing US 31 would be in danger. Adding a crosswalk on the corner would "only invite pedestrians and still be unsafe," Hess said, and others agreed, deciding not to pursue any type of crosswalk at the site. Commissioners did request, however, Drane and Wyett seek input from MDOT on the issue.

In other business, Commissioners elected officers at last week's meeting, voting Hess remain chairman of the group. Vice Chair will be Francis Flanders and secretary will be Dianne Manore. The meeting schedule for 2008 was also set, with meetings to be held the second Monday of each month, beginning at 7 p.m. This is a change from last year's 6 p.m. meeting time.

Commissioners welcomed new City Planner Mike Spencer, who started the job last month replacing former planner Gary Harsch.

Commissioners set a public hearing to discuss site plans for a remodeling project at 206 Petoskey Ave. The hearing will be held at next month's meeting, scheduled for Feb. 11 at 7 p.m.

United Way campaign nearing completion said, noting the increase from a variety of employees throughout the two counties.

"We were happy to see Glen's Markets employee contributions went up. Folks in retail and service jobs can't give a lot but we are pleased to see they are giving what they can."

Shawn Hall, the Human Resources Director at St. Mary's Cement in Charlevoix and Co-Chair of this year's campaign, also noted her gratitude for the community's enthusiasm.

"Contributions to United Way from corporations, employees and individuals are all up this year," she stated. "It is good to see that everyone is rallying to support our neighbors who have hit a rough patch in the current economic downturn."

The next step in the process is to invite community volunteers and United Way Board of Directors together for the Community Involvement Allocation, to be held April 16. That is when area organizations, agencies and representatives of various programs will present information about the programs they believe will meet the needs within the Charlevoix Emmet community, and therefore are deserving of funds. Agencies are already submitting letters of intent to apply, and, after review, most of those agencies will be invited to present in April.

Last year, the process led to the distribution of $160,000 to 33 agencies which, in turn, provided services to over 20,000 local residents.

A press release from Char-Em United Way reminded the agency continues to accept tax-deductible contributions to the 2007-2008 campaign. Donations can be mailed to P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey, 49770. Gifts can be made online by going to: www.unitedway.org and entering the local zip code. For more information about United Way call (231)487-1006 or email: charemuw@sbcglobal.net

Chamber ready for next half century

BY ERICA GOFF

Good-byes, welcomes, thanks and praises were offered at the 50th annual Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Awards dinner and meeting last week as Chamber members and their Board of Director leaders prepared to enter "the next half century with optimism and high hopes."

"I moved here when I was a freshman in high school, and I completely embraced it," Grooters said when asked why he chose the city as a setting for his film.

Grooters said the beautiful, unique scenery of the city is not all that drew him to his conclusion of returning to the area to film. While his production company, Grooters Productions, has completed a variety of projects including books, screenplays, short films, commercials, training

Minor injuries in snowmobile crash

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to Charlevoix Area Hospital at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 21 where Steven Scott Knapp (38) of East Jordan was being treated for sore ribs, back and neck pain he received while riding his snowmobile.

Knapp was riding northeast on Nicholls Road and east 7th St. in the City of East Jordan. Knapp had just come from home, and was following a car out of town. As the car in front of him turned off, Knapp accelerated. This acceleration caused Knapp to lose control on the snow covered road, and crashed into a snowbank. Upon impact, Knapp was ejected from the snowmobile where he sustained his injuries.

Knapp was treated and released for minor bruises.

A story in last week's Courier named the appointed officers for the 2008 Charlevoix Planning Commission. The story stated Dianne Manore was voted secretary, when in fact the secretary has been and will remain Dianna Gully.

Free tax help available

Bay Winds Federal Credit Union recently announced that it is offering low- to moderate-income families free access to online resources needed to file for state and federal income tax credits and refunds. The computer program assists taxpayers in claiming their Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), which can be as high as $4,716 in addition to several other state and federal refunds that are often overlooked.

Bay Winds is one of 140 credit unions participating in this program called "Just file it! We'll help: Free tax preparation resources for those who need it most." The program is available through a link on the Bay Winds Federal Credit Union web site, www.baywindsfcu.com.

"More than $200 million in federal tax refunds went unclaimed in Michigan for the 2006 tax year by the people who need it most—low-income families and individuals," said David Lensink, President/CEO of Bay Winds Federal Credit Union.

There are a variety of federal and state tax credits in addition to the EITC that can benefit low- to moderate-income individuals/households. Additional federal tax credits include the Child Tax Credit and the Federal Child and Dependent Care Credit. Michigan tax credits include the Home Heating Tax Credit, the Homestead Property Tax Credit, and the Child Deduction. These credits are available to those who file income tax returns and those who are exempt from filing requirements.

Outgoing director, committed citizens honored

tive Officer of the Charlevoix Chamber. She helped mold Charlevoix into what it is today," stated Linda Mason, Chamber member and proprietor of Mason Interiors.

Merta was recognized for her commitment to the city and the Chamber, including her work to promote area retail business, further the retention and expansion efforts of industries in the Charlevoix area, and the support of a strong downtown through marketing and advertising programs. Mason also noted Merta's work with many of Charlevoix's signature events — the Downtown Easter Egg Hunt, the Summer Solstice Art Show, Car Raffle Fundraiser, Downtown Farmers Market and the Apple Fest, to name a few — and her "dedication and support" for each.

"Her views were instrumental in many local projects, from downtown improvements such as street side trees to the creation of our Industrial Development Committee," Mason said.

Merta was unable to attend the meeting, and Eric Kammermann of Northwest Marine Yacht Club accepted the award on her behalf, stating he knew her to be "honored" by the gesture.

Merta was replaced by new director Erin Bemis, who took over director duties Jan. 2. In addition to welcoming the crowd and introducing herself as the new executive director, one of Bemis' duties was to present the Outstanding Citizen Award to a resident who "goes above and beyond," and has all the characteristics of an outstanding citizen: "Stimulating, exciting, encouraging, engaging, inviting, exceeding."

"All of these are applicable words to describe outstanding. Put all of these words together and you still cannot summarize this year's recipient," Bemis said.

While unable to summarize him, it did not take Bemis long to describe enough for the crowd to guess the recipient — a founder of Four Winn's Boat Co., active fund raiser for a number of events including the Venetian Festival, the Harbor and Park renovation and the Fountain of Youth Committee, a Board member for Challenge Mountain and the Charevoix County Community Foundation, and member of the Our Town citizens group — is John Winn.

"John is an exemplary model of community service. He is an advocate for all that Charlevoix is and what we can become," Bemis said.

Winn was also a driving force in the oraiganization of the first Taste of Charlevoix, now an annual event, Bemis noted, which raises funds for the Fireworks Victim's Fund. Winn also served on the State Waterways Commission from 1999 to 2005, and was chairman for part of that time.

"This is a man who has vision and follow his heart. He is not one to sit on the sidelines," Bemis said. "If he believes in something, he rolls up his sleeves, jumps in and takes charge."

Unable to attend, Winn was said to have been "honored and humbled" by the award, which was accepted on his behalf by his friend, Mark Greyerbiehl.

The Ambassador Award is another annual recognition given to an individual who promotes the spirit of the Charlevoix community through Chamber programs. Jeff Sprecksell, General Manager of Stafford's Weathervane and outgoing vice chair of the board, introduced the 2008 recipient, an individual who became involved in the community while serving as general manager of her family's retail business. She was "instrumental in developing and growing the Downtown Farmers Market," Sprecksell said, and served on the Farmers Market Committee. She was also active in the promotion of and attracting visitors to downtown, served on the Retail Committee and was an avid supporter of Apple Fest. By the time her name was announced — Judy Friske Kehr — the audience had caught on to the clues and began congratulating.

"Anyone who has worked with her will recognize her determination, her strong will, her selflessness, her positive attitude and her love of community and family," Sprecksell said.

Kehr's brother, Neil Friske, accepted the award on her behalf.

"Judy would like to thank you for this. She loves her involvement, she talks about it all the time, and she's thankful for the opportunity to be on the board," Friske said.

The culmination of the evening came when Conlan again took the stage to present the Chairman's Award, given to a person in recognition of their outstanding contribution in helping the Chamber accomplish its mission for the benefit and betterment of the greater Charlevoix area. As Chairman, it is Conlan's job to recommend a recipient to the Board of Directors, and he said there was no hesitation about recommending Jim Hater, President and General Manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing Company.

"He is hard working and dedicated and does not seek the limelight," Conlan said of Hater.

Conlan described Hater's various contributions to the area, including the establishment of his business in Charlevoix, his activity in the Chamber, the foundation of the Charlevoix Industrial Committee, service on the Chamber's Industrial Retention Committee, service on the Day of Caring Steering Committee, and service as Chairman of the Board for the Bergmann Center. Hater is also a long-time member, current director and past president of the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association, and is the current director and co-chair of the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association Workers Compensation Fund.

Hater's efforts were recognized on a state level last year, when he was a finalist for the Michigan Manufacturer of the Year.

"This award brought statewide recognition to Charlevoix and its business community," Conlan said.

Hater was present to accept his award, and was "honored by it, humbled by it, and thankful."

"I believe in Charlevoix, I love Charlevoix. It is my home and anything I can do to make it a better place, I will do," Hater said.

The ABC's of the corporate tax world

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

The federal government paid $92 billion in subsidies to private businesses in 2006, so why should you care that the 21st Century Jobs Fund, a spiffy name for a $2 billion chunk of your state tax money, continues to be doled via the latest welfare flushed incantation, the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC).

It seems pretty straight forward: Politician "A" promises your money to Company "B" if "B" promises to build a factory in city "Q."

Here's where it gets tricky: State "Z" then offers "B" more tax money than did "A" and "B" drops its "XYZ and says "F" to "Y-O-U."

In the trickle-down idiocy of corporate welfare, they'll even finance your competition.

That is precisely what occurred when Michigan gave millions in economic incentive packages (i.e. tax breaks, infrastructure improvements) to both Boar's Head meats ($5.1 million incentive package) and Cabela's sportsman equipment company ($27.8 million), each of whom compete with Koegel's and Jay's Sporting Goods respectively.

And then there is Sensicore, the Ann Arbor manufacturer of water treatment sensors, which a few years ago "flirted" with New Jersey, wrote Mark Puls on Michigansmalltech.com, but was given 1.5 million tax funded reasons to stay.

"Flirt," "extort," why quibble over semantics?

Sensicore's shady tactics are routine and certainly nothing new, as Greg LeRoy explained in his booklet No More Candy Store: "The Township of Ypsilanti ... sued GM in 1992, alleging that 17 years of tax abatements worth $1.3 billion had included pledges by GM to keep operating its 4,500-worker plant in Willow Run."

Ypsilanti lost and the jobs went to Texas.

In 2006, Granholm said the MEDC, "promotes smart economic growth by developing strategies and providing services to create and retain good jobs and a high quality of life."

The current administration claims more than 200,000 jobs have been created by the MEDC, but according to Mackinac Center for Public Policy economist Michael LaFaive, too many factors make it possible to corroborate or deny the claims.

"Michigan, even in bad years, creates and destroys about a half million jobs a year," he said, and pointed to a 2004 claim by then Gov. John Engler that previous cash seam the Michigan Economic Growth Association (MEGA) created 74,000 jobs, despite a report which proved MEGA, at best, created 13,500 jobs.

Other pseudo success stories include Internet-based grocer webvan.com (now defunct), which was offered $23.4 million in incentives, and Waldenbooks, which in the mid-1990s was offered nearly $8 million—one of the requirements of the incentives being that the executives sign a form stating the subsidies were the reason they located in Michigan—only to later discover that executives had put deposits on homes before the subsidy was passed into law and an employee said Michigan had always been the preferred place to locate.

Meanwhile, cheek deep in the middle of a one-state recession, the MEDC, put five more tool and die operations on its list of similar companies exempt from most state and local taxes for up to 15 years according to the CEO of the MEDC on Jan. 11.

Speaking of 24 winners of $35 million of your tax money in 2006, Granholm said, "No state is doing more to diversify its economy than we are."

And yet, nary a state is doing worse than we are: coincidence?

Dying to know how much tax money goes to those who dole the corporate welfare, I repeatedly rang the MEDC for a detailed budget.

I finally got an e-mail stating, "The FY07 MSF budget was part of the omnibus budget appropriations bill -- HB 5796, PA 345 of 2006. The FY08 MSF budget is part of the General Government budget bill - SB 229, PA 127 of 2007."

(Maybe you'll have better luck than I did. Here's Bridget Beckman's e-mail: beckmanb1@michigan.org and phone (517) 241-9446.)

According to LaFaive, the MEDC took $244 million from taxpayers from 1999 to 2002.

For those of us worried the state might create monsters by falling on bended knee and prostrating ourselves on a rug made of your money every time a business threatens to build a plant in Indonesia: It's too late. We are in the thick of gnashing teeth and bloody tongues. The financial juggernauts are already off the silken leash.

C'mon, if anyone needs a $10 million tax credit and a $4.5 million tax abatement, it's Dow Chemical of Midland.

Back when I was a kid clad in ratty jeans and yard sale shoes, spending that monopoly-esque government script on generic macaroni and cheese (is there cheese in that DayGlo orange powder?) it was traumatic. Used to be, living on welfare was shameful. Little did I know I was actually participating in economic development.

Why, anyone rich or poor reading this should stop what they are doing, run down to the nearest FIA office and demand your subsidy: Plumbers, collect those food stamps; carpenters, demand cash to keep your business in town; restaurateurs, stomp your feet until you get the tax abatement you desire; and me, I'm gonna hold my breath until I'm exempted from

Fishing 'lures' interest of Ear to the Ground

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Don't get me wrong. I love winter in Charlevoix, but it is a difficult time for me. If a person does not like being cold, doesn't want to ski anymore, shudders at the thought of an ice rink, and believes that snowshoes make wonderful wall decorations, winter can be an awkward few months. I don't understand boredom, so something to do during these short January days is important. Dreaming with the photos from a few seed catalogs can take a person only so far. Desperate times call for desperate measures. Last week I did a thorough inventory of my fishing tackle boxes (yes, Virginia, that is a plural.)

It was immediately apparent that I need a Fishing Tackle Box Management course, or possibly a more sound business plan for that piscatorial enterprise. I did not attempt an economic analysis, only a numerical count. The numbers surprised me, because I think of my collection as a modest one compared to those of some of the people I have observed or fished with. In this report we will focus only on what we called lures. My numerical analysis suggests that they are only incidentally lures for fish. I am forced to conclude that most of them are lures for fishermen. It turns out that the fish buy only a very few of them.

Lures fall into two general categories: what are commonly called spoons, and what are usually referred to as body baits, which are meant to resemble minnows in shape or action. My spoon collection consists of one hundred-twenty-nine items. The spoons are of several sizes and any imaginable color, pattern or texture, with names like monkey puke, raspberry and Michael Jackson. They don't all have names, but the names make it easier to talk about them on the marine radio bands. Some are very popular one year and then fall into disuse, while others, like "that one with the green and silver and the shiny stripe" are perennial favorites.

Most of the body baits also have names, some descriptive and some reflecting a manufacturer. Names like "Fire Tiger," which sounds like it would catch fish by itself if you only released it into the water, or "Blue Baby" are understandable, but "Ping-a-tee" doesn't provide many clues to appearance of function. Rapala, the manufacturer of the "original Finnish minnow" seems to make more body baits than almost anyone, and certainly the majority of my seventy-five minnow imitators come from there.

If I fished with the legal three downrigger lines, I would have to spend about 70 hours on the lake just to try each of the lures for an hour or less. I haven't done that. The majority of the lures have never been in the water.

My only defense for this collection is that I did not buy them all myself. Quite a few are actually gifts, and many more arrived when I bought a whole tackle box some years ago. Those 200 lures have in their past attracted at least a half-dozen fishermen, and an unknown number of fish.

Overall, my inventory of lures and all the accompanying paraphernalia has convinced me that the tackle boxes are much like small, portable Black Holes of the sort that astronomers study. Everything goes into them and nothing ever comes out. The attraction of lures is so powerful that none is ever discarded.

LETTERS to the editor

SAY YES TO NUCLEAR POWER

Editor:

As someone who has been intimately involved in the generation and distribution of electricity in this country for more than 20 years, I would like to compliment Mr. Gohs for his editorial in the January 16th edition of the Courier. It is refreshing to find common sense being promoted in the media every once in a while.

Too often, the vocal minority stand in the way of real progress and, in this case, the necessary construction of vital infrastructure. We are straining the capability of our existing generating capacity every summer and the problem only gets worse. Most people do not know this country, the United States of American, the richest country in the world, has to import electricity from Canada. Embarrassing, but true.

We have all heard the horror stories which come out of California. And, in case you have not heard the latest from the Golden State, Big Brother is now planning to install remote-controlled thermostats in California homes in order to determine how much electric power individual households use during peak demand periods. Before you think this is harmless, consider what other appliances will be under government control if this is "successful."

Despite all this, there are people who remain opposed to the construction of new power plants. They apparently live a life of delusion, believing either the electricity will magically appear when the light switch is flipped or 300 million Americans will stop using it in this, the computer age. Nice thought, but it's just not going to happen.

Coal and nuclear are safe and clean. And, until we can all buy a Mr. Fusion Home Energy Reactor (recall Dr. Brown's time vehicle), they are the only viable solutions we have to the energy crisis facing this country. Building more power plants is necessary and delaying that construction is irresponsible at best.

THANKS FROM RED CROSS

Editor:

One of the benefits of being a blood donor for the American Red Cross is getting a phone call from Dr. Phil. Even though it is a prerecorded message, it is still pretty impressive! Dr. Phil reminds us that every two seconds in the United States, someone needs a blood transfusion. He talks about the importance of scheduling an appointment to donate at a local blood drive.

Well, I am certainly proud of the response by Charlevoix donors and my Red Cross volunteers.

The Red Cross collected 104 pints from 116 donors at the Community Reformed Church on January 17. What an amazing turnout. I thank Pastor Sauer and his congregation for welcoming all of us to their church.

The Red Cross considers a three-day blood supply safe and adequate for meeting the needs of Michigan hospitals. Thank you so very much, Charlevoix, for doing your best to boost that supply! Can you imagine how grateful the patients and their families are? Thank you to all of the volunteers and donors throughout the community who give their time and resources for this most important life saving endeavor.

There will be a blood drive at Bethany Lutheran Church on March 13, noon until 5:45. Watch for information on the next drive at the Reformed Church in May.

My most sincere thanks.

B.A.S.E.S.

Editor:

Northwestern Michigan has a facility to be proud of! As you may know, statistics indicate that drug & alcohol abuse, is a growing and wide spread problem in northern Michigan and beyond. My daughter, Stephanie, became a statistic this past summer. Stephanie was an all-conference softball player with good grades, family and a foundation of faith.

Like many teens, her experimentation led to a full-fledged addiction. Her grades dropped significantly. Her softball skills diminished. She was very hurtful to herself and family, and her faith was not a priority. She was literally on a dead end path.

We were unsuccessful finding a local facility to address her many needs. I received information from a family member about the merits of your local B.A.S.E.S. (Bay Area Substance Education Services) Facility located in Charlevoix. We met with Scott and Celia Kelly, Co-founders of B.A.S.E.S. and while they gave us no guarantees, they gave us plenty of reason(s) for hope! To state it succinctly, they not only handled her addictions "head on" but also dished out "tough love" and guidance to improve her both mind, body and soul. There is a special place in heaven for people doing the work of Scott and Celia. There is also a very very special place right here on earth and it is located in Charlevoix, Michigan.

PLANNING FOR THE CITY

Editor:

While reading the article about the planning commission's approval of the new Walgreen's site plan, I was amazed at their discussion about the inclusion of sidewalks and pursuing a pedestrian crossing at M-66 and US-31. Especially with Chairman Hess' concerns as to sidewalks and a pedestrian crossing only encouraging people to cross at that dangerous intersection. What? This conclusion is hugely faulty and extremely dangerous for the planning commission to base any decision on. The lack of a crosswalk will not discourage a motivated adult or youngster from crossing a street, downtown proves that. The difference with this location is that the traffic will be moving 2 to 3 times faster, with at least twice the lanes of traffic and an increased, multi-directional, traffic volume for a walker or bike to navigate.

To start the first new development south of M-66 with a conscious goal (by design) of prohibiting pedestrian access, will have huge long term effects to any business that will follow Walgreen's arrival to the south. The short term effects, with the creation of this new retail destination, will be unregulated attempts by pedestrians and bicycles to cross two major trunk lines; not to mention the creation of a new City policy direction not to provide for anyone to walk or bike to this part of town.

I believe the City can require Walgreens to install a sidewalk on the site. I also know that MDOT will participate in discussions about a crosswalk, at what is basically their intersection. I would also think Harbor Industries would like a seat at the table.

I would strongly suggest that the City rethink its direction on this site plan. It will be difficult and expensive to make a correction in years to come if this goes as the Initial discussion suggests.

NEW ANSWERS NEEDED FOR FUNDING WOES

Editor:

I generally agree with Roger Knutson's piece in the 16 January issue concerning roads.

I have no details on how the current system is structured for road building, maintenance, and snow removal, but clearly something is not working well.

I just want to comment on what I think is the logic about how it "should be."

It seems that all roads are toll roads. We pay the toll at the gas pump as gas tax, and we pay it in proportion to our use of the roads where we drive (our area, mostly.) The state gas tax should be high enough (when properly allocated) to cover all of the "road building, maintenance, and snow removal" in the State. It might also be proper to include support items for the roads such as highway patrol and a portion of municipal police costs that deal with the roads. Otherwise, none of the gas tax should be used on anything other than road related needs. That is how simple it should be; I doubt that that is the way it works right now!

If things were structured that way, the most difficult task would probably be how to properly allocate the funds. From my arm's-length point of view, the present problems appear to stem from the misallocation of funds (and possibly a poorly structured system).

Tax officials advise, be sure to claim your cash

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

IRS officials urge Michiganders, 82 percent of whom are eligible for a tax refund, to file well before the April 15 deadline.

With a slew of firms, do-it-yourself software and free government help, there is no excuse not to tackle your tax preparation soon, Michigan branch IRS spokesman Luis Garcia advised.

"It's frustrating when we see people not using the free software provided for them," Garcia said. "It's the same exact stuff you would pay $30 to $80 for whether you walk in a store or buy it online, but we are partnering with several major software providers and our FreeFile service is free to anyone making $54,000 or under."

He added, "You can do it online, in the privacy of your own home in a safe and secure environment. And, if you use direct deposit, you can get your money in 10 days or less—and it's totally free."

To use FreeFile: Gather all tax documents and banking information, go to www.irs.gov and click on the "Use Free File to Prepare Your Taxes" link at the top of the page. You will then be given options of companies from which to choose. Choose a company and file your taxes.

FreeFile is free for federal taxes, but the cost for filing your state tax return was only $13.50 at the #1 Discount Tax Service website and Garcia said the online tax preparation service is easy enough for anyone who knows how to use a computer. It also has a high rate of accuracy.

"It's very straightforward. They walk you through it and it asks you the same questions regular software or a tax preparer would ask," he said. "Using electronic software for taxes has a less than one percent chance for error. If you fill it out longhand and send it in the mail, you have a 20 percent chance for an error."

He added, "And nobody wants to have problems with their return."

Once you have completed your taxes using FreeFile, which is available 24 hours a day and even in Spanish, you will receive, within 48 hours, a confirmation e-mail.

Those whose adjusted gross income was more than $54,000 may file their tax returns online through the IRS's e-file program—costs vary.

Another major change people do not take advantage of, Garcia said, is a change to their own income.

"The biggest change affecting us in Michigan is the number of people who previously didn't qualify for the Earned Income Tax Credit because they were working lots of overtime or had a much higher paying position and now they make enough to qualify, but are not taking advantage of it," he said. "If your adjusted gross income is $40,000 or less, you will probably qualify for this, and it's a big chunk of money we don't want people in Michigan to go miss out on."

Garcia said a family of four making less than $40,000 will usually get a refund of about $2,500, but if they apply for the EIC, they can get an additional $4,700.

"We need that money here in Michigan," Garcia said. "We're hearing from a lot of our community partners and other organizations that people are not aware that it is there for them."

He added, "That is tens of millions of dollars that people are leaving on the table."

Garcia said another big change in tax code is the Alternative Minimum Tax, a tax devised in 1969 to ensure higher income earners who avoided paying their share of taxes through certain loopholes and deductions would pay their fair share of tax.

"The alternative minimum tax patch passed by congress late last December will affect people who are filing certain forms for education credits, residential energy credits, child and dependent care expenses and mortgage interest credit, not to be confused with the mortgage interest deduction," Garcia said. "Those people who are filing those forms will have to wait until (Feb. 11) to file in Michigan. That's going to affect several thousand early filers and we want them to be aware if they send in those returns before the 11th, we will send them back or reject them."

Garcia said the change was made so late in the year that the IRS's computer systems are simply not yet ready for the workload.

The Alternative Minimum Tax applies to single filers who earned $44,350; married filers who earned $66,250; and married filers who file separately who earned $33,125.

Finally, Garcia said, do not fall victim to fallacious claims by some that you need not pay your taxes.

"If you follow the advice of scam promoters who say you don't have to pay taxes, you are ultimately going to get into trouble," he said. "If you make a mistake on your return we can pretty much figure out that it was an accident, but if you are doing something illegal on purpose, you are going to be stuck with a headache."

Garcia added, "If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is."

TAX TIPS FROM THE IRS:

- You may now split your refund and have it sent to up to three different accounts.
- Obtain a copy of your tax return, for a $39 fee, by calling (800) 829-1040 or visit www.irs.gov.
- Tax information is available in Spanish (Informacion tributaria en Espanol) — (800) 829-3676 or www.irs.gov/espanol
- Be careful when choosing a tax preparer: Get references; choose someone who you can contact after the return is filed.
- Report suspected tax fraud and/or abusive tax preparers by downloading form 3949-A at www.irs.gov or by order via mail by calling (800) 829-3676
- Good record keeping will save time and prevent additional stress while filing taxes — save all bills, receipts, invoices, mileage logs and other documents which affect your tax returns.
- Beware of scammers claiming affiliation with the IRS — there is only one official website: www.irs.gov

Take advantage ...

Officials say free tax services — available from the IRS — are under-utilized. The free software, FreeFile, is available for anyone making $54,000 or less

Go to www.irs.gov, click "Use Free File to Prepare Your Taxes" and follow instructions

Local vet remembers day that ship wouldn't die

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Silence. Explosion. Men screaming, steel quaking and intense heat. The sailor, who had enlisted just 3 years prior at the age of 15, struggled to comprehend twisted steel and burning bodies.

Another explosion. The ship rocked under the force of the second 550-pound bomb to hit the U.S.S. Franklin—Big Ben, as the sailors called it.

"It was March the 19th of 1945. We lost hundreds of men off the crew and we lost probably about, I would say, between 65 and 70 percent of the air group," said Don Greyerbiehl, 18 at the time of the ship's worst attack. "We had 16 fighters in the air at that time and they were launching them."

Greyerbiehl was a boatswain working the catapult crew of the flight deck of the Franklin, which sailed to within 50 miles of Japan—closer to the mainland than any other carrier during the war.

But wait, volunteers for the military had to be at least 17 to enlist in the early 1940s, and only with signed approval from a parent or guardian.

To find out how the then-youngster found himself in the middle of one of the greatest losses of life aboard a ship during the second great war, one must go back to a school 66 years ago.

Greyerbiehl

Greyerbiehl was still an underclassman at St. Michael's in Flint when he heard the news.

"We got the word the Japanese had attacked the United States on a Sunday and right away everybody just wanted to go," he said. "I tried to go down and enlist, but they wouldn't take me because I was 14. I went home and told my dad, 'I gotta go, I gotta go. There's a war on.'"

Greyerbiehl's father talked his son out of the idea, but it wasn't long before the itch to shove off was again unbearable.

"The next year I was in the 10th-grade and the excitement (to enlist) was there again and my dad said, 'you can't go in the service, you're not old enough,'" he said. "So I just kind of settled down until November when the brother of a friend was in the navy and he was underage too at the time. He said, 'I can tell you what to do.'"

Greyerbiehl lied about his age by stating that he was 17 on a birth certificate and presented it to the recruiter.

"I figured they were going to need all the men they could get, but they said you're going to have to have your dad's signature on it," he said. "I took the paper home and he signed it for me, but he said, 'Now you know once you're in, you're in.'"

Third generation takes over Harbor Industries, Inc.

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Harbor Industries, Inc. employees now have a new leader, but a familiar face, that will continue the company's embrace of core moral values.

"We are a family owned company. Our decision making process is different than most company structures because we are family oriented and we know the folks here and we'll continue that by all means," said newly appointed president of Harbor Industries Tim Parker.

Parker's move up from vice president, a position he held since 2000 when he helped guide construction of the new Harbor Industries facility in Charlevoix, became effective Jan. 1. He is now the third generation to head the family operation, which was founded by his grandfather, Henry T. Parker, Sr. The second generation president, Ted Parker, said it was "a natural transition" when he took over in 1971, having been a full time employee since 1960 and working his way up.

"I think the family business was in my blood," Ted Parker said.

The tradition continued, with Ted's children also working their way up the ladder. Tim started mowing the lawn at the original Grand Haven location when he was 14 years old, continuing maintenance work until his freshman year of college. That summer he moved into Inventory Control, where he continued work until he graduated from Michigan State University. He then became a full-time employee, serving as special project manager until he returned to school, this time to the Weatherhead School of Management at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, where he earned a Masters of Business Administration. He again returned to Harbor Industries full time, climbing the ladder of command until taking the vice president of operations position in 2000, when he was involved with the construction of the new Charlevoix facility. Tim said he feels fortunate to have the team that he has under him.

History

Ted Parker's father, Henry T. Parker, Sr., founded Harbor Industries, Inc. with the first location in Grand Haven. Ted's friend, Tom Erber, invited him to Charlevoix for a visit in 1958 and he "fell in love with the area." In 1981 he purchaed the Freedman Artcraft Company from Norcross Greeting Cards and Harbor moved to the area.

A new facility was built in 2000-01, and Harbor Industries now employs approximately 220 people and is a leading industry in the area.

"We truly are very fortunate to have such a competent group of folks here. It sounds cliché when you say it's all about the people, but here it really is," he said.

In addition to Tim's advancement, his sister, Cindy Parker Euscher, who started in the family business in 1988, will advance from management in the Harbor Interactive Technologies Division to Executive Vice President of the company. Since earning her degree in business from Central Michigan University, Cindy has played a "vital role in a number of key areas including sales and marketing," a press release stated. Her father, Ted, said he feels confident about handing leadership down through the family.

"Both Tim and Cindy have had extensive training and have a combined total of 36 years in preparation for the transition. It is time for new ideas and approaches to compete in this fast changing world we find ourselves in," Ted said.

Tim said his time with the company thus far has prepared him for this step, something he and the Board of Directors have spent years preparing for, and he is proud to represent the third generation of family leadership.

"It is very humbling. Obviously, following my dad and my grandfather I've got big shoes to fill," he said, noting statistics show few family-owned businesses make it to the second generation, and fewer make it to the third.

"This is very rewarding," he said.

The transition will not cause much change for the environment or vision of the company, Tim said. Harbor Industries operates largely via its four core values, which he explained:

1. Make It Right - "We stand behind what we do," he said.

2. Do What is Right - "This is our moral compass. We believe the good guys do finish first."

3. Take Care of Our Own - "We have a role to play in the community, and we will offer involvement and assistance as much as possible," Tim said, describing some of the many community projects Harbor Industries is involved in, both at the Grand Haven location and here in Charlevoix, such as the Harbor People Helping People program and United Way involvement.

4. Solve Problems Through Creativity and Innovation - "We are always looking for better ways to do things, and we strive for continual improvements."

While Tim and his wife and two children continue to reside in Grand Haven through much of the year, they make frequent trips to Charlevoix, considering it somewhat of a second home, and will continue to play an integral part of the community.

Tim said it has been and will continue to be important to support the city of Charlevoix.

"We are fortunate to be here. We had been here for nearly 20 years before we built the new facility, and we couldn't walk away from this community. It is home (for Harbor Industries)," he said.

Tim said part of his vision and that of the company as a whole is to continue to grow and remain competitive in what he said is a "fragmented market." Competing against companies of similar size and larger as well as "garage shops" of a much smaller scale, Harbor Industries must remain competitive and continue to grow its client base. Striving for efficiency is another major goal.

"We continue to push to lead the market and remain cost competitive," Tim said.

Citizens group searching for money for road repair

BY FRED GRAY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW

Next meeting 9:30 a.m., Feb. 2 at the Boyne City library
For information visit www.fixbc-charrdnow.com

The group that hopes to reconstruct Charlevoix County roads, including the 17-mile Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, presented their case at a standing-room only meeting of the county board of commissioners.

"The fact is the Boyne City-Charlevoix road has outlived its usefulness, and needs to be re-built in its entirety," said Ken Allen, spokesman for the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County.

Allen said urgent attention should be given to two-and-a-half miles "red zone," the most dangerous portion of the road, from Nelson to Sumner roads.

County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon previously advised the group that under the best scenario, with a funding source identified, the engineering plans could be completed over the next year and a half, with construction beginning in the fall of 2009, well in advance of the four miles scheduled to be reconstructed in 2011/12.

Allen presented the commissioners a packet of information that included talking points on the project, supported by comments of Harmon and the road commissioners from 2004 to the present.

He presented a list of the group's recommendations for immediate action that include funding engineering for the "red zone," using county general or "rainy day" funds as needed, and grants for the reconstruction itself.

Allen also suggested the county consider a 10-year bond issue of up to $10 million, which would provide the balance of funding for the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road and other high priority roads and infrastructure needs, as determined by the county commissioners and the voters.

The commissioners responded with a mixture of interest and skepticism, with some suggesting that voters might respond favorably to a proposal that included roads throughout the county. Others said voters were already overtaxed and should not take on further burdens.

Board chair Chris Christensen said he favored allowing county voters to decide for themselves whether such a proposal had merit. He said that to the extent possible he wanted to avoid allowing the state to shirk its responsibilities for funding road improvements by funding them locally.

The board has until April to adopt a resolution to put a county-wide millage proposal on the August primary ballot.

Melrose Township Supervisor Mike Webster, a member of the group, said that based on his experience with the township's bonding for a new township hall, he considered bonding a "reasonable solution" to the county's road problems.

But, he cautioned, "unless there is a county-wide effort, it will be dead in the water."

He said the group, and the county, needs to develop a three-prong approach, focusing on federal, state and local resources.

Group member Connie Saltonstall, a former county commissioner, said she was encouraged by Wednesday night's heavy turnout for the meeting, and the cooperation of the road commission and various segments of the public to the group's proposals.

"We need to plan to begin," she said.

Webster invited the commissioners and members of the public to a meeting of the local chapter of the Michigan Township Association at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 28, at the Boyne City City Hall, to further discuss the subject.

Norwood Township supervisor Tim Boyko said a successful funding drive would provide a major economic stimulus for the county for years.

The Concerned Citizens group met Saturday, Jan. 12, to review the previous week's public meetings with Congressman Bart Stupak and state Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, and to organize their future efforts.

The group has scheduled a meeting for 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 2, at the Boyne City library. Organizer Jerry Malelski said minutes of the meetings will be posted at the group's Web site: www.fixbc-charrdnow.com.

Odds and ends from Charlevoix City Council

DNR Grant

Council passed a resolution to accept a grant agreement with the Department of Natural Resources, a $200 grant the city applied for in the summer of 2007. Street Superintendent Pat Elliot received confirmation from the DNR Jan. 14 announcing the city had been randomly chosen as a grant recipient. The $200 grant requires a local dollar-for-dollar match, and will be used for tree planting expenses downtown. Council's resolution officially received the monies.

Walgreens

City council reviewed information from the Planning Commission regarding its recommendation to go ahead with the proposed construction of a Walgreens facility on the corner of M-66 and US 31. Council accepted the recommendation, which included a request to examine the possibility of an additional drive at the location.

Budget

City Treasurer Rick Brandi presented a budget amendment for the 2007-08 budget ordinance to council, which summarized various adjustments made in spending and revenues throughout the year. Some changes include such things as a $30,450 boost in RV taxes, a $8,256 cut in state grant funding and others for a total revenue adjustment of -$37,873 in the General Fund. Other funds, such as the Major Street Fund, The Airport Fund, and the Downtown Development Authority also had amendments. A public hearing is set for 7 p.m. Feb. 18 at City Hall to discuss the amendment before it is approved.

Brandi also introduced an ordinance for the 2008-09 budget which sets tax millage rates to support the budget. A public hearing on the ordinance will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 18 at City Hall.

Local business helps environment in 'Big' way

BY BETH ANNE PIEHL
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

John Campbell, founder of Big Fish Environmental, holds two bottles comparing the difference between the raw sewage that enters the Big Fish Environmental system in the dark bottle and the treated waste that leaves the plant.

Courtesy photo

Big Fish Environmental technician Corey Ostrum notes the growth of various plants using organic discharge as fertilizer.

Humans create bodily waste. It's a fact of life. Not a pretty one, but a fact nonetheless.

What if there was a way to more safely discard the gallons of waste into the environment, or even re-use it?

Enter: Big Fish Environmental in Charlevoix.

Formed in February 2005, founder John Campbell has devised a method for processing waste from septic systems and portable toilets and turning it into usable product, or at least a cleaner material for disposal.

"Big Fish Environmental provides a new, low-cost environmentally sound solution for processing septic tank sludge from suburban and rural developments, without the use of harsh chemicals," the company's Web site explains. "In their place we use products of mother nature, such as oxygen, micro organisms, lemon juice and lime."

Campbell said the resulting material, after it is treated through the plant's multi step operating process, can be used as soil enhancement for landscaping.

"It's 99.9 percent organic," he said.

HOW BIG FISH WORKS

Instead of direct land application of untreated waste, as has been a standard waste disposal method, Big Fish processes the material in a fully contained, odorless facility, resulting in an effluent capable of going directly to a municipal wastewater treatment plant for final treatment and safe discharge into the environment.

The benefit: This approach ensures ground water and surface water are protected.

The facility has also been licensed by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, Campbell noted, which means septic haulers within a 15 mile radius must bring their materials to Big Fish or another septic receiving station. The DEQ license also recognizes the unique approach to septage treatment and disposal developed by Big Fish.

"To date we have processed over 2.5 million gallons of sewage," said Campbell. "There are a lot of goals here. One is brought forth by the U.S. Environmental Protection Act and the laws of the state of Michigan to protect the safety, health and welfare of the people and our environment."

Here's how the plant works:

A septage hauler enters the enclosed facility and discharges the waste into a tank. Concrete, stone and hard solid objects are removed. The pH of the material is then tested. Next the amount is metered and a screening process removes inorganic materials (like feminine products, baby wipes, etc.) and hair; that material goes to a landfill.

The organic material remaining is put into a chamber where sand is settled out, in an anaerobic (without oxygen) tank. Next oxygen is added and the homogenized material is mixed and pumped into another tank where the pH is raised to the level required by the DEQ.

The material is held for 24 hours and constantly mixed, then a patented piece of equipment called a screw press separates the majority of liquids and solids. Proprietary microbes are also introduced into the system.

"It's heated and compacted and squeezed and comes out relatively dry," Campbell said. "It is relatively clean."

The result is a peat moss like material that can be packaged in 50 pound bags.

Big Fish employs two full time staff members and two engineers, and the plant operates 24 hours a day.

To put the changes in septage treatment in perspective, Campbell said it used to be emptied essentially into a hole in the ground, spread out in a designated area or dumped in a landfill.

He said as far as the company is aware, Big Fish's process has not been accomplished with septage by any other business.

"It's been a lot of fun doing this project, and over the last six months we have reduced our solids content by 99.9 percent. That's phenomenal," Campbell said. "Our next goal is groundwater discharge."

Charlevoix takes Grayling down

Another week, two more wins.

The Charlevoix High School boys' basketball team made relatively quick work of two opponents last week, improving to 12-1 overall and 8-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The Rayders down league foe Grayling, 67-35, Friday, two nights after dispatching Suttons Bay, 83-68, in a non-league game. Charlevoix was ranked fifth last week in the Associated Press Class C state poll.

The Rayders were scheduled to play host to Traverse City St. Francis in the second game of a girls-boys varsity doubleheader on Tuesday, and on Friday, goes to Boyne City. St. Francis entered the week second behind the Rayders in the Lake Michigan Conference at 5-2, while Boyne is 4-3, tied with East Jordan for third.

St. Francis was 10-3 overall and Boyne 5-7 — but winners of four straight — entering the week.

The Rayders built a 31-10 halftime lead in cruising past Grayling, 3-8 overall, 2-5 league.

"This was one of our better efforts," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "We were really getting after it and giving them trouble with the pressure defense. Hopefully we'll have the same kind of effort Tuesday against St. Francis."

Corey Gotshall had 16 points for Charlevoix, while Justin Friske added 13 points, Nate LaBlance had 11, and Austin Wilhelm had eight.

Charlevoix won the JV game 60-43. Alex Foster had 16 points, Tyler Jones, 13.

Gotshall had 22 points in leading the Rayders by Suttons Bay.

Charlevoix outscored the Norse, 34-10, in the second quarter for a comfortable 51-30 halftime lead.

"I think it was the highest-scoring quarter we've had in about eight years," Haske said."The kids turned up the presure a little bit. Everything just went our way."

Gotshall scored nine of his points in the quarter, while teammate Weston Bryan had six of his 12 points in the stanza.

LaBlance added 15 points and seven steals for the Rayders, while Friske added 14 points, and Bryan finished with four assists and four steals. Gotshall added seven rebounds and five steals.

Nick Loberg scored 20 points and Ben Walters added 16 for Suttons Bay.

Suttons Bay won the JV game, 68-31.

Leah Kelly signs with Lansing Community College

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Softball can teach many lessons: Give it your all, all the time; pick up your teammates; pick up yourself. Charlevoix High School Senior and Lady Rayder second baseman Leah Kelly has learned these lessons and more, and is now preparing to take that knowledge on to the next level.

Leah, daughter of Scott and Celia Kelly of Charlevoix, signed a letter of intent to play softball for Lansing Community College beginning in the 2009 season. With one more high school season to go, and a lot to look forward to, Leah reflected on the work she's done to get this far.

"I started playing softball when I was pretty young. I watched my dad play and was fascinated by it," she recalled. "So I started playing and I got better and really enjoyed it."

Eventually Leah got to a point she believed softball to be more than a pasttime for her, and wanted to pursue it on a more serious level. Then just a sophomore in high school, she decided to see if she could "cut it" at the college level.

"Leah said she wanted to play softball in college, so we started working really hard, honing in on those skills," Scott said. "It was really important to her."

Leah's desire to advance also put her parents to work, investigating potential schools for her to study and play at during her college career. Scott said it was a "learning experience" for him, and he was glad with his daughter's decision to attend LCC.

"I had been a baseball coach and most of the success I had with kids going away to college was to community colleges," he said.

Leah said LCC was the right choice for her because of the team she would be joining. During camps and visits to other colleges, she didn't "click" with the coaches or teams, but felt right at home at LCC.

"I felt like one of the team right away. It just felt right," she said of the team and head coach Bob Every.

While she feels part of the team now, Leah will officially become one of the LCC Stars — the team's nickname — in the fall.

Scott said he was also pleased with the successful track record the LCC program boasts. Brought back into the limelight in 2000 by Coach Every, the team has been to the DII College World Series six of the past eight years, and four of those six saw the team in the finals.

Basketball: Ladies take two

Taking out a little frustration, a little anger.

Five nights after suffering its first Lake Michigan Conference loss of the season, the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team responded with a pair of resounding victories to maintain its lead in the league.

The Rayders ripped Harbor Springs, 75-25; and Grayling, 74-32; last week to improve to 12-2 overall and 9-1 in the league. They lead second-place East Jordan by one game. The Red Devils handed the Rayders their only league loss of the year, 39-37, on Jan. 17.

Desi Faust, Ericka Faust, KC McCary and Meridith Rich scored 10 points apiece to lead the Rayders past Harbor Springs, which is 2-12, 1-8.

Olivia Catt had 15 points, Becca Madison had 14 and Alyssa Smith had 10 points

CHS graduate to feature Charlevoix in first full-length movie videos and television stories. The Frontier Boys will be the company's first attempt at a full-length feature film, an endeavor Grooters said can be a bit intimidating.

MOVIE

"One of the reasons to come back to Charlevoix for this filming is the opportunity it gives us to work with familiar faces, and see some old friends and family while we're at it," he said. "That will be a comfort."

The story, which Grooters called "a classic hero story" with good guys and bad guys and good lessons learned, is based on a series of books he wrote about three teenage boys living in northern Michigan. Like many teenagers living in a small town, the boys share a passion for sports, particularly basketball, which also becomes an important element in the story. Grooters said the backdrop of a northern Michigan town and the focus on athletics makes the story "perfect" for Charlevoix. It also reveals his own connection to the city.

"I moved here in the middle of the basketball season. Most kids don't like moving that time of year but I loved it," he said, adding the snow and lakeshore offered the relief he needed from the Arizona heat he had moved away from.

Grooters visited Charlevoix last week, meeting with city officials, and obtained the support he needed for the project, such as agreement to temporary street closures during filming and on-site emergency units in some scenes. City officials are excited to be a part of the project.

"This will be a great economic boost for our area businesses and it will shine a spotlight on the city, highlighting the beauty of the beaches, the Victorian architecture and the Midwestern values we consider important," said City Manager Rob Straebel.

Downtown Development Director Keith Carey said he met with representatives from Grooters Productions prior to Grooters' visit last week, and learned more about the story itself. Concerned about how Charlevoix would be portrayed in the film, Carey wanted to investigate the motives and story, and was pleased with his findings.

"Judging by the story and the type of material they've produced in the past, we're comforted about how Charlevoix will be portrayed," Carey said. "We're proud to be tied with this project."

A faith-based productions company, Grooters Productions "seems to be closely aligned with the values Charlevoix holds important," Straebel said. Grooters said sending an overall positive message is one of his key goals.

"We send this subliminal message that upholds the good of law enforcement, schools, churches, and the message that it is still cool to try hard," he said. "We have some really compelling characters."

Grooters plans to shoot some initial scenes, mostly to be used for a trailer for the movie, next month, and continue behind-the-scenes planning until filming the entire movie next winter. While the arrival of crew members in town will give the economy a boost during the traditionally slow winter months, Carey and Straebel said the overall benefits to the city extend much further.

"This is great public relations for us, and there is talk of making it a three-part series (because there are three books) so there could be some longer-term impacts for us," Carey said.

Highlighting the city is on Grooters' agenda, he said, naming a number of areas that will appear in the film: Michigan Beach, Bridge Street, some country roads, some driveways, local barns, and, one of the most important, the old high school gymnasium.

"There are a number of basketball game scenes we need to shoot and that old gym was so unique, we're going to rebuild it (the interior)," he said. "That is a very important part of the film."

Grooters hopes to have as many citizens become a part of the project as possible. He'll need crowds to cheer in the game scenes, passersby throughout the film, and he's already gotten some offers for help with other scenes.

"There is this great snowmobile chase scene, and we've already had some local guys say they'll help us out with that," he said.

Lake Michigan is also a very important element in the story, and Grooters said the water will "be almost like a character" in the film, which he described as "a sports mystery."

Some casting calls were held at Charlevoix High School last week and Grooters expects to be working closely with the city for similar work in the future. For more information on Grooters Productions visit www.grontersproductions.com.

Alano Club of Charlevoix meetings

The Charlevoix Alano Club Board of Directors will hold two four hour planning sessions to gather input from their membership and all interested community members. Meetings will be held on Thursday, Jan. 31 and Friday, Feb. 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Charlevoix Public Library Community Room B. Chet Janik, Charlevoix Schools Superintendent, has offered to facilitate the planning process for the participants to develop a plan that can be supported by all involved. At the end of the planning process, the organization will have a clear outline for future actions and building design plans that will meet the organization's needs.

Alano Club representatives have been involved in discussions since February of 2006 with representatives from the City of Charlevoix and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) officials. These discussions have focused on possible ways to resolve the non-profit organization's need for additional space and how to best utilize their current buildings and property located at 106 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix. The Historical Committee joined in a cooperative effort between the Alano Club, the DDA and City of Charlevoix representatives in January of 2008 to review future plans for the two story building on the front of their property.

The two story building has been determined inadequate for renovation to meet the organization's needs. All parties involved are concerned about maintaining the historic appeal in the downtown area while also recognizing the practical nature of expenses involved in renovating the building. Alano Club officials welcome anyone interested in relocating the building to another site in hopes of preserving the structure built in the 1880's.

The goal of the two planning sessions will be to craft a vision of what a new building at this location will look like on the outside and what features need to be included that will meet the needs of the organization and the community. All interested community members are encouraged to attend the planning sessions.

We are requesting interested participants to pre-register by contacting Scott Kelly, Alano Club Management Services Coordinator, at 547-1144 or by e-mail at: scott@charlevoixalano.org. Lunch will be served at no cost to participants at the two planning sessions. Individuals that would like to offer their input to the planning process but are unable to attend the sessions are also encouraged to contact Scott.

To learn more about the Alano Club in Charlevoix feel free to visit their web-site at www.charlevoixalano.org. The Alano Club was founded in 1986 and provides meeting space for sixteen different 12-step groups per week. The Alano Club serves nearly 250 people per week with numbers three times this amount during the summer months. The Alano Club is funded through rental income from the 12 step groups, membership dues, fundraising activities and organizations such as Char Em United Way.

U.S.S. Franklin remembered

VET

He added, "It was Nov., 17, 1942. I was really thrilled to think I was actually going in."

Now the young sailor was on an aircraft carrier, nearly 900-feet long, floating in the Pacific Ocean.

That late winter morning the Franklin had launched two large air strikes against both Honshu and Kobe Harbor.

It was during the pre-dawn hours following American bomber missions that a Japanese plane managed to evade radar until it was within eyesight of the crew. The plane was shot down, but only after it dropped it's 1,100-pound payload—twin bombs.

"We probably had between 80 and 90 planes on the deck and they were trying to launch the planes and this guy came right out of the sky," Greyerbiehl said. "I was standing up there watching them. I just sort of froze up when it happened, but the memory is there. The guys in the planes didn't ever have a chance."

He added, "Man, it was really something."

The Japanese pilot dropped one bomb just aft of the main deck, blowing a hole at least two floors down and causing fires and the second bomb was dropped on the rear of the ship causing stored ordinance like rockets and other munitions to detonate.

"The thing I can't understand, how come they just didn't see him at all—even on the radar," the smile previously adorning Greyerbichl's face vanished as he paused in thought. "Some of these things that happened; Hells bells."

Though the Franklin had been hit several times before by kamikaze and gunfire, the March 19 incident was the most damaging.

"After all the excitement, boy, we pulled back into Pearl (Harbor). I thought they were going to fix it, but they said, 'No it was just too much work,'" Greyerbiehl said. "That ship was the worst one that ever came into Pearl (Harbor). We left and picked up our escort and when we got into Brooklyn we found more bodies that had been pinched down below (lower decks) and were burned up. There was just nothing you could do about it—they just didn't exist anymore."

The tally of dead that day reached 724 with 265 additional wounded.

Greyerhiehl left the service when his four-year term was up. He returned to high school at age 19 in 1946 and went on to college and a career in accounting. He married, had six children and 13 foster children in addition to 10 grandchildren.

Now 80, Greyerbiehl resides in Charlevoix with his wife Margaret.

Due to the enormous amount of damage The Franklin was decommissioned in 1947 and was sold for scrap in August, 1966.

They were the 2002 National Champions, and National Runner-up in 2000, 2001 and 2003. The Lady Stars have produced 45 All Americans in the last 8 years and finished the 2007 season ranked fourth in NJCAA-DII.

Noting she did not reach this goal on her own, Leah gave thanks to her varsity coach at CHS, Tony Zimmerman and her former coach, JV coach Ann Gomey, who she said "invested a lot of time and support" into Leah's success.

Scott said he's seen his daughter fight "a lot of ups and downs" throughout her career so far, noting "it has been fun to watch her mature as a person, on and off the field."

In addition to playing softball, Leah will pursue a degree in social work and counseling when she attends LCC, hoping to move on to a four-year university, continue playing softball and studying psychology as well.

"I like working with people and helping people," she said, noting her current work at her parent's organization B.A.S.E.S. (Bay Area Substance Education Services) has helped develop that interest.

Groomed CC ski trails in Charlevoix

There is a new Little Traverse Conservancy that opened this year on Boyne City Road between Burgess and Maple Grove Roads, just south of Lake Charlevoix Farms and across from Camp Seagull. Periodically the trails there will be groomed for cross country skiing this winter. There will be tracks set for classic skiing, and, depending on conditions, there may be some grooming for skate skiing.

The area was formerly known as Lake Charlevoix Farms. It has been renamed the Nathan Barry Driggers Memorial Nature Preserve. There is a small roadside pull out to park in non winter seasons. Winter parking is along Boyne City Charlevoix Road. There is a Little Traverse Conservancy sign at the trailhead. The Conservancy's website is www.landtrust.org

Thursday was calm and quiet following Wednesday's winter storm, leaving snow piled along downtown streets and city and county workers cleaning up in many areas. The storm boasted winds approaching 70 miles per hour, plenty of ice and 6 to 9 inches of snow.

Winter storm slows activity

Rain, freezing rain, snow. Rain, freezing rain, snow. This has been the pattern for Michigan's weather this winter season, conditions which led to last week's hectic storm that slowed or stopped many businesses, all schools, and most activity.

"We didn't open. My driveway was blown shut with a few feet of snow and I couldn't get out if I wanted to," said Liz Charlton, manager of Zaccarro's Market in downtown Charlevoix. "The Market didn't open."

Zaccarro's Market was not the only business affected, with many businesses across northern lower Michigan operating under limited hours or not at all Wednesday, following severe winter conditions that included ice, up to nine inches of snow in some places, and winds close to 70 miles per hour.

"Most of Michigan got it to some degree or another, with the strong winds and blizzard conditions in the north and more blowing without the snow in the southern part of the state," said James Keysor, meteorologist for the North Central Lower Michigan weather

School could ask for $6 mil bond in May

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The $5.9 million bond request for computers, buses and structural improvements hinges on a Feb. 12 decision by the Charlevoix Schools Board of Education.

And, while the proposal is yet to-be a done deal, Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik said he feels confident the measure has adequate support.

"Our challenge right now with budget cutbacks statewide is we don't have the finances to purchase buses or do technology upgrades," Janik said. "The majority of our buses were purchased in the mid-(19)90s and two-thirds of our computers are six to eight years old."

He added, "We've been in deficit spending the last couple years and realistically we're not going to be able to upgrade anything."

The proposal Janik will present to the board of education involves rolling back the sinking fund rate from .86 mils to .55 mils and converting the sinking fund to a bond.

Aside from the upside of getting the needed money for the purchases and repairs, as can be done with a bond but not a sinking fund, Janik said savings to taxpayers will be substantial.

"If it passes in May, we would cancel out the last year of the sinking fund, so instead of paying .86 in 2008, we would cancel that and replace it with the .55 mils bond," he said.

Janik

The problem with the sinking fund, Janik said, is that not one penny of it can be used for technology or transportation improvements.

"We would ask the taxpayers to approve this seven year bond, the logic is with the bond we can do all the renovations as well as the purchases all at once," he said.

The buses, technology and other improvements could be bought with the schools fund balance, if the balance had not dwindled to a mere four percent.

"We anticipate some very difficult challenges this upcoming budget year with the last five years' revenues in the school district have increased slightly over five percent and the consumer price index has risen 12 percent," Janik said. "With the state economy this year we received on average in northern Michigan approximately $80 more in student increase and our

'Active' winter will continue, forecasters say

STORM

station located in Gaylord. "Everyone felt it."

Locally, the weather slowed most people down — "You have to adjust to it and slow down," Charlevoix resident Mike Miller said — and stopped others.

"My husband works for the Sheriff's Department and he said not to go out, so I stayed home," resident Kelly Schooley said.

Schooley lives right in town in Charlevoix and said others must have joined her in abiding by the Michigan State Police's advisory, announced in the early morning hours last Wednesday, to stay off the roads completely because there was very little traffic through most of the day.

Jennifer Flanzoni and Brittani Whittaker, both Woolly Bugger employees, said the coffee shop was open a mere two and a half hours Wednesday because of the storm.

"Everyone who works here lives in the country except for me, and I couldn't get in earlier," Whittaker, who lives in town, said of the 11:30 open time the shop had Wednesday.

Flanzoni lives outside of town on Marion Center Road and didn't make it far when she attempted to come in to work at 9 a.m.

"I made it about a mile and turned around. I was on the shoulder and thought it was the road. You couldn't see anyone coming," she said.

Despite the treacherous driving conditions, no injury accidents were reported to either the Charlevoix Police Department or the Sheriff's Department. Sheriff George Lasater said a few single car incidences - "people getting stuck in snow banks, driveways and ditches, that sort of thing," he said were handled throughout the day, but no crashes. He even noted a friend of his rescued the same driver for getting stuck three times that morning.

Police Chief Gerard Doan said his department had a quiet, uneventful day despite the weather and warnings.

"Thankfully, many people listened to the warnings and stayed off the roads," he said.

> "Every winter seems to take on a life of its own, and (rain and snow mixing) is the one for this year."
> James Keysor
> NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE METEOROLOGIST

While things seemed refreshed and calm Thursday, the end is not here. The pattern of variable warm temperatures, followed by a quick onset of very cold temperatures and snow is expected to continue for the next few weeks, Keysor said, and seems to be "the trend of the winter"

"Every winter seems to take on a life of its own, and this is the one for this year," he said.

The warm weather moving in over still frozen ground, followed by hours of rain last Tuesday, set the stage for treacherous roads when low pressure and cold air moved in late that night, complete with high winds and snow. Keysor said there were several reports of winds exceeding 60 miles per hour, including a 61 mph gust in East Jordan at 7:42 a.m. Wednesday, a 69 mph gust in Sault Ste. Marie, and 49 mph in Pellston. The northernmost sector of lower Michigan received the most snow, ranging from six to nine inches in most areas. Traverse City only reported two to three inches.

Keysor said we can expect "more of the same" in the next few weeks, with a storm similar to last week's headed in this week, although the areas of low pressure moving in are not expected to be as cold. They will, he said, bring in plenty of "sloppy" precipitation, and the rain-sleet-snow mix will continue.

"It is certainly a winter of activity," he said.

Bond needed for buses, computers

expenses were $120 more per student."

According to Janik, if the board approves the proposal, he will offer the taxpayers a comprehensive list of the sought-after purchases and improvements.

He understands some people are having tough times in Michigan and urges them to support this measure which will allow the schools to remain competitive in the education of area children.

"The key is this (sinking fund) has really been in play since 1998," Janik said. "Without this we would have to make some very difficult choices. Many of our buses are beyond their normal life. We would maintain the computers we have, but we want to remain proactive. We want to be an educational leader."

The average bus costs nearly $80,000 each.

"The one thing from a taxpayer perspective they would be guaranteed that every penny of that $5.9 million would be spent on these projects," Janik said. "By law we have to. Every bond is audited by the state of Michigan."

Preliminary figures, and Janik was cautious to emphasize that these figures are not yet set in ink, are as follows: $1.5 million on buses; $1.5 to $2 million on technology; the rest on building renovations and upgrades for all three buildings.

This issue and others will be discussed at the next meeting of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 12 in the high school's media center.

My name is Gohs and I like to ... sing?

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

My name is Gohs and I make bad decisions—this is where you say, "Hello, Gohs."

I know the shock you must be feeling: "You mean the rotund guy with too many tattoos and the arteries of a 90-year-old pastry chef makes poor choices?"

This latest humble involved performing a song at the Charlevoix Public library's open mic night.

I know my way around a guitar and sing just well enough to get myself in trouble—though it has never kept me from obliging when the spirit hits.

I would never have even considered playing in public if not for my 13-year-old son and budding guitar hero Nick. If nothing else, I figured it would be good for him to get some exposure since he practices for hours everyday and now plays songs that I cannot.

He said, "Let's play Crazy Train." I said, "Let's not."

We settled on Tommy Tutone's classic 867-5309 (Jenny).

"Hey, what a great idea!" shouted the part of my brain—known by scientists as the Belushi Zone—in charge of craving doughnuts and beer, making homemade fireworks and using a cooler lid as a sled pulled by an inebriated gent on a riding lawnmower.

"But sire, you cannot sing," pleaded the part of my brain that looks like Professor Julius Kelp and generally prevents me from, say, investing in South American Alpaca farms.

We tuned the guitars and played the song for practice.

"So, how did my voice sound?" I asked the wife.

Kelp senses her hesitation, but before he can warn me Belushi brains him with a croquet mallet.

"You sound like a freakin' canary," Belushi said as he rubbed crimson sauce of the mallet with his shirtsleeve and elbow. "Now get out there, superstar."

I get nerves just looking at the crowd of 20 and listen as the first act knocks 'em dead.

Now it's the boy and I. The crowd's anticipation is palpable.

Suddenly I'm Roy Schieder on Amity Island. Off in the distance some guy is yelling for his dog Pippen. The camera does a dolly zoom nice and close on my face. Kelp has just delivered a roundhouse and knocked Belushi unconscious.

"What in holy hell am I doing?!?"

I joke with the crowd, "We won't be using a microphone. You'll be thankful."

They laugh a little, probably assuming I'm some humble artist who is better than he leads on. Little do they know.

My son plays the intro while hot and cold running terror shoot through my torso.

"Hey, this isn't so bad."

But I'm sensing something kind of like when you've got a greeber hanging from the end of your nose, or yesterday's underpants inexplicably hanging out a pant leg, but no one wants to tell you.

"Jenny, Jenny, who can I turn to?" My voice squeaked and groaned like a rusty, lopsided merry-go-round

Every third note was in a key heard only by snails, mice and some dogs with Downs Syndrome; Off in the distance a lone basset-hound answered my call.

The crowd's reaction is one of horror then disbelief and finally sadness when they realize it isn't going to stop.

Kelp clicks on the megaphone: "Warning: Sounds emanating from performer are not the tortured wails of a dying beast and are indeed intentional if not involuntary! Go quickly and calmly in single file to the nearest exit! Folks, this is not a drill!"

"Jenny, Jenny, who can..." I forgot the next line and played the chord progression backward.

Sweating profusely, I stop all action. Pride and dignity puddle at my feet, or is that something else?; Nick finishes the song and the crowd clapped heartily.

In the front row a tearful woman holding a rosary collapsed in relief. Even the weird little poet was shaking his head in disgust.

I did my best to keep from jumping through a window and running away a la the Cowardly Lion.

On the ride home the wife tells me, with a face that says, don't ever try that again, that I wasn't that bad.

Just then Belushi awakened. "You just weren't singin' loud enough, doll."

I guess we'll find out when I try my rendition of Ave Maria in a few weeks.

A look at ... the history of Valentine's day

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

A day marked by love and romance will be here soon. Origins of the holiday flourish but one thing is certain; its beginnings are colorful and could help you out in future games of trivial pursuit.

When Rome was just a little city of dust and dirt, a few of the town's creative individuals were trying to come up with an idea to promote business and bring more people to the area. After several meetings and committee work they came up with the idea to have a Festival of Purification and Fertility. So far this sounds pretty good. The day was to be referred to as Lupercalis. Now comes the interesting part. The day involved young single maidens and strapping young men entering their names in a lottery in order to become a couple. The young men on this day would enter the center of town and disrobe or wear a politically correct loin cloth. Just a quick note here: The Roman calendar at that time had February falling in the spring. Back to the story: young maidens would stand in the streets waiting for the young man chosen for them, who would then pass by them and gently strike the maiden with strips of goat hide. This ritual would bring luck, purification and the added plus of fertility. The date chosen for the festival fell on February 14. I'm certain we could really add some excitement to our quiet town in the midst of winter or spring with this activity.

Christians felt this was immoral and decided the day should reflect a little more modesty. So Pope Gelasius in 496 A.D. tried to turn the tide of this rite by honoring two martyrs that lost their lives on February 14, one of whom was Valentine of Terni. Before this martyr was beheaded there were claims that he left a note behind for the woman he loved. The note ended with, "from your Valentine." The 14th of February fertility day was now designated as a day to honor saints. The pope decided to set up a lottery of saints. The saint's name that was picked on the 14th of February would be honored for the remainder of the year.

Christians trying to keep it a religious holiday were outnumbered and generally ignored by the romance and marketing tactics of future entrepreneurs. This Christian celebration didn't catch on and by medieval days a new lottery was put in place. The names of single men and woman were again to be placed in a box similar to the old Lupercalis Festival which was still on everyone's mind. When your name was drawn you were considered a couple for at least a year. Cards and letters were encouraged to be sent to each other somewhat like our emails today. They were given a chance to know each other a little better, through written expression. Unfortunately a few creative writers wrote a few naughty things on their postcards. The post office rebelled and said enough is enough and refused to deliver them. We were redeemed again in 1850 by Ms. Esther Howland from Worcester, Massachusetts. She decided to start a cottage industry creating beautiful cards with wonderful sentiments complete with delicate lace to reflect the proper times of the Victorian Era. Individuals could then purchase them and send them to whomever they wanted to. Her creativity and entrepreneurship paid off as she retired her business grossing over $100,000.

Esther's success got the attention of a young man who thought he could do better. In 1910, an 18 year old entrepreneur by the name of Joyce Hall decided to jump on the handwagon and created his own version of Valentine cards, added Christmas cards, and took it one step further by designing his own wrapping paper. His brothers joined him and in 1928 he adopted the name of Hallmark for his newly formed company. I had thought that the name Hallmark was derived from his family last name. I learned differently when at one point in my life I interviewed for a position with this company in 1971. The name Hallmark comes from the term given the series of marks made on metal guaranteeing its purity. It was determined that each card would have this symbol on the back to display that this was a card possessing high quality. Mr. Hall eventually turned his cards and wrapping paper into a four billion dollar business.

So there you have it. We've gone the gamut of festivals, lotteries, courtship and cards. Whatever you choose to do on this day, you'll now possess some trivial information to encourage discussion which is always a good thing no matter what day of the week or holiday it is.

LETTERS to the editor

INPUT FROM AN ANCESTOR

Editor:

I was born in Charlevoix in 1924, and our family has maintained a strong love for the area ever since. During our stay at The Weathervane this past summer, my wife and I were pleased to see the renovations on the Round Lake side of Bridge Street for the Park and harbor area. I'm sure it will further enhance the beauty of Charlevoix. My cousin, Gene Bridge, has told me of his concern and efforts regarding the name of the park, and I've read a few related items from the Courier.

My great grandfather, John Nicholls, and his son-in-law, Albert Bridge, came to Charlevoix many years ago, and were very instrumental in developing lumbering, shipping, banking and real estate. My uncle, Bob Bridge, was also the bank president and mayor when the Round Lake park area was first developed. Bob, also, became president of the Michigan Bankers Association. Charlevoix businesses closed the day of his funeral in 1965.

After my retirement, I wrote the Bridge Family History, published in 1999, going back to my great grandfather, also a Robert Bridge, who came to America from Scotland in 1842. My research included a couple of visits to the Charlevoix Library, where I was very well treated. My wife and I also met with Dave Miles for half an hour in the back room of the Harsha House, and he added some flavor regarding my ancestry.

I would like to add my thoughts to the naming of the park. The Bridge and Nicholls families were among the important developers of Charlevoix. My understanding is that my Uncle Bob Bridge was a "prime mover" for the park development, which was a monumental change at the time. It would seem appropriate to honor him in some way.

My wife and I have a reunion of our immediate family every five years, and have already scheduled the next one at the Edgewater for several days in August 2009, celebrating our 60th wedding anniversary. It will be a bonus for us to visit the renovated park, especially if Uncle Bob is somehow memorialized.

Best wishes in all your efforts on behalf of Charlevoix the Beautiful.

BROTHER DAN'S FOOD PANTRY

Editor:

It is with great pleasure that I write this letter to you and your readers and subscribers reporting the events, success and continued dedication of the Volunteers of Brother Dan's Food Pantry. I will begin by expressing sincere gratitude to everyone who has contributed by service, financial support, varied donations and prayers for our success.

Brother Dan's Food Pantry marked October 2007 as the beginning of our fourth year of service. We continue to provide three meals a day for three days for EACH PERSON in the family. In addition, we provide various staples – eggs, butter, breakfast foods, peanut butter, breads, items of personal hygiene, laundry soap, diapers, etc. The clients visit the pantry every two weeks – those who have special circumstances may come weekly with our director's permission. Through donations of items – we provide coats, gloves, hats, boots and blankets— we were able to establish an Outreach program – to serve those in crisis – due to the generosity of various citizens and organizations that donated this Christmas Season.

In our first calendar year, 2004, we served approximately 6,500 people with a total of approximately 58,000 meals. This calendar year, 2007, reflects approximately 11,300 people and approximately 102,000 meals. Enclosed is a copy of our Christmas menu. The client received all food and every ingredient to prepare listed recipes. Also a complete Christmas dinner was given to each family – as listed under Merry Christmas.

At this time, I would like to invite your readers and subscribers to partake of our Brother Dan's Food Pantry's Third Annual Friday night Fish Fry during this Lent. This is our main fund raising project. Thank you for your support and prayers as we serve those in need.

COA SHOULD RE-EVALUATE

Editor:

The Charlevoix Commission on Aging(COA) Board of Directors are still in denial. The COA Board is as dysfunctional now as it was before the survey. They refuse to accept the results of their own survey,stating that the study sample was too small for reliable results and the results were anecdotal. Was the COA not in on the design of their own survey?? The COA Board's solution to the survey and subsequent public outcry was to appoint a series of ad hoc committees to address the numerous shortcommings identified in the survey. At their last meeting they railed against the News-Review editors for being biased and spent 20 minutes discussing a breakdown in the bidding procedure for building renovations at the East Jordan Senior Center. Apparently, the Ad Hoc Building Committee specifications were not communicated through COA leadership to the company drafting the bid notification, resulting in one subcontractor putting in three bids at three different prices, in other words, getting three bites at the apple. The survey criticized the COA for poor management and lack of personnel training. This does not sound like an organization that is over it's dysfunction. Also, at the last meeting, the board members voted to reinstall themselves for three more years, a recommendation that the Charlevoix County Commissioners should take a hard look at.

PREVENT HB 5282-5285

Editor.

Each citizen needs to write your legislator NOW to prevent House Bill 5282-5285 that is being pushed by Blue Cross and Blue Shield from being enacted into law.

If approved this bill package will drastically increase your insurance rates. It will also do away with the attorney general oversight of the Blues.

If you are not aware, by being insurer of last resort, the Blues are exempt from taxation, but since 2003 have increased 10 top executives compensation by 42 percent to 11.5 million while many citizens are losing their jobs and homes. They have also increased their surplus to 2.8 billion dollars over the last five years to the highest in history. This is not something that we should accept.

Since 2003 the Blues have increased their rates by 79% unless you had to use them because you lost your group insurance in which case your increase would have been 92 percent.

Also included in this Bill package is a removal of all state oversight of their operations.

If the Blues do not want to be the insurer of last resort then the legislature needs to name a new insurer of last resort. It would be nice to increase rates and salaries and pay no taxes in the state that is the most economically challenged in the nation.

Insurance coverage is essential especially for seniors and the arrogance of the Blues to push through such a package is not in the best interests of the people of the state of Michigan. I am requesting that when the legislature schedules public hearings on this bill package due to its serious impact on seniors across that the legislature schedule hearings conveniently across the state where the citizens can give their input.

It's priming time: Take-a-seat Chair-ity planned

Bruce Herbert paints a seat for the Take-a-Seat Chair-ity Auction planned by the Charlevoix First Congregational Church.

Some members of the Charlevoix First Congregational Church got together to sand and prime furniture in preparation for their Take a Seat, Chair-ity Auction to be held next June 25 at Castle Farms. The group was founded by the church custodian, Larry Minch, during his Saturday morning "rocking out" to a Golden Oldies station in the church basement. Barb Gowdy and Barb Wilson thought the music helped them work harder. Bruce Herbert was declared the winner of the inevitable musical "trivia" contest that developed between the workers.

Primers: 10; Sanders: 6

Plenty of "prep" work has to be done before the furniture items are handed over to the local artists, who will add the artistic finishing touches. To survey the finest of what is available in custom painted furniture by northern artists, circle June 25 on the calendar and remember Take a Seat. Proceeds of the auction will go to Highland Cottage, a hospice house serving Charlevoix and Emmett counties, Challenge Mt., B.A.S.E.S., Northern Community Mediation and the First Congregational Church.

JOSEPH MARION ARVILLA

Joseph Marion Arvilla died Wednesday, Jan. 16, 2008 just 9 days before his 95th birthday. He was born in Gloucester, Massachusetts, came to Charlevoix with his family when he was five years old and grew to adulthood with a deep respect for his grandfather and for "the sea."

Joseph graduated from Charlevoix High School where he was known for his athletic prowess and was light heavyweight boxing champion at Eastern Michigan University where he graduated with a BA. After college he returned to teach and coach at Boyne Falls. He was also first mate on the Sylvia, a palatial sailing yacht that was later commissioned as a mine sweeper during W.W.II. It was then that Joseph took to the waters of Lake Michigan to fish for the war effort. He captained and crewed the Buddy L., one of the more famous fishing boats on Lake Michigan. Joseph went on to build his own cruiser in the family's side yard and called it the Al-Jo-Erik named after his three sons, Joel William, Erik Fraley, and Albert McMillan. He also had identical twin daughters, Denis Erin and Dana Ellen who were just babes in arms at the time. Much fun was had on this boat before it was sold and plied the waters of Harbor Springs. Joseph captained the first tugboat on the Mackinac Bridge project, and he remained on the project until its completion. He went on to obtain a seaman Master's license and could captain all boats for all waters. For most of his life he ran tugs from Superior to the St. Lawrence. It could be said that Joseph was the Jack Sparrow of the Great Lakes, always up for a good time, always a glint in his eye, sometimes a rascal, but always ready "at the helm."

Joseph was a 20-year member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles during his retirement years and enjoyed dancing, music and travel with many good friends where he lived in Sequim, WA. Joseph held true to his friends and family in Michigan as well and visited them on a regular basis.

For those who would like, contributions can be made to your charity of choice. In lieu of a funeral, there has been a memorial dance in his honor in Sequim, WA. In lieu of flowers, bet on a long shot — in keeping with and in loving memory of our father, Joseph Marion Arvilla.

Computer classes offered at library

Keeping up with technology and understanding the most current applications can be difficult if not intimidating at times. Technology changes every day and the longevity of some new programs can be difficult to gauge.

"Most people need a bit of help when first learning new applications. Once they receive the basics, they are then able to take off on their own," said Val Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library.

The Charlevoix Public Library offers help for those who need just a bit more information to help start the learning process. Computer Tidbits are short demonstrations of different computer applications offered at a basic level. The Tidbit classes are held on Wednesdays at 1 p.m. in the computer lab of the Charlevoix Public Library.

To learn about the most popular social networking sites and how they're used, attend the Feb. 6 session, "My Space, Blogs and IM, Oh MY!"

"At the least you will leave the class knowing what everyone is talking about," said librarian Linda Adams.

At the Feb. 13 session, "Create a party invitation," you will do just that; learn how to make a party invitation using Microsoft Publisher. Come with a party in mind and Adams will help you make the perfect invitation. Adams is the training librarian at the Charlevoix Public Library and has a history of teaching workshops and seminars. Her expertise is moving the timid closer to the computer comfort zone. Join her for one of the Computer Tidbits. Tidbits are free and open to all, walk-ins are welcome. Call the library for more information about this or other programs, 237-7340.

Attorney General says 'no conflict' for local officials

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

> Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema asked the Attorney General's office whether three area officials were in conflict of law while serving in multiple capacities. The AG said no to all three

Are three local officials: a county clerk, a former county commissioner and the soil erosion officer, guilty of working in multiple and incompatible offices?

"No" says an opinion given by the Michigan Attorney General's Office in early September, 2007, nearly 14 months after Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema asked for clarification.

"I think it makes clear that the persons (Drain commissioner/soil erosion officer Marc Seelye, Charlevoix County Clerk/fiscal officer Jane Brannon and former Charlevoix County Commissioner/zoning administrator for Melrose and Bay Townships Randy Frykberg) can hold each position," Jarema said. "It's a done issue."

In July, 2006, prompted by Charlevoix resident and attorney Ellis Boal, who wondered if the three may have been in violation of Michigan's version of the federal Hatch Act, a law enacted to prevent people from simultaneously holding jobs and elected office for the same governmental body, Jarema had asked the following three questions of the attorney general: "In 2004, the Charlevoix County Soil Erosion Officer ran and was elected County Drain Commissioner. Can he serve in both capacities?"; "Our elected county clerk receives a salary for being the clerk and is also employed by Charlevoix County as its fiscal officer and receives a salary of at least $10,000 for those job duties. Can she serve in both capacities?"; and "One of our six elected county commissioners is also employed by several townships in our county as a zoning administrator. Can he serve on township boards in paid positions and also be an elected county official?"

In his letter Jarema pointed to several laws and attorney general opinions including MCL 15.403(2), which states that "a public employee of a unit of local government or school district who is elected to an office within that unit of local government or school district shall resign or may be granted a leave of absence from his employment during his elected term. It appears that on the plain reading of this statute, a person cannot be employed by a local unit of government and be elected to an office within that unit of local government."

Jarema's interpretation of Seelye's positions differed from that of the attorney general's office opinion written by Chief Deputy Attorney General Carol L. Isaacs which stated, "counties routinely designate the county drain commissioner as the county enforcing agency for purposes of enforcing soil erosion and sedimentation control."

Isaacs further stated that an amendment to the drain code, "expressly recognizes that drain commissioners may perform soil erosion enforcement functions in addition to administering the drain code" and "elected county officials may be assigned additional duties by the county board of commissioners and be paid additional compensation for the performance of those duties."

The opinions considered neither an incompatibility of offices nor political actives, though Isaacs feels it is nonetheless adequate "guidance" in answering Jarema's question.

Isaacs made it clear that Seelye's positions are not incompatible so long as "the relationship and interaction between the positions do not fall within one of three of the following circumstances: One position is subject to the other's supervision; one position is subordinate to the other; or the holding of the two positions results in a breach of duty due to conflicting responsibilities."

Jarema

Frykberg

Boal

Isaacs next addressed Brannon's elected and appointed positions, stating that, "County clerks have historically been involved in the fiscal affairs of their counties. County clerks handle the county's accounting duties where the county does not have a controller, executive, or board of auditors."

"Designation of the clerk as a fiscal officer does not appear to impose incompatible duties on the clerk," she added.

The attorney general's office addressed the Frykberg question by stating, "It is understood that ... (Frykberg) is not subject to the supervision of, or otherwise subordinate to, the county or the county board of commissioners. Nor does it appear that the two positions have interests that would be compromised if advanced simultaneously by an individual holding both positions."

Isaacs added, "It cannot be concluded that these positions are incompatible."

Frykberg said he never feared being found to have a conflict.

"Before I ran (for his county board seat) my prime job was being a zoning consultant and zoning administrator and I was given legal advice at that time and felt I had no conflict," he said.

Rep. Elsenheimer: Better times ahead for Michigan

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Gov. Jennifer Granholm's sixth State of the State Address was "the right tone at the right time," State Representative Kevin Elsenheimer, who represents Charlevoix citizens as the 105th District representative, said last week.

"It was conciliatory and recognized that last year's work product was pretty poor," he said.

Last Tuesday's speech was the sixth time Granholm, who lost a tremendous amount of public backing after last year's drawn-out budget battle and last minute tax increase proposals, promised no tax or fee increases in the upcoming year, something Elsenheimer said all Michigan residents should cheer about.

"I was very pleased she said she would sign a budget with no new taxes and no new fees. That is something hunters and fishermen should be pleased about, following last year's threats for fee increases (to fund the under-budget Department of Natural Resources,)" he said.

What Elsenheimer was most pleased with, and which affected northern Michigan most directly, was Granholm's focus on boosting tourism in the state. Granholm promised to increase funds available to promote tourism, something Elsenheimer hopes will have a strong impact on Charlevoix and other communities he serves.

"She ear-marked $150 million for promoting tourism, and that is six or seven times what was there last year," he said. "We know that money gets paid back by multiples of four or more, and it should provide an immediate income boost to northern Michigan's economy."

It was the most attention Granholm has given tourism in a State of the State Address, Elsenheimer said, and it came at a good time.

"I was very pleased. That is the type of economic boost we need."

Granholm said it is time to "significantly increase our advertising of this beautiful state to attract tourists and businesses."

"We are eager to pass what will be the largest investment in marketing Michigan in our history, expanding to new markets, trumpeting our virtues across the nation and the world," she said.

Granholm noted it was time to change her approach in her speech, acknowledging the anger present among the citizens she serves following last year's difficult partisan divide.

"While we are confident that this course will lead to better days, on this day, our fellow citizens are angry.... Angry at the oil companies. Angry at the con men who stoked the subprime crisis ... But let's be honest — that anger is aimed at us, too," she said to her fellow Legislators.

Elsenheimer joined others in complimenting Granholm's efforts to cross the partisan divide and support the concept of working together. Following a year when "tax payers were underserved," Elsenheimer said the governor did a good job of "pointing out we need to do a better job next year."

"I am grateful because many of the ideas she presented are Republican ideas we've been working on for four years," he said. "It suggests she is trying to be more positive instead of partisan."

Indeed Granholm acknowledged shortcomings: "Last year, people wanted decisive action on jobs, on healthcare, on schools. What they got was partisan rancor over a budget."

She also noted the need to work together: "Legislators on both sides of the aisle are already making a commitment to work together."

The major thrust of Granholm's speech was what she said are the four things that "require swift action and relentless focus" in the year ahead. Jobs for all, affordable health care for every family, safe places to live and work, and quality education for youth and adults. Unveiling plans for each of these goals, Granholm assured no tax or fee increases will be needed to fund the necessary programs.

There was also large focus on alternative energy gains within Michigan, emphasizing the state's resources — water, wind, wood and workforce — that should put Michigan in the forefront of the alternative energy industry.

Elsenheimer was pleased with the concepts, adding he'd like to see "more detailed information" on specifics for certain plans, especially the $6 billion investment from DTE and Consumers Energy into energy technologies.

"The devil is in the details. I'd be worried about potential consumer rate increases, because that is where those companies get their revenue and consumers shouldn't be paying for this, and customer choice," he said.

Elsenheimer liked the idea of refinancing bonds to generate revenue, and looks

City faces 'tough' budget decisions

BY ERICA GOFF

A public hearing will be held to discuss the budget, 7 p.m. Feb 18 at City Hall

The budget process has begun in the City of Charlevoix, and City Manager Rob Straebel said he realizes the challenge before him and City Council as they attempt to develop a balanced budget plan for 2008-09.

"This is going to be a tough year," Straebel told the board and city department heads at a work session last week.

Like most municipalities in the state, Charlevoix faces rising costs, falling revenues and overall funding challenges, but, Straebel said, the city will pull through with some sacrifices.

"We won't go hungry, we'll survive. We'll pull through it," he said.

The work session brought city council members and department heads together to go over the proposed 2008-09 budget, which has already had $185,100 worth of projects and expenses trimmed thanks to efforts by Straebel, City Treasurer Rick Brandt and departments. Each department was asked to look at its budget and decide what could be eliminated or post poned, and those departments stepped forward with suggestions.

A new water well at the ski hill, an ALS monitor for the ambulance, new car cameras for the police department, an upgrade to full time for the secretary in the police department — these are a few items that were deferred from the Capital Improvement Plan for the year, cutting a total of $185,100 from this year's General Fund. Upon reviewing the items, council members asked

Library keeping up with evolution of reading

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Adult Services Librarian Linda Adams shows library patron Alicia Giudice how to use the new downloadable book option.

From earthen scribbles on limestone walls by cave dwellers to thousands of books at the touch of a button from anywhere on the planet, the way we as a society reads has evolved.

The Charlevoix Public Library currently offers books in both electronic reader and audio formats which can be downloaded to MP3 players, desktop and notebook computers from anywhere.

"We're the only one in northern Michigan, as far as I know, that has it north of Cadillac," said Linda Adams, adult services librarian with the Charlevoix Public Library.

Current Charlevoix Library cardholders and those eligible for a card can, after setting up the e-book account, visit designated websites where they can search for the title of their choosing – hundreds of audio books and thousands of e-books are available – and then, following a download period that varies depending upon the computer's ability and Internet connection, they have the book literally at their fingertips in digital format.

"We have about 120 people signed up for the service and about 100 checkouts per quarter," Adams said. "A lot of people use the e-books to glance at books to see if they really want it and kids use it for research because it's nice to pull up a piece of a book they really need."

She added, "They can see the book immediately after downloading and look at the table of contents and see if that's the book they want to order and it's a handy way for them to just read one chapter of a book and then decide if they want it."

Book titles include new and old fiction, the Pimsleur language series and more.

"We started it (the e-book program) about a year and a half ago when we opened the library and people are using it, but we would like more people to use it," Adams said. "The problem is trying to get people to accept the new technology and the need to invest in an MP3 player might be foreign to some people."

The service is available absolutely free to library members and offers such popular titles as 1776, The No. 1 Ladies Detective Agency, The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn and Wuthering Heights.

Users may download as many as 10 books at a time and there is no limit to how many users may download at a single time.

"It does take time to download and with a phone modem it can take awhile," Adams said. "It's 15-20 minutes with broadband service, so you have to be patient, but we feel it's a handy to have the portability and no cost to patrons who can check out the books whether they are (wintering) in California or Florida."

She added, "We've had good feedback, especially from people who like to travel. This is just another access point."

Adams said anyone who can use a computer will understand how to use the services with a short tutorial.

"It's very user-friendly," she said. "We walk people through it. They'll be able to figure it out."

The Charlevoix Public Library currently offers 40,000 titles and constantly strives to offer the preeminent and cutting edge services to its patrons.

To sign up for the service or to learn more about what you need to take advantage of it, call 237-7340 or stop in at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

Char-Em United Way exceeds 2008 campaign goal

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Char-Em United Way asked and the community answered, meeting and exceeding the $230,000 goal set for 2007-08 campaign.

Executive Director Martha Lancaster said she and her board of directors at the local United Way organization are pleased with the community's response, which met the challenge of a 15 percent increase in the campaign goal from last year. Lancaster said more money is needed because of the increase in community needs, seen in correlation to the tough fiscal times Michigan is currently facing, but a "realistic" goal had to balance the need with an individual's ability to give. With last week's announcement the goal was met. Lancaster also expects reports from some larger corporations early this month, so the final amount will exceed the $230,000 mark that compromise was made.

"We are very pleased we've exceeded the goal and are looking forward to the process of investing those funds back into the community," she said.

Campaign co-chairs Doug Hall and his wife Shawn Hall reported an increase in contributions from corporations, employees and individuals this year, adding St. Mary's Cement in Charlevoix and Petoskey UPS were among the largest local worksite campaigns for United Way.

Lancaster said the next step is deciding where those funds will go. The Board of Directors, with help from data gathered through the area Human Services Governing Body and other human service collaborative efforts in the Charlevoix and Emmet com-

ANNUAL DRINKING WATER QUALITY REPORT OF THE City of Charlevoix Water Supply

January 2008

Here is this year's Annual Quality Water Report.

It is designed to inform you about the quality drinking water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Our water comes from Lake Michigan, considered surface water. The State has preformed an assessment of our source water in 2004. A determination of sensitivity and susceptibility to contamination was by made by reviewing our source water geology, water chemistry, and potential contamination sources nearby the lake. The State has determined that our source water has a moderate sensitivity rating along with a moderate susceptibility to contamination. You may obtain a copy of the State report by contacting the City of Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant.

We are pleased to report that your drinking water is safe and meets all State and Federal requirements.

This report is a snapshot of the quality of the water we provided to you in the year 2007. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and State of Michigan standards. If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Jim Caldwell at the Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant, (231) 547-3256, or Don Swem at the Charlevoix Water Department, (231) 547-3278. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. The City of Charlevoix Water Supply routinely monitors for contaminants in your drinking water according to Federal and State Laws. This report shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1 thru December 31, 2007. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health risk.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals which can be naturally occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.

Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.

Radioactive contaminants, which are naturally occurring.

Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial process and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems.

The State of Michigan and Environmental Protection Agency test and treat our water on a regular basis to [illegible] its safety.

We met all monitoring requirements for the year 2007.

Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant and Distribution System personnel sampled and tested for over 100 contaminants that were NOT detected in our water supply. The following constituents were detected at low [illegible] levels [illegible] below the MCL - Maximum Contaminant Level.

In the following tables you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help [illegible] we've provided the following definitions.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - A picocurie is one part per trillion - the measurement of radiation in water.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Lead and Copper - Lead and copper testing is on a three (3) year schedule. Test results reported here are from the 2006 year, next round of testing is year [illegible]

*NOTES: * Turbidity - turbidity is a measure of the cloudiness of the water. We monitor it because it is an indicator of our filtration system.*

Unregulated contaminants are those for which the EPA has not established drinking water standards. The purpose of unregulated contaminant monitoring is to assist EPA in determining the occurrence of unregulated contaminants in drinking water and whether future regulation is warranted.

We're pleased that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water is SAFE at these levels.

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Call us if you have any questions.

About our system....

The City of Charlevoix operates a Direct Filtration Water Treatment Facility which uses water from Lake Michigan. With a capacity of 3 million gallons per day, water enters the plant through a submerged intake structure. Storage includes a one million gallon above ground reservoir at the plant, and a 300,000 gallon elevated tank (water tower) on Charlevoix's north side. The City has approximately 32 miles of distribution lines serving approximately 5,000 customers in the City of Charlevoix and areas of adjoining Charlevoix Township, as well as, the influx of summer visitors to the area. Present flow rates vary from around 400,000 gallons per day in the winter to as much as 2.5 million gallons per day in the summer. In service since 1987, it is a modern, efficient facility staffed by licensed, well trained operators. Charlevoix is continually improving its distribution system assuring fresh water and adequate pressure throughout our entire service area. An electrical generator at the Water Plant assures normal operation at full capacity in the event of an electrical power loss to the City. We at the Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant and Distribution System work around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap.

Please help us protect our water resources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life, and our children's future.

New time, same goals for collaborative meeting

Smart Growth Initiative meeting, cancelled last week due to weather, is re-scheduled for 6 p.m. Feb. 13 at the Charlevoix Public Library

The meeting will bring Charlevoix City, Charlevoix County, and Eveline, Marion, Hayes, Norwood and Charlevoix townships to discuss growth plans for the area

Last week's winter weather blast may have slowed down efforts by area municipalities to plan for smart growth in the greater Charlevoix community, but it did not stop them.

The Smart Growth Initiative meeting, initially planned for Jan. 30, has been rescheduled for Feb. 13, beginning at 6 p.m. at the Charlevoix Public Library. The meeting will have a new date and time, but the same goals and objectives, organizers said.

"We want to take care of those values and aspects of the community that we hold dear to our hearts, like water preservation, transportation issues, preserving farm land and green space," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel.

Embracing that idea, the City of Charlevoix is partnering with other local municipalities — Eveline, Marion, Hayes, Norwood and Charlevoix townships as well as Charlevoix County — guided by the Partnerships for Change Program, to build a cooperative planning effort to ensure growth of the community is "smart." Said to foster "smart growth land use policies across the Charlevoix community," collaborative efforts will begin with the upcoming organizational meeting. Land Information Access Association Executive Director Joe VanderMeulen, whose company will act as a liaison for the project working with the local municipalities and Partnerships for Change organization, said the meeting will serve as an opportunity to begin necessary discussions "to find a way for each of these different governments to make change together" in their planning efforts.

"We want to create a basis for discussion for the future," he said.

Next week's meeting will branch off from work completed in a community-wide planning exercise, known as the Charlevoix Area Multi-Jurisdictional Comprehensive Smart Growth Land Use Initiative, done two years ago. The efforts looked at the larger Charlevoix community, attempting to decide where leaders and citizens wanted to go in terms of growth and how to get there. The efforts brought in grant funding, which helped develop a report that VanderMeulen said can now be used as a working plan for future efforts.

"The plan suggests ways to develop more efficiently. For example, no one wants to build a new water and sewer system if you don't have to," he said, noting the potential for saving tax dollars if good planning is utilized.

A grant from the Partnerships for Change has already been awarded for continued work, and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has contributed a matching grant of $5,000, to be awarded at next week's meeting.

Straebel noted the benefit of corroboration among government entities, adding by working together area municipalities can "focus our efforts more efficiently and effectively to identify issues in the city, county and townships." He said input from the community at large is also welcome, noting this and all future meetings of the group will be open to the public.

Assisting with the efforts is the Land Information Access Association (LIAA), a nonprofit formed 15 years ago to help citizens and public officials work together to create sustainable communities. It is the head of the Partnerships for Change program, which offers services to municipalities that wish to work together in planning efforts. To move forward with the plan, each municipality has been asked to contribute a portion of the funding required ($500) and begin work on many of the plan's key topics, including managing development of 'big box' stores, shoreline and stream corridor preservation, lighting and dark sky issues, managing road corridor development, controlling blight and unsightly situations, and farmland and open space preservation.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. in the Community Room B of the Charlevoix Public Library.

State government getting better

forward to the government taking steps to "create an environment that attracts new business and makes existing businesses want to grow."

"What we can do in state government is create an environment that allows businesses to develop and grow, then get out of the way," he said, speaking to Granholm's proposal to offer substantial tax breaks through the Michigan Job Creation Tax Credit, made available to businesses in the 50 fastest growing sectors including high-tech and homeland security.

"Whether your business is in Michigan today or you are going to come here tomorrow, if you grow jobs in Michigan, we'll cut or altogether eliminate your taxes," Granholm stated.

While optimistic, Granholm noted leaders did not "get into this overnight," and are not going to get out of it overnight. She called for lawmakers to "roll up our sleeves and continue building," tuning out partisan voices "in order to work side-by-side." An ambitious feat in itself, Elsenheimer said it is becoming more and more likely in Lansing.

"I am confident things will go more smoothly this year. Last year the legislature raised taxes for the first time in more than 20 years, and that isn't going to happen this year," he said. "I expect we will be able to put some of our partisan issues aside and get some real work done for a change."

Rayder wrestler sets new record

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

To hear the deadpan comments from Charlevoix High School's Mat Golovich, you might not think winning 100 wrestling matches is a big deal.

But, regardless of his sober outlook on his recent accomplishment, he is the first Rayder wrestler ever to have won 100 matches by junior year—on top of recovering from medical issues that included two hernia surgeries.

"It's a big deal," said Charlevoix High School varsity wrestling coach, and Mat's uncle, Craig Golovich. "He's been wrestling since he was in kindergarten, but these are varsity wins."

Mat's mother Karen Golovich is excited about her son's accomplishment.

"He's had a great year this year and he's done a wonderful job," she said. "He's a great little wrestler carrying on the family tradition."

Mat said wrestling was a natural progression for him.

"My brother wrestled, all my uncles wrestled," he said. "It just builds character for you."

Craig said Mat has overcome some serious setbacks to experience success.

"He's not real strong physically, he's not polished on his technique, but he just don't quit," Craig said. "He's moody, straightforward and he's just tough."

The coach added, "He bleeds almost every match. He's probably my (most dedicated) as far as kids who practice hard and work hard."

While some doting parents may cringe at the thought of their child locked in battle on a thin mat, Karen has no fear.

"They started so young and I dated my husband, who was a wrestler, we were high school sweethearts, so I didn't have the fear some moms do," she said.

Mat, who wrestles in the 130-pound category, often tackles brutes of up to 170 pounds.

"In practice, he holds his own against much bigger guys," Craig said. "A lot of times when you throw them (wrestlers) in with bigger ones, they whine, but he just runs with it."

Mat made his 100th win on Saturday, Jan. 26 in competition in Gaylord.

"It feels pretty good," he said. "You work for it and then it just happened."

Mat hopes to continue in his sport after high school

"You can get into the Olympics, but that's pretty hard to do," he said. "I'll probably just try out for wrestling in college."

Courtesy photo

Mat Golovich recently won his 100th wrestling win.

Regardless of whether Mat becomes an Olympic champion, Craig said the work and accolades are good for the boys.

"It builds them as a person. Practices are very tough. We go two, two-and-a-half hours and they're wringing wet after practice," he said. "When it's just you and another guy on the mat, you can look back all you want at your teammates, but nobody's coming out to help you."

He added, "It's a tough one-on-one sport. It makes them deal with things and they gotta [sic] deal with it on their own."

The wrestling season, which began in mid-November, 2007, will end with the finals in mid-March.

Lady Rayders defeat Kalkaska

Becca Madison scored 14 points Thursday as Charlevoix overcame a bit of a slow start to beat Kalkaska, 57-46, in a Lake Michigan Conference girls' basketball game.

The win lifted Charlevoix to 13-2 overall and 10-1 in the league, one game ahead of second-place East Jordan. Kalkaska is 11-5, 6-5.

"The first half I thought we didn't play our best, but we came out in the third quarter and we played well," said Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine, whose team led, 26-13, at halftime then outscored the Blazers, 16-11, in the third quarter.

"The girls off the bench gave us a big lift," Erskine said. "That's big, having five or six girls come off the bench and give us a lot of energy.

"Kalkaska's got a good solid team. It's hard to come down here and win, they've got great fans and they did a good job trying to shake us up. Just to go down there and get a win at Kalkaksa really helps us."

Desi Faust added 11 points and KC McCary had nine for the Rayders, while McCary had seven rebounds, Tammy Potter grabbed nine, and Murphy Gillespie had seven.

The Rayders can wrap up the league championship with wins next week against Boyne City (Tuesday) and Elk Rapids (Thursday). Both are home games.

For Kalkaska, Katie Krause scored 16 points and Chelsea Matley added 10.

Lynzie Gotshall scored 23 points and Sarah Potter had 21 to lead Charlevoix to a 79-40 win in the JV game.

RAYDERS DEFEAT BOYNE CITY

Charlevoix won its sixth straight overall, and ninth straight in the league, Friday. Justin Friske scored 20 points and Nate LaBlance had 13 points for the Rayders, 13-1, 9-0.

Weston Bryan and Corey Gotshall both scored eight points for Charlevoix. Gotshall had seven rebounds, Kyle Jones eight rebounds and seven assists and LaBlance made five steals.

For Boyne City, 6-8, 5-4, Robby Jensen had 10 points and 10 rebounds, Ryan Musser 16 points and seven rebounds and Trever Kruzel 13 points.

"We played better in the second half," Boyne City coach John Hertel said. "Charlevoix is a really good team, and I think we're on our way to becoming a really good team."

Charlevoix won the JV game, 79-73 in overtime. Tyler Jones had 17 points for Charlevoix and Clayton Mitchell added 16.. Evan Orban and T.J. Wandrie scored 20 points apiece for Boyne.

Charlevoix won the freshman game 70-54, with Wade Worth scoring 13 points, and Wyatt Drost and Dylan Putman adding 12 each. Colby Shumaker scored 21 for the Ramblers.

City budget tight but balanced, for now for reassurance from department heads the cuts would not deter performance.

"We want our secretary to be full time to improve the service to the public, but as it was explained to me, we had to go over our budget and see what could be cut. This is something I don't have now, so I can continue without it for now," said Police Chief Gerard Doan.

Fire Chief Paul Ivan said Fire and Rescue can function without new ALS monitors this year but "if we can afford it next year, we will request a replacement."

Brandi said these cuts represented the "tough decisions" Charlevoix faces now and can likely expect in years to come, thanks largely to Michigan's economic problems. Deciding to cut things like ambulance equipment are "things you'd just rather not do."

"When you make the decision to have two fully outfitted ambulances but not a third, and hold off that purchase for a year, that's something you'd rather avoid if you can," Brandi said

Council member Lyle Gennett cautioned about pushing too many expenses down the road.

"We need to be careful what we put off to next year. It might be worse than now, and we have to do a balancing act," he said.

Brandi agreed, stating deferring some purchases is simply "prolonging the inevitable," and city leaders need to be careful not to push too many expenses to future years.

"You don't know what's going to happen, and you don't want to see things dam up later," he said.

Straebel reported that, for now, state revenue sharing, a major funding source for municipalities in Michigan, has remained flat, while the cost of operating has gone up.

"Combining State Shared Revenue constraints and State mandated millage rollbacks with little residential and commercial growth has created unique challenges for the city not experienced in previous years," Straebel stated.

Balancing the 2007-08 budget required the city to dip into its fund balance, transferring $139,000 to the general fund to cover expenses. That leaves the city with a 15.3 percent fund equity, which is "where we are supposed to be."

"Generally you like to be between 10 to 20 percent, so we're right in the middle. We're being prudent but if we continue dipping into our reserves year after year, we'll have a problem," he said. "We have to be careful, and we will probably have to make some even tougher decisions next year."

Planning for that, some actions have been taken to boost revenue this year. One action was to increase fees at the Charlevoix Golf Course and Mount McSauba ski hill for non-city residents. Straebel said it is a logical action because the city subsidizes funds from the General Fund for those services, so "whether they use them or not, city tax payers are paying for those amenities." Therefore, he said, boosting fees for non-city tax payers who do utilize the services as a way to reduce the amount of transfers from the general fund "has some weight."

Brandi noted council's interest in developing fire and recreation authorities could help deter even more costs in those areas in the future. Council plans to seek more information on those options in coming months.

Another action was to increase the city tax rate by approximately .2 mils which may be offset with an equal mill levy reduction on the Infrastructure Millage because of Headlee. The Operating Millage will remain unchanged at 9.05 mils, and the millage for trash and rubbish pick up will increase by .2 mils to cover the increase in operation costs. The budget proposed to levy a total 12.1528 mils for the period of April 1, 2008 to March 31, 2009.

Straebel said sewer rates will see a 5.5 percent increase, needed to accomplish goals already set by the city for the sewer fund. There will be no increases in water or electric fees. Public hearings will be held on all increases — scheduled for 7 p.m. Feb. 18 at City Hall — before council votes on them. Brandi said council will vote before the end of February.

A major part of the budget is capital expenditures, which total $1,998,400. Expenses include the marina and park project, which will have some expense carried over into next year's budget, Chicago Club area infrastructure improvements ($552,300), motor pool major capital purchases ($406,700), Airport equipment purchases ($330,000), a fire tanker purchase ($150,000), power line tree trimming ($120,000) and others.

Estimated total expenses for the 2008-09 budget are $3,452,300, balanced by estimated revenues of the same amount.

Straebel said the proposed budget is based upon goals set by council in December 2007, and reflects decisions made by the group about what should be done in the upcoming year. The budget "incorporates a long-term perspective," he said, that reflects "a fiscally sound plan that will allow the city to address community priorities, support essential services and provide for investment in critical capital improvements."

Straebel also told council that despite the fiscal challenges that lie ahead, "we remain optimistic by the overall direction of the City and see these challenging times as an opportunity to further improve operating efficiency and effectiveness." This is reflected, he noted, in large expense cuts such as postponing the $60,000 new well at the ski hill, and simpler things like purchasing laptop computers for council to eliminate the expense of printing agendas and other paper items for each meeting.

"These (laptops) will pay for themselves in a short period of time by eliminating that paper and supply expense," Mayor Norman Carlson said.

Proposed expenses
Legislative: $63,500
General government: $571,600
Public safety/health and welfare: $1,433,700
Public works: $248,600
Recreation and Culture: $945,900

ty areas, have developed a set of five priority needs within the area that funds need to address. First and foremost, Lancaster said, is meeting urgent and basic human needs.

"Given the state of Michigan's economy, we've noted urgent needs as a top priority focus," she said.

Improving financial stability is No. 2 on the priority list, Lancaster said, because long-term planning is important in United Way's proactive stance of service.

"This (financial stability) is a longer term issue but it can really help prevent people from having to turn to those urgent and critical need services down the road," she said.

The other priorities are to help youth succeed, increase independence and self sufficiency among citizens and promote individual and family health and wellness.

"We have set these priorities because, with the increased need in our community for health and human services and with limited dollars available, United Way's Board of Directors must ensure our Community Investment Allocations are being made as wisely as possible," the organization stated in a press release.

Area agencies are in the process of submitting letters of intent to apply for funding, which are due Feb. 6. United Way Board of Directors will review those letters, and most of those agencies will be invited to submit a formal proposal for funding, Lancaster said. The next step in the process — the Community Investment Allocations process which invites volunteers from the community to help decide where and how the money is spent — requires agencies to attend the CIA meeting in April to explain how their programs will meet those identified needs.

"Representatives from those agencies will be asked which of these needs is met by their program(s) and how," Lancaster said, noting the importance of focusing on those specific areas of need. "We want to make sure we use our donors' money as effectively as possible."

Following presentations, given before the workgroup consisting of board members, citizens' review panels, and staff of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area and Charlevoix County Community Foundation, recommendations will be made as to how funds will be allocated throughout the two county area. In 2007, United Way reported allocations of $129,250 to 23 agencies in grants ranging from $250 to $12,000. United Way invites interested citizens to participate in the process, and welcomes input.

Sharing the life of a 'struggling' snowboarder

Charlevoix native making film to offer 'Exposure' to young riders

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Just a few short years ago, John Curtis, formerly of Charlevoix, thought all he wanted to do was play hockey. Since leaving the sport due to injuries, he has discovered his two true passions — snowboarding and "capturing the moment" with video and digital cameras — and has combined them in a way that allows him to share his interests with others.

Curtis, now 21, spent years of his younger life focusing on hockey but, after seven reconstructive surgeries on his knee, he decided to hang up the puck. He eventually settled on snowboarding as his new calling and "jumped in headfirst," eventually moving to Park City, Utah with fellow Charlevoix native Eric Conn to pursue the sport more seriously.

Curtis' wife, Bre, supported the venture, also moving westward, and purchased Curtis his first camera. He started working for a production/TV company in the Park City area, and his idea of capturing the sport of snowboarding on film "snowballed."

"Working with the TV station, they took me from someone who didn't know what they were doing to someone who knows how to make a video look professional," he said.

Partnering with fellow snowboard enthusiasts Conn, Mick Papp, Andy Kantola, and Jake Parrish, all of Charlevoix, and other east coast snowboarders, Curtis produced a 25 minute documentary style film aimed at showing people "what it's like to be a snowboarder." The video was aired extensively via the Internet, gaining enough attention in the snowboarding world to land Curtis and his now established production company, Go Film Crew Productions, LLC, a chance for a second film.

"The concept is that sports like snowboarding are so reliant on media and sponsorships, we are trying to empower kids to get out there and do it themselves," Curtis explained.

The first film, Westward Movement, focused largely on the Park City area and the Charlevoix area athletes that moved westward. The second

Three trees to come down in East Park

Public safety cited as city's major concern

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Not everyone is happy about Charlevoix City Council's decision to remove three trees from East Park but, council members agreed, the trees cannot be saved and the situation has become "a safety and liability issue for the city."

"We felt we needed to do what was right for the community at the time," Mayor Norman Carlson said of the unanimous decision made last week to remove one tree from the center of the park, near the old submariners' memorial, and two near the south side of the park by the Performance Pavilion.

Street Department Superintendent Pat Elliott addressed council on the issue, having sought guidance from local certified arborist Mike McDuffie. Council members requested Elliott "look into" the matter after they toured the construction site last month and became concerned about the extreme lean the tree in the center had, Carlson explained.

Elliott said McDuffie's conclusion was the trees had been diseased prior to the onset of construction, and became further strained as a result of the work. They are not expected to live more than five years.

"If we're going to take them out, now is the time because we've already got a construction zone there," Elliott advised.

Those upset about the decision included Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission members Dave Robinson and Peggy Brennan. Representing two-thirds of the local commission, the pair were displeased with the trees' removal. Robinson said the Commission had been promised during early stages of the park project the trees would be preserved, but they are now beyond repair.

"This was not an error on the council's part but on those responsible for drawing the specs (specifications) for the project. Those were not planned tight enough to protect those trees," Robinson said.

Carlson said the decision to remove the trees was a council decision, not a Tree Commission decision, according to the guiding ordinances of the body. Robinson said as the Tree Commission, he and Brennan should have been consulted.

Elliott said efforts were made to preserve the trees, but,

Local returns to Charlevoix to add area riders to film

endeavor, to be called Exposure Project, is meant to give exposure to up-and-coming riders.

"We have a group of 7 to 10 riders touring the country basically in this van with a tow-behind camper and checking out various riders," Curtis explained, adding those featured in the film are getting their first taste of "exposure" and are "not Sean White yet."

"We wanted to show what it's like to be a struggling snowboarder, someone who isn't making any money but is doing this because they love it," he said.

The group travels to resorts and films young riders "shredding, having it out there, and we get them to ride with us for a while," Curtis said. It is an opportunity to be on camera most young riders may not otherwise get.

Curtis has been serious about snowboarding for about five years now, he said, and it has been an answer to his search for what he wants out of life. Having found something he enjoys to do, he wants to make a career out of supporting the sport. His wife, Bre, has behind him throughout the project, he said.

"Bre was really supportive through everything," he said.

Bre said she just enjoys watching him "do what he loves."

The second film is intended to focus in part on Curtis' hometown, and will feature filming of local snowboarders as well as footage from an upcoming event planned at Mt. McSauba Feb. 24. Curtis said a contest will be held for locals to show off some talent, and it will give younger riders a chance to get on screen. The band Charlie's Root Fusion will also be playing at the event.

Another promotional event is planned for Feb. 16 at the Otsego Club in Gaylord. Go Film Crew Productions invited 25 of the best snowboarders in northern Michigan to compete for a chance to ride for Revolution Snowboard MFG, the sponsor Curtis rides under.

Those working with Curtis on the second film are Jeff Strong, Aaron Neal, Jon Mon, Aaron Christenson, Eric Coon, Mick Papp, Matt Marloux and Andrew Marlloux. They are "some of the best riders I've ever seen," Curtis said, and join him from various areas of the United States.

The project does have a list of sponsors contributing, including Revolution Snowboard MFG, who donated gas money for the trip as well as clothing, stickers and other items; Ogio, who contributed travel gear for the crew and boosted exposure for the project. Bandits International, a local company out of Petoskey that is run by a good friend of Curtis', Chris McKay. Bandits contributed product and promotional material for the riders. Columbia North West Industries contributed the camper and various others, including Ride 45 of Petoskey.

The deadline for the film's release is late August or early September. When it is complete, Curtis said he has "a lot of ideas" about what to do next, and may begin a partnership with local business Bandit International to open a business that helps Michigan resorts modernize their terrain. He also hopes to continue doing films.

Gohs-onomics considers: Health care or hypocrisy?

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Could standardized national health care further impede on already dwindling rights?
Visit www.charlevoixcourier.com to share your opinion

Welcome to Gohs-onomics 101: this week's lesson Hypocrisy and Health Care.

For the betterment of my frail and bloated ego, you may call me Professor Gohs.

You might be thinking, "But Dr. Gohs, people with glasses and pocket protectors buy a lot of overpriced credit hours and read a lot of boring books, some of which written by boring professors with fancy degrees and also glasses and pocket protectors: What gives you the right to carry that title?"

Simple, I locked my editor in the bathroom and can do anything I damn well please.

Now, when I was a kid, health care consisted of Jim Beam, masking tape, iodine, and the rusty razor in dad's tool box, but it seems some delicate types out there cannot live without trained physicians, sterilized equipment and metered medicine—the old man had a name for folks like that, but I digress.

The latest venue for these whiners is perennially pudgy muckraker Michael Moore's film "Sicko" wherein he focused on Americans unhappy then insurance failed to cover certain products and procedures, and the rest of the time he talked to people from countries with socialized medicine.

Assuming the few French, Cuban, Canadian and English citizens Moore interviewed are a fair representation of their respective systems, (and assuming the taxation rate isn't 50 percent of what they earn) the concept looked pretty good, but I remained doubtful.

The movie reassured me anyone who thinks their insurance exists to help them is an idiot; the wife, on the other hand, began planning her move to France.

"France!" I shouted after she left the room. In Le Doghouse or no, I didn't work my butt off for the last 10 minutes to get a Ph.D. in nothing just so I could leave my native land of freedom fries and obscene obesity.

Desperate to find a roommate to kick in the wife's half of the rent, and short on friends with jobs which don't entail wearing a shirt and hat bearing the company logo, I called my favorite George Washington liberal (see also: Closet libertarian parading as a Republican).

Before his name went on the lease, I had to know his stance on national health care. After all, I wasn't going to replace one pinko with another.

GW said America had the best care in the world, and he feared socializing medicine would reduce marketplace competition and lower the quality of care.

OK, the World Health Organization ranks us 37th out of 192 countries, but that's pretty close to number one, and truthfully I was getting desperate; For some reason people shy away when you tell them you scream in your sleep are prone to excessive flatulence—oh, you're so superior?

I know what you're thinking. "But Gohs, you're a rich doctor, what do you care about health care issues?" to which I say, "Rutabaga, matchstick, tennis ball—OK, so maybe I should back off from writing my own Vicodin prescriptions.

At the end of the day I sincerely fear losing the last two or so percent of my constitutional freedoms—the right to get drunk and fat (check and double check)—due to a government mandated and oh-so-overzealous national health policy, but the truth is we are already a socialist nation.

From schools and libraries to city police and the U.S. Air Force, we are a society of publicly owned institutions.

Unless you are wealthy enough to own a fire truck, snowplow and road building equipment, you participate in, and benefit from, socialism.

Luckily there are folks like Bill Gates and Rupert Murdoch who pick up the enormous shortfall for people like me.

What's more, American hospitals already receive millions, if not billions, in subsidies in addition to Medicare and Medicaid payments.

I'm not going to use my sway as a respected physician to convince you the haves should cough up (pun not intended, but nonetheless enjoyed) the $2 trillion a year currently spent on health care, but think of what you could to with a new spleen or free kidneys; And, how easy is weight loss or smoking cessation (that's doctor lingo for "quit") when the municipal medicine men hold a gun (see also: IRS agents wielding automatic weapons) to your head?

Oh, and if the wife actually moves to France as she keeps threatening, my private practice will be accepting new patients. I specialize in blondes over 40.

The biology of political parties: Wings or factions?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knudson

Political imagery for Ear to the ground.

The words to describe political parties or candidates in the press and television media are often more entertaining than informative. The Republican Party is most commonly depicted as having wings. There is the small government wing, the anti tax wing; the evangelical wing; the anti abortion, anti gay marriage and stem cell wing (that is probably only one wing), the anti evolution wing, and the business wing. The Republican Party is also more often described as having a well-defined base. So — that makes it a defined base with at least six wings. It is hard to picture, and as a biologist, I know that any potential creature with at least six wings is mythical. There are no actual creatures on earth, now or at any time in the past, having had more than four wings. An elephant with six wings is even more difficult to imagine. And we all know that except in Disney stores, elephants can't fly. Something with wings has a kind of uplifting feel to it, but too many wings might just make moving in one direction difficult.

Both parties either have or diligently desire a "big tent," theoretically with room for everyone. The specific size or shape of the tent is most often left to our imaginations, but it is always big.

The Democratic Party is more commonly described as having factions or interest groups. There is the labor faction, the black faction, the Hispanic faction, the trial lawyer interest group, the social liberal interest group, among many others. Factions are hard to visualize maybe as parts of a pie. And interest groups often have some single agenda to be pushed before all else. The factions and interest group language provides a picture much like what Will Rogers described decades ago when he said, "I belong to no organized political party, I am a Democrat." All that disorganization could fit into a big tent, if it provided enough elbow room.

Once the smoke of political primaries has cleared just a bit the parties will have to gather up their wings (maybe clip them a little bit), coalesce all those factions (by limiting elbow room) and try to figure out how to get the country going again. You have to wish them luck.

I will personally probably go with the disorganized milling throngs in the Democratic big tent, but a large part of me really does want to see how a base with six or more wings can be controlled well enough to fly right.

LETTERS to the editor

CONCERN FROM A BODY SHOP

Editor:

As a concerned body shop owner it has come to my attention that certain insurance companies are telling their clients must take their vehicle to certain shops that are recommended by the insurance company after they have been involved in a collision. They are being told that the insurance will not cover their loss if they do not take it there. This is illegal under House Bill No. 4127 enacted by the State of Michigan on July 8, 2004.

The bill states, "An automobile insurance policy and an automobile insurer and its employees, agents, and adjusters shall not unreasonably restrict an insured from using a particular person, place, shop, or entity for the providing of any automobile repair or automobile or automobile glass repair or replacement services or product covered by the policy. An automobile insurer shall disclose, prior to or at the time a claim is filed with the insurer, whether the insurer has an agreement with any repair or replacement facility to provide a repair or replacement service or product to an insured and shall inform an insured that he is under no obligation to use a particular repair or replacement facility." In other words you have the right to take your vehicle wherever you wish.

SENIORS SPEAK OUT FOR COA

Editor,

We have been reading with interst the alleged problems people are experiencing with the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging. We are members of the Boyne Area Senior Center. We are so thankful to have our beautiful facility and the many good people who work there. We are a family and look out for each others' well being, these people are part of our daily lives.

We feel the Commissinon on Aging has our best interest in the forefront. If we have a need or concern, it is addressed. Our director will do what it takes to make sure all seniors' needs are met. Does anyone remember when we didn't have a Commission on Aging to turn to? When there was not help available?

We are the seniors, we are the recipients, we are not unhappy. Let's band together as seniors from this county and let the Commission on Aging and the Charlevoix County Commissioners know that we appreciate them and value everything they have done to make our lives a little less stressful.

Thank you.

WHERE IS OUR ECONOMY GOING?

Editor:

When Detroit factories switched from making automobiles to making weapons during the second World War, Detroit was known as the "arsenal of democracy." The population of Detroit in 1950 was 1,849,568 and gambling casinos were not a factor.

Financial profit is the objective in business, and labor cost is a factor. Manufacturers can control labor costs by building factories with technologies that displace human labor, or in locations with cheap human labor, or both. By 2005 the population of Detroit was 886,671 and shrinking, and gambling casinos were in Detroit.

Gambling is the major industry of Las Vegas. The population of Las Vegas in 1950 was 24,624, by 2005 the population of Las Vegas was 545,147 and growing.

Do those statistics tell us anything about the direction that the United States is going?

COA THANKS VOLUNTEERS

Editor:

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is honored to have so many people interested in helping the seniors in this county. All senior centers can use volunteers, and this interest from your paper and citizens in the community can only benefit life for the seniors. One concern which has been addressed is the need for transportation for senior citizens to the point of suggesting the purchase of a bus for each Senior Center.

On January 11, 2008, the COA AD-HOC Transportation Committee met regarding transportation for senior citizens where it was reported that approximately 5,200 seniors are using county transit per quarter. Surveys indicate that free transportation is very important to the seniors. The Transit Department said it will provide transportation for medical trips to Petoskey, Gaylord, and Traverse City, and the frequency of these trips can increase as the interest of senior citizens increases. This action covers the need for senior transportation leaving only the need for transportation for excursions.

Last year each senior center planned two to four excursions or trips. If that can double or even triple at each senior center, it still does not justify spending thousands of dollars on buses that will sit at the Centers the other 300 plus days when the county already has the necessary transportation on hand through the county Transit Department.

While day trips and entertainment excursions are desirable and beneficial, seniors are naming meals at the Centers or delivered in homes as high on their priority list. Other services available for all seniors range anywhere from Homemaker services, Foot Care Management, Personal Care, to Adult Day Service as well as several others. Currently the COA is providing assistance with income tax returns and Medicare D counseling. RN assessments and support groups for caregivers are also available through the COA.

Anyone who does not know the services that are provided may be unaware of the extensive help that the COA does and will continue to provide for our senior citizens. All these programs are regularly evaluated and money is being spent on bettering the overall assistance for the senior citizens of Charlevoix County. These programs benefiting the day-to-day life of our seniors deserve top priority, but the purchase of extra vehicles for seniors when the county already has a means of providing transportation for them other than day-trips and excursions seems to be a mismanagement of funds which people are calling to spend just because those funds are currently available jeopardizing the continuation of all of these other programs.

It is time to address the top priorities which include training all field volunteers and meal volunteers, improving consumer satisfaction at all three senior centers, as well as adding senior center activities and trips. Again thanks to all who are interested and concerned about the quality of life for the senior citizens of Charlevoix County. May you be seen next at a Senior Citizens function with a volunteer name-tag on your lapel.

Area Girl Scouts celebrate birthday with new cookies

As the Girl Scout Cookie celebrates its 91st year of existence, thousands of girls from Girl Scouts of Crooked Tree will be taking orders for this "indulgent treat" beginning Feb. 21 and continuing through March 9. The cost of cookies remains $3 per box. Delivery is slated for mid-April.

When Girl Scouts canvas neighborhoods this year, they will be offering two new cookies. Sugar Free Chocolate Chips offer the timeless taste of real chocolate chips but with none of the sugar. Lemon Chalet Cremes, a vanilla sandwich cookie, are sure to delight cookie consumers with a hint of cinnamon-ginger spice and a refreshing zesty lemon creme' filling. Returning to the 2008 cookie line up are the old time favorites: Thin Mints, Samoas, Tagalongs, Do-Si-Dos, Trefoils and All Abouts. All Girl Scout Cookie varieties contain zero grams of trans fat per serving.

Remember that buying a box of Girl Scout cookies does more than simply satisfy a sweet tooth. It helps support local Girl Scout troops and the Council. Through this yearly tradition, Girl Scouts learn to set goals and develop a plan for reaching those goals. Under the watchful and experienced eyes of Girl Scout volunteers, they gain first-hand experience in handling money, taking orders, tallying sales and arranging deliveries. From the beginning to end, Girl Scout Cookie Program activities are a tested and proven training ground for future business owners, corporate executives, and entrepreneurs. It's amazing what one little cookie can do.

Girl Scouts of Crooked Tree assists over 1,000 adults yearly in serving school-age girls in Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee and Wexford counties. For more information on the 2008 Girl Scout Cookie program please contact the Girl Scout Service Center at (231)947-7354 or (800)968-5030.

One of northern Michigan's most important agricultural crops, cherries, is the main ingredient in Friske's Fifth Annual Cherry recipe contest, planned for Saturday, Feb. 23. This year's categories will be chutney and compotes, and cobblers, crisps, and puddings. Anyone 18 and older, except professional chefs and Friske employees and their immediate families, are invited to participate. Registration packets are available for pick up at Friske's Market on U.S. 31 in Atwood, or by calling (231)599-2604. Information is also available at www.friske.com.

The only requirements are that each entrant submit an official entry form with recipe(s) by Monday, Feb. 11 and if chosen as a finalist, brings his/her prepared dish to Friske's Farm Market Feb. 23 by 10 a.m. Contestants must be on hand at the time of judging to be eligible for prizes. Judging criteria includes visual appeal, taste, originality, best use of cherries and ease of preparation.

Charlevoix takes care of its own

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charelvoix High School students (from left) Kyle Jones, Jake Hunt and Corey Gotshall spent time recently volunteering at the home of Dave and Debbie Woodward of Charlevoix as part of a community project held in response to Dave's medical troubles.

What began as a routine service call on a broken water heater ended with an unprecedented outpouring of community caring.

Diagnosed with lung cancer back in summer 2007, Dave Woodward was forced to stop construction on his home due to health concerns, resulting in a half finished job.

Half finished is how the house sat until a group of builders, plumbers, electricians and high school students banded together to help the Woodward family.

"I'm having trouble expressing my feelings because it's so emotional and it's hard to express your gratitude," said Dave's wife Deb. "It's difficult to receive gifts and we're very, very grateful and very proud to be part of a community that would help us out like this."

Several weekends ago a crew consisting of more than 30 people ascended on the Garfield Street home and got to work installing insulation, a staircase, a shower, removing plaster and even cooking to feed the crew.

."What they did already made a huge difference in our life," Deb said.

While there is much more to do to complete the house, Deb said she is thankful for what was done and expects no more generosity from the community. What she doesn't know is that one of the architects of this random act of kindness, Dean Spencley, plans to return to the home and complete even more projects.

"There is still a lot to do over there, but we got it to the point that it is what we would call livable for Dave," Spencley said. "If people want to give me a buzz and see what needs to be done, I'm happy to take them over and look at what else we can do."

Spencley became involved when his best friend Patrick Faust alerted him to the Woodward's plight while inspecting their water heater.

"He (Faust) came to look at the water heater that was broken and he came in and looked around and said, 'Wow, you guys are living like this?'" Deb said.

Spencley added, "We just like helping people; sometimes we prefer to help people more than do our regular job. We get more out of it by helping people, and without the support of the people we had, it probably would not have gone as well and we had a great time doing it."

The new staircase makes it easier to get Dave to and from his treatments and the upstairs bedroom, to where he is relegated, now has a nearby shower.

"It changed our life at this point," Deb said. "It made it easier for day to day (living) and it helped financially too."

The 57-year-old electrician thought he simply had a bad cough last summer, but subsequent tests showed it to be cancer.

"He did pretty well until Thanksgiving and that's when it spread to his brain and it's kind of gone downhill since then," Deb said. "Since then it's been a whirlwind of medial procedures."

She added, "It was his and my dream to fix and remodel it and live in it forever. We had a lot of dreams together. I would dream it up and he would do it for me."

It was difficult, Deb said, for her husband to ask for help.

"You have a lot of hope that you're going to get better, but a few weeks ago he developed another symptom of his illness called DIC (Disseminated Intravascular Coagulation) and it's a really, really bad sign and he realized he's probably not going to come back from this and be able to do all the things he did before," she said. "And, in the last few weeks he said we need to get help."

> "A lot of people know Dave and they know he would help them if he was healthy enough and they needed it."
> Norman Carlson
> CHARLEVOIX MAYOR

One of the volunteers, Mayor Norman Carlson, said he only knows Dave casually but just had to help when he heard about the need.

"He's someone going through some serious hard times with health and he just needed a hand from the community," Carlson said. "Dean Spencley and Patrick Faust organized the work and I brought my high school crew in the construction tech program ... along with a lot of other students and of course a whole host of community members."

He added, "A lot of people know Dave and they know he would help them if he was healthy enough and they needed it."

Anyone interested in donating building materials or time to the next building project can call Spencley at (231) 675-2717 or Carlson at 675-4561.

"It's much more like a family when neighbors are always willing to help out," Carlson said. "It makes me realize how lucky we are, especially in today's age with the economy and such, to have family and friends and health and how lucky we are to share our good fortune with other people."

He added, "Enthusiastic workers willing to listen and learn are welcome to give us a hand."

Workshop to offer helpful parenting tips

BY ERICA GOFF

Head Start teacher Jeanette Hibbler (seated left) reads to students in her classroom at Char-Em ISD's Taylor School in Petoskey while members of the Great Start Collaborative of Charlevoix, Emmet and Northern Antrim counties look on. The Great Start members gathering to accept checks from David Jones, (second from right), program officer of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, and Maureen Radke (right), program officer with the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, included (from left) Great Start Coordinator Marie Sarchet, Great Start Collaborative member and Charlevoix Kiwanis Club member Bill Lovett, Phyllis Hess with Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, and Great Start Parent Representative Sarah Shuman and her son, Ben.

Parents, bombarded with hectic schedules and the challenges of children, can often wonder where their brains — and time — go. Area human service organizations have banded together to bring parents the answer to the common conundrum: "If I Only Had a Brain."

The free, one-day workshop, "If I Only Had a Brain," will be held at the Community Reform Church in Charlevoix March 8. Developed through community partnerships among various agencies — the Great Start Collaborative and Parent Coalition of Charlevoix, Emmet and Northern Antrim Counties, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation; the Char-Em ISD; Child Abuse Council of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency-Head Start/Early Head Start; and Kiwanis Clubs of Boyne City, Charlevoix and Petoskey — the event will combine ideas "parents and grandparents have always known" with unique ideas based on the science of child development.

"We are bringing together those traditional parenting ideas and the culmination of about 10 years of work tracking preschoolers, and capabilities of the day that watch how brains develop," said Marie Sarchet, Great Start coordinator for Charlevoix, Emmet and North Antrim counties.

Parenting can be intimidating, Sarchet noted, and children "don't come with instruction booklets," despite the common misconception that parents automatically know tricks of the parenting trade. Parent Coalition member, mother and mother-to-be Sarah Shuman said she has seen many parents struggling to "find the best way to be a parent," and felt some help with the vast amount of information would be of benefit.

"With this new generation, even though there is a lot of information out there, there is a disconnect with sorting through it and making sense of it," she said.

The workshop will bring national speaker Dr. Wil Blechman, former president of Kiwanis International and renowned expert in the area of child development, to share his presentation for which the event is named: "If I Only Had a Brain." Breakout sessions and a lunch will follow Blechman's presentation, providing information parents in the area said they want help with.

"We provided surveys at some area fairs last year to see what topics parents were interested in," Sarchet said. "We really focused on that input."

Sessions are:

Experience the Power of Play: Parents practice and enjoy playful activities found to be effective in facilitating growth and development.

Language Play Throughout the Day: Parents participate in language games and activities they can take home and share.

Nature For and With Young Children: Explore how nature experience promotes curiosity, confidence and excitement.

Challenging Behaviors: Learn new strategies to help children be the best they can be.

Shuman said organizers really hoped to offer ideas parents could take home and "try that day," like how to incorporate learning letters and colors while at the grocery store or learning activities outside. None of the ideas offered are things that require purchases, planning or "fancy, complicated" concepts, Shuman said. They focus on simple ideas like spending time together.

"Parents are great teachers. We're offering ideas that may not be things you naturally think about, but incorporate learning into every day life," Sarchet said. "It is empowering for parents to learn they can be a great parent and teacher without overwhelming concepts."

The workshop has become a true community effort, Sarchet added, having been sparked in part by area Kiwanis clubs' desire to do something for children in the area "that really makes a difference." Thus partnerships began, and volunteers came on board.

"If we can impact one family with one child, it will have been a success for us," Shuman said.

A professional day will be held March 7, and Sarchet said she hopes professionals from throughout the county, in any capacity, will participate and learn about how they can help children in the area. Parents, grandparents, caregivers and anyone with an interest in child development (focusing on ages zero to five) are invited to the March 8 conference. Registration begins at 9 a.m. and Blechman's presentation begins at 10 a.m. The workshop is free and lunch will be provided. Free day care will be provided and transportation will be available if needed. Shuman said it was important to "break down all possible barriers" so anyone interested would have the opportunity to attend.

Early registration is available by calling (231) 582-8070. Anyone interested in becoming involved in the Parent Coalition can call Shuman at (231) 330-6071.

Mathew Brown is pictured with his medal from the county-wide spelling bee held last week. Brown will advance to the regional competition, to be held in Traverse City next month.

Champion speller

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Charlevoix Middle School eighth grader Mathew Brown is nervous to advance to the regional spelling competition, despite his experience at that level.

"I get nervous but I try not to show it," Brown said shortly after his victory at the county level spelling bee held in Harbor Springs last week.

Brown and fellow Charlevoix Middle School student Maggie Hamilton made the trip to Harbor Springs for the competition last Tuesday, as did St. Mary spellers Nick Scabes and Ryan Joy. It was Brown's third trip to the county spelling bee, and the second time he has advanced to the regional level. Brown's spelling of impetuous concluded his victory after 15 rounds of spelling. Hamilton tied with two other spellers for seventh place.

The county competition is for fifth through eighth grade students, as is the regional match up, to be held March 9. If Brown is victorious there, he will advance to the national competition to be held in Washington, D.C.

Chamber joins regional alliance

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Multiple voices are better than one.

That age-old philosophy is part of why the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce believes its recent invitation to join the Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance is a benefit.

"There are strength in numbers. The five chamber alliance will expand the capability of businesses in our area," Charlevoix Chamber Executive Director Erin Bemis said.

Charlevoix received its invitation to partner with Cadillac, Gaylord/Otsego, Petoskey and Traverse City chamber organizations last month, and is now part of the four-year-old alliance aimed at assisting the business community of northern Michigan. Bemis said by working closely with the group, and having five chambers act as one entity when dealing with state and federal legislative issues, the [illegible] will be better represented in Lansing.

"This will give us more strength in political stature. If we can band together and create a unified front we can bring a substantially more powerful voice to Lansing," she said.

The alliance, with the addition of Charlevoix, represents more than 5,000 member businesses across 10 counties, making it the second largest regional chamber in Michigan. Bemis noted the Charlevoix Chamber believes it is important the region come together and speak as one voice to advocate on issues of mutual importance in Lansing and Washington, D.C. The five chambers share geographic characteristics as well as business climates, thus sharing interest in issues such as care and preservation of the Great Lakes, support for Michigan tourism, [illegible] financing for businesses, as tax increases and electrical choices, all things Bemis said the alliance will work together on in Lansing.

Assistance and voice will be offered by Jamie Callahan, vice president of government relations for the alliance, who will work with the Charlevoix Chamber staff and its members while fostering relationships on behalf of the region with legislature officials.

Membership in the alliance will also give Charlevoix Chamber members access to a new publication, the Northwest Michigan Business magazine, a bi-monthly publication that will offer editorials on business and economic issues contributed by the five member chambers.

Charlevoix joined other members of the [illegible] on Feb. [illegible] where the [illegible] for the upcoming year was established.

Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Carlin Smith said because of Charlevoix's strong manufacturing base and its solid tourism economy, it will be a "perfect addition to the alliance." Bob Kasprzak, president and CEO of the Gaylord/Otsego County Chamber of Commerce, also expressed support for Charlevoix's addition to the group.

"The five chamber partners share a common vision of serving our members through proactive representation of their legislative priorities. I am pleased to see the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has joined our legislative advocacy efforts," he stated.

Given the economic state of Michigan, Bemis said it is important to focus on support for the business community, and membership in the alliance is one more tool that can be used to meet the chamber's goal of addressing business issues and fostering an environment that creates and retains jobs in the area.

"More than ever, we [illegible] and with the [illegible] legislative voice for northwest Michigan businesses," stated Bill [illegible], president of the Cadillac Area Chamber of Commerce. "We believe the alliance is serving a critical component for our members."

CHS student wrestles with brain cancer and wins

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Some folks are just happy to be alive following a bout with cancer — not Rayder senior Nathan Tripplehorn.

Tripplehorn's idea of celebrating a second chance at life includes being slammed to the floor, put in headlocks and having his arms twisted behind his back.

"Right now I'm just in remission," Tripplehorn said. "This'll be my sixth year wrestling."

Tripplehorn was originally diagnosed with brain cancer in January 2006, underwent treatment and was given the tentative all clear until winter 2007 when he had a recurrence.

"I had two rounds of chemotherapy and two rounds of radiation," he said. "It cut my wrestling season short last year and the year before."

Tripplehorn, who wrestles for Charlevoix Public Schools, was influenced by family.

"My dad used to be a wrestler in high school," he said. "He really got me into it. Once I tried it I just loved it and stuck with it."

Tripplehorn first noticed an issue with his eyes.

"I was having double vision so I went to the eye doctor and they said something was wrong," he said. "I had an MRI and they found a spot. It was just an abnormal(ity) in the brain and they referred me to a hospital and said it was some bad news and it just went on from there."

He added, "Then they told me I had a brain tumor."

As scary as this type of experience might be, Tripplehorn stayed strong.

"They said I had an 85 percent cure rate and so I was happy about that and when I met my doctors I was confident that they knew what they were doing," he said. "I just didn't want to go through all the treatments, but I put up with it and they just made me tired a lot. The first round (chemotherapy) I was in the hospital three days at a time and then I did 21 treatments of radiation and the second round of chemotherapy was five days at a time and they used different harsher drugs and I did 22 treatments of radiation."

Tripplehorn added, "Every two weeks I was in and out of the hospital."

He was treated at DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Nate Tripplehorn (right) in action as part of the Charlevoix High School wrestling team. Tripplehorn began his battle with a brain tumor in January 2006.

Though cleared to wrestle, Tripplehorn is barred from full contact sports.

"I couldn't play football anymore. The head-on collision from brain trauma could have affected me a lot more than everyone else," he said. "If I was to get a concussion it could have been worse than a normal concussion."

The 18-year-old lost nearly 40 pounds due to the treatments.

"It's gotten rid of a lot of muscle that I used to have," Tripplehorn said. "I just can't let this interfere with my life. I need to try not to let it affect me—yeah it takes away a lot of things I love to do like football and when they told me I couldn't do it anymore it was heartbreaking but I kind of knew it was coming."

Tripplehorn, who now gets a checkup every three months for the foreseeable future to ensure he remains cancer free, said other kids going through this just need to stay positive.

"Make sure you have friends and family because that's what really got me through it," he said.

Tripplehorn, who will likely not seek to wrestle in college, hopes to pursue a career in computer science at Grand Valley State University in Grand Rapids.

Charlevoix band performs in Magic Kingdom

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Members of the Charlevoix High School band got the chance to share in some magic last month with a trip to the Magic Kingdom at Disney World in Florida.

Band director Jayne Bennett said she had always wanted to take her students on such a trip. Having participated in the Magic Music Days event at Disney [illegible] years past [illegible] students [illegible] her enthusiasm [illegible] commitment [illegible] necessary amount [illegible] 30 students to travel to Florida for five days.

"It was such a great experience. They played well and they were courteous and polite and we had a great time," Bennett said.

The group had two performances during the trip, one at the Galaxy Theater in Tomorrowland located in the Magic Kingdom. Bennett said everything in the Magic Kingdom "needs to be like magic" — bands appear playing seemingly out of nowhere, she explained — so the students got the chance to work with and learn about technical work in theater. The Disney technicians were "great to work with and complimented our students on their fine performance as well as their professional behavior," Bennett said.

The group also attended an instrumental workshop where a professional conductor shared information about the responsibilities of his profession, such has having to prepare for 300 performances that have to be perfect with just one or two rehearsals.

Bennett said the band received a DVD of their performances of two songs from the movie "Aladdin" — Prince Ali and A Whole New World— and one from Tarzan, Trashin' the Camp.

"I would like to say that I had a wonderful time with the Charlevoix students. I would be happy to take these fine students anywhere," Bennett commented. "They were a delight to travel with and represented Charlevoix Bands and public schools with respect and dignity."

She also thanked chaperones of the trip.

The Charlevoix High School band will perform locally at its annual pre-festival concert Feb. 20, which will serve as preparation for festival competition to be held in Petoskey March 1. The middle school band had its pre-festival concert Feb. 12 and its festival competition will be Feb. 23 in Petoskey.

Equalization Ratios, as shown, are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value.

The Multipliers, as shown, are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that noadjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to aach individual valuation.

Consultant to assist COA with service improvements

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The most recent effort made by the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging (COA) to revamp its services is the hire of an organizational consultant to guide its future moves.

Following a county wide survey which yielded unfavorable results on how the COA provides services to area seniors, the commission and its board have worked diligently according to some, while others say they have not worked hard enough.

"We were criticized in the assessment for processes in the office and a need for improvement in services and clarity of roles and responsibilities," said COA board member Margo Johnson. "We are really looking to improve processes and identify staffing needs more clearly."

She added, "All those actions we identified back in October (2007) we prioritized and grouped into various categories and appointed ad hoc committees to work on each category to analyze (and) analyze the actions."

Johnson

In a biting letter to the editor (Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, Feb. 6 edition) from Charlevoix Senior Center Inc.'s board vice-president Richard Tunison, he stated the COA board members are in denial and are dysfunctional.

"They refuse to accept the results of their own survey, stating that the study sample was too small for reliable results and the results were anecdotal," Tunison stated.

Not wanting to fuel the proverbial war of words which has long existed between the CSCI and the COA, Johnson declined to comment on Tunison's letter, but District Two Charlevoix County Commissioner and chairman of the board Chris Christensen was willing to share a few thoughts.

Christensen

"I think that is an unfair statement to say they are in denial and unwilling to address the issues," Christensen said. "First of all, if they were in denial, they wouldn't be addressing the issue at all. They wouldn't be spending the time and effort of all these volunteer people to get this sorted out."

The deadline for interested parties to propose their consultation services was Monday, Feb. 11.

"Most organizations go outside for consultation because it gives you a more objective look at what you are doing and then it is not clouded by somebody's perception of the situation," Johnson said. "This type of consultant is going to work with the COA director and staff on the organization in order to maximize effectiveness and efficiency and give us a complete focus on the (seniors) and we really need to focus on what it is we are really all about."

Christensen said the COA board is doing all they can to improve the perceived problems laid out in the survey.

"I think the recent letter in the Courier the gentleman wrote saying (the COA) refuses to accept the results of its own survey and then goes on to say they made ad hoc committees to address their shortcomings almost seems as if this is a battle of misinformation," he said. "I encourage anyone concerned with how money is being spent to come address the board. Get invovled — it's your money that we're trying to responsibly spend here, so you have to get involved."

Johnson said at least five individuals have expressed interest in the consulting position.

"I would hope we see progress in a few months, but I don't know for sure (the timeline)," she said. "We have to be real careful the consultant just does not go on and on and on. We want to start immediately as soon as we decide what proposal to accept and we want an aggressive process and results as soon as possible."

Christensen said the move to hire a consultant is a good thing.

"I think it is a culmination of efforts. We've run full course between the survey and research and I personally feel this represents finality," he said. "To address people who say we are not moving fast enough: I think we have to be patient. You just want us to start signing checks to people willy nilly, left and right 'til it's gone and that is not a plan. We have to spend taxpayer dollars on things beneficial to seniors, on things they will utilize and on worthwhile investments."

He added, "I think the COA is doing everything it can, but I also think the COA is being bogged down by a certain number of individuals seemingly doing anything in their power to point out problem after problem after problem but never point out a solution."

Johnson said, regardless of the nay-sayers, the COA is working to improve its organizational structure and services.

"We can't afford to ignore the data and we should be looking at it as directional," she said. "Our actions show that we are not just a bunch of people sitting around in committees twiddling our thumbs."

She added, "I'm really excited about the project."

Northwest Academy makes change in administration

Northwest Academy band director and former sole school leader Gary Stutzman (left) shakes hands with Interim School Leader John Bailey. Stutzman will likely remain a co-school leader but will focus his energy on marketing the school and maintaining his music program.

Charlevoix's only charter school has an interim leader while the board searches for a permanent replacement for Gary Stutzman.

Seeking to focus his energy and talents as a musical director and marketing maven elsewhere, Stutzman has stepped aside as the Northwest Academy Public School Board of Education voted 5-2 to appoint John Bailey as the interim school leader while the school searches for a full-time replacement. Board members Rick Beemont and Jack Russell opposed the move.

"I will remain as Chief Administrative Officer and now take on the duties as the Director of Development," Stutzman stated in a Feb. 7 letter to parents. "I will be able to devote more quality time to the band program which has always been a bright spot for our school and an outstanding draw for students to attend Northwest."

He further stated, "I will take on the responsibility of marketing our school in a very aggressive manner, with the intention of increasing our enrollment in all of our grades."

Local Boy Scout pursues Eagle Scout project

Stolt

G. Paul Stolt is a native of Charlevoix, Michigan. He was born on Feb. 13, 1993 to Glen and Lynda Stolt. He attended Harbor Light Christian School during his primary years and transferred to the Charlevoix School system in eighth grade and is now a freshman at Charlevoix High School. Stolt is enjoying public school and takes pleasure in his role on the high school ski team.

Stolt developed a love of the outdoors at a very young age and Scouting is a great fit for him.

He began his scouting experience at the age of six as a Tiger Cub under the leadership of Kelly Shutler. His favorite thing during cub scouts was the "Pinewood Derbies." In February of 2005 he crossed over from Pack 11 to Troop 11 where he enjoyed anything to do with the outdoors and camping. Stolt is currently the Troop's Chaplain Aid and Vice President of Programs with the Venture Crew (for youth ages 14 to 21) 11.

Eagle Scout – From G. Paul Stolt:

"I began my career in scouting as a Tiger Cub with Cub Scout Pack 11, in Charlevoix Michigan. At the time, I had no idea what scouting was about. For most of the time in Cub Scouting, I had lots of fun learning new skills, but only when I got to Webelos and above did I realize that scouting was not only about camping and activities; it was also about serving the community and being the best person I can be.

"I have been truly blessed by the opportunities presented to me through Boy Scouts. The summer of 2005 I was able to attend the National Jamboree at Ft. A.P. Hill, Virginia with two other members of Troop 11. For three straight summers (2005-07) I participated at the Mackinac Island Scout Service Camp (Governor's Honor Guard), providing service to others through guide duty and raising and lowering the many flags on the Island each morning and evening. During the summer of 2007 I served as a Patrol Leader.

"This all brings me to my Eagle rank. I thought I had everything figured out to become an Eagle, but that was before I did my project. I had figured that I would probably end up doing a project where someone told me what they wanted and I would put in a bench or table. I had no idea that my project would take nearly a year to complete, and involve several hundred hours of work from myself and many others, as well as, raising tens of thousands of dollars in (funds, material, and labor) donations.

My project taught me more about myself, people and business than I ever thought I needed to know at the age of 13 to 14. My project required me to acquire proper permits and permission from the township levels all the way up to the State of Michigan, Department of Environmental Quality. I met with business people, environmental experts, researched the internet, measured, planned, measured some more, planned some more, until we were ready to get started. When I started my project I was terrified when presenting to a group of people. But after many presentations and individual conferences I feel quite comfortable meeting and talking with just about anyone when needed. The project definitely boosted my confidence and self-esteem. I also was able to experience first hand, the generosity of people in our community and surrounding area. It's unbelievable what people will do for a good cause if only asked. I am so grateful for the many, many people who stepped forward to help me."

Eagle Project

Although some thought the project too big for one scout, Stolt showed them how to get a project done with the support of the community. Stolt wanted to help both the community and environment. With this in mind,he contacted the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and with their permission he was set on turning a dying shallow pond and swamp area into a living pond ecosystem available to the public for fishing and pond study. Stolt revived this .18 acre pond with an average of 7 feet in depth and increased its size to .25 acres with an average of 11-12 feet in depth. The dredged material was used for fill in the surrounding marshy areas. Stolt installed two drainage areas, brought in top soil, landscaped the area and put in a dock with two fishing benches and three life saving stations that surround the pond. Stolt revived a one acre area, including the pond into a place of enjoyment. With money left over from his project, Stolt will be purchasing fishing equipment for use of the general public. An open house will be held in the spring of 2008.

"Working Together for Our Community and Environment"

Stolt's Eagle Court of Honor will be held on Sunday evening, Feb. 17, 2008, 7 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church where Paul attends and is active with his Youth Group. If anyone is interested in attending this event and showing support for Paul and his project, please contact Lynda Stolt at lastolt@charter.net or 547-4204.

Project to connect people with services

Local human service agencies are joining forces for the first Charlevoix-Emmet Project Connect Wednesday, Feb. 13. The event will be held from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Emmet County Fairgrounds Community Building. Project Connect aims to connect people in need with a range of health and human services needed to improve their lives.

"Project Connect cuts through the red tape that so often makes it difficult for people in need to access the services they need," said Jamie Winters, Chair of the Homeless Continuum of Care workgroup of the Charlevoix-Emmet Human Services Coordinating Body (HSCB) and Safe Home Coordinator for the Women's Resource Center.

The Project Connect planning committee includes Winters, Lorraine Manary, staff of the HSCB; Keith Greenwald of Northwest Michigan Human Services (NMHSA), and Martha Lancaster of Char-Em United Way.

"With Project Connect, we are building upon NMHSA's free tax preparation services," Greenwald said.

The local Project Connect is modeled on similar events that have been conducted in more than 130 communities around the country. It has five key principles.

Not business as usual.

No waiting in line.

Hospitality from the whole community. The project engages government and business leaders with non-profit agencies and faith communities.

Immediate access to direct services; not simply referrals.

Quality of life resources, including haircuts, massage and foot care, phone calls, eyeglasses, dental and medical care, meals, entertainment, and more.

The groups will provide direct services including health screenings, signup for health, income and social service benefits, substance abuse and mental health services, assistance in finding housing and employment. Income tax filing will be available. A hot meal will be served throughout the day, accompanied by live music. A kid's play area is planned.

Attendees will receive donated food, personal care supplies and winter clothing. Transportation to the fairgrounds for residents of both Emmet and Charlevoix counties is being planned. All services will be provided at no charge to those attending.

Manary said organizers hope to include many volunteer partners in the effort.

Chamber Joins Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance

Charlevoix recently joined the Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance. This is a group of strong chambers in our region, and membership is by invitation only. We are the sole Chamber representation for Charlevoix County. What does this mean?

First, allow me to give a little history. The Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance legislative program was created in 2004 by the Traverse City, the Petoskey Regional and the Cadillac Area Chambers of Commerce. In 2007, Gaylord joined the effort, and we followed in January of 2008. Together, the 5 Chambers represent more than 5,050 businesses in ten counties. We are now the second largest regional chamber group in the state of Michigan.

Together, the 5 chambers share a full time government relations staffer, Jamie Callahan. Though his "office" resides in Traverse City, he spends most of his time in Lansing, operating on a peer level with similar positions in Detroit, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo and Lansing. He is developing a web-based grassroots advocacy program to keep members informed on major legislative issues and activating the substantial Northern Michigan business community as a force on key legislative issues.

Chamber members will receive updates from Jamie which will be delivered via email on a weekly basis. Also, the Alliance is producing a bi-monthly magazine entitled NORTHWEST MICHIGAN BUSINESS. It will focus on issues that are important to your business and to the future of our region. The high quality, full-color magazine will present business news and analysis that you cannot get anywhere else, information that is vital to the decision-making in your business. Northwest Michigan Business also serves as an advocate for our region in Lansing. As a positive voice for Northwest Michigan business, the magazine acts as an advocate for change and growth as Michigan diversifies and transforms into its next era. It will have editorial content from Directors of involved Chambers, and Jamie will be a regular contributor as well. All chamber members are given free subscriptions.

Jamie Callahan is scheduled to make a presentation at the next Industrial Development Committee meeting.

New Bachelor's Degree program to be offered at NCMC

MICHIGAN COLLEGE

Shown signing the articulation agreement between North Central Michigan College and Lawrence Technological University are (seated, from left) Cameron Brunet-Koch, Ph.D., president of North Central and Dr. Jacqueline Stavros, associate professor for the Graduate College of Management at Lawrence Tech. Also shown are (standing, from left) Timothy Dykstra, Ph.D., dean of instruction at North Central, Teri Goodman, Lawrence Tech's Northern Michigan Education Center Manager, and Robert Marsh, Ph.D., associate dean of occupational programs at North Central.

North Central Michigan College and Lawrence Technological University have signed a University Partnership agreement that will help residents of northern Michigan earn a bachelor's degree in Information Technology entirely in Petoskey.

Under the agreement, a student may be able to earn up to 75 credits at North Central and transfer those credits to Lawrence Tech to complete a bachelor's degree in IT. All of the classes needed to complete the bachelor's degree will be offered by Lawrence Tech on North Central's campus in Petoskey.

Lawrence Tech will waive the existing 60 credit transfer maximum. As a result, students will be able to transfer additional North Central credits to Lawrence Tech and minimize any potential loss of credit or duplication of coursework.

The agreement is ideal for, but not limited to, North Central students who are working toward an associate of applied science degree in either Computer Information Systems or Computer Networking.

To help students get a head start on their bachelor's degree in IT, Lawrence Tech will offer two upper level courses on the North Central campus in Petoskey starting in September 2008. These courses will have no prerequisites and will be open to anyone including recent high school graduates, whether or not they are enrolled at North Central.

"Our bachelor's degree in Information Technology addresses the growing needs of organizations in this competitive global market place," said Richard G. Bush, Ph.D., Lawrence Tech's director of undergraduate management programs. "Organizations need skilled and creative IT professionals to help them to compete locally, regionally, and globally. A bachelor's degree in information technology degree through Lawrence Tech provides students with a strong business and technology knowledge base to solve organizational problems and exploit market opportunities."

Lawrence Tech, a member of North Central's University Center partnership, maintains an office at North Central and currently offers classes in Petoskey leading to a master's degree in business.

For more information, contact North Central's Student Services department at (231)348-6605, or Teri Goodman, Lawrence Tech's northern Michigan education center manager, at goodman@ltu.edu

Local Hospices offer volunteer training session

Seldon

For Donna Seldon, the encouragement to become a Hospice of Little Traverse Bay volunteer arose from connections made after her own personal loss, the death of her son, Robert, in 2000.

A fellow member of the local Compassionate Friends support group, for those who are grieving the loss of a child, suggested to Seldon that Hospice was in need of volunteers.

"For a few years I had been contemplating volunteering somewhere, but I didn't know where to start," Seldon said.

Seldon attended Hospice training sessions over a year ago and offered her clerical abilities in the office rather than working with families facing end-of-life issues.

"I didn't know whether I could go through that grieving process with other families," she said.

As Seldon learned, at Hospice there is a place for everyone who is looking to give of their time and skills. And over the past year, her time spent helping in the Hospice office has been both uplifting and fulfilling.

"I love it. It's the most upbeat place, and they really appreciate every single little thing you do," said Seldon, who volunteers each Tuesday from early morning to mid-afternoon. "I told them to keep me away from the computer, but I can file and I can clean the refrigerator. I recommend it to anyone who has any extra time. I thought they probably couldn't use me because I can't use the computer, but there is so much filing to do, and getting everything ready to move to Hiland Cottage. They need help from anybody who has a couple hours."

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, which serves Charlevoix, Emmet, and Cheboygan counties, and Hospice of Northwest Michigan, which includes Antrim County as well, is looking for more caring and compassionate individuals to join their family of Hospice volunteers.

A volunteer training program for both hospice organizations will be conducted starting Saturday, Feb. 23. The program runs for four weeks, meeting three consecutive Saturdays, including from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. March 1 and March 8, and 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 10. Classes will be held at the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay Offices, located in the Watson Community Center at 3434 M-119, Suite E, Harbor Springs.

Training sessions will include an orientation to hospice and discussion of the role of volunteers. Each class will deal with a different aspect of training - grief and bereavement, death and dying, communication skills, understanding the family, spiritual care of the family, care and comfort measures, ethical issues and advanced directives.

The sessions will introduce volunteers to the variety of services they may provide, including respite care to the terminally ill and their families.

"Anyone who has been a caregiver knows how important it is to have some time for themselves, and our hospice volunteers provide this very needed assistance by staying at the home so the caregiver can get away or rest," said Heather O'Brien, Hospice of Little Traverse Bay volunteer coordinator.

Volunteers help in the office and with fund-raising efforts as well. Also, with the planned opening of the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay Hiland Cottage this summer, O'Brien noted there is additional need for more volunteers to staff and assist patients at the inpatient residence. Volunteers are needed to staff the reception desk daily and help provide support and companionship to residents.

O'Brien said volunteers also assist with staffing the Community Grief and Loss Center, providing support for community members and maintaining a lending library with grief and loss resources.

Call Hospice of Little Traverse Bay at (231)487-4825 if interested in attending this upcoming volunteer training, or for more information.

Charlevoix saving money with new phone contract

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Thanks to the "diligence" of assistant city treasurer Alida Kloster, the City of Charlevoix will save more than $1,700 a month in phone service charges.

City Treasurer Rick Brandt reported to city council last [illegible] Kloster [illegible] months [illegible] with [illegible] provider AT&T, which began last October, led to some changes in the city's Centrex contract with the company. Brandt noted the monthly savings will add up to $20,400 a year, and Kloster was able to obtain retroactive savings from October to February, saving the city an additional $8,500.

The master agreement, officially accepted by council last week, is for 36 months and requires the city to maintain at least seven Centrex lines, with costs for regular phone lines, Centrex lines, long distance calls and local calls offered at a lower price. With the new agreement the city's monthly phone cost with AT&T dropped from $3,800 to $2,0[illegible].

In other news, Council approved a change order for the Ferry Beach Boat Launch renovation project, presented by Street Superintendent Pat Elliott. The project, designed to extend the launch area into deeper water to eliminate problems boaters experienced in relation to decreasing water levels, involved [illegible] beams [illegible] as H piles into the ground to stabilize the extended launch. Elliott said the contractor, RB Lyons, tested the depth of the beams and was unsatisfied with the amount of resistance. Therefore an additional pile length is needed to provide the specified load capacity. Elliott's report stated "at a depth of approximately 20 feet the soil conditions turn to marl and will not support the concrete planks." More depth is needed.

Council approved his request, which will come with a $18,570 price tag, but the project will remain under budget, Elliott said. With the additional cost RB Lyons is still $10,000 under the next lowest bidding contractor.

Get help with heating costs

As Michigan shivers through another arctic blast, Consumers Energy is alerting qualifying residents that state and federal programs are available to help pay heating bills.

"Qualifying Michigan residents can get help paying their heating bills through a Michigan Home Heating Credit and a federal Earned Income Credit," said Debra Harmon, Consumers Energy's corporate customer assistance advocacy manager. Information on how to apply for both credits is being provided with bills that Consumers Energy customers receive in February. Information is also available at Consumers Energy's "Energy Answers" section on its website www.consumersenergy.com.

"There is money available in the Michigan Home Heating Credit program to assist low income residents with their energy bills. Unfortunately, many of those eligible do not take advantage of this program," Harmon said. Eligible applicants can get up to $200 or more for heat [illegible]

[illegible] Forms are also available from the Michigan Department of Treasury by calling (800) 367-6263 or at www.michigan.gov/treasury.

Last year, more than 378,000 Michigan residents received $77 million in aid through the Home Heating Credit program, which is funded by the federal Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program. The Home Heating Credit can be applied to all heating costs, including propane and purchased firewood. The deadline to file is Sept. 30, 2008, but residents are encouraged to file now for the credit.

The federal Earned Income Credit is a refundable federal income tax credit available to qualifying low income workers. For income guidelines, contact your employer, call the Internal Revenue Service at (800) 829-3676 or visit www.irs.gov.

The Michigan Department of Treasury offers help in filling out the forms; information on that service is available by calling (800) 827-4000. In addition, the Accounting Aid Society is again partnering with Consumers Energy to conduct Tax Workshops to assist low income residents in southeast Michigan. The workshops include help in filing Home Heating Credit application. The workshops are held on Saturdays through April 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Consumers Energy's service centers in Pontiac and Royal Oak.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, provides natural gas and electricity to almost 6.5 million of the state's nearly 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Tips to prepare for ACT, college

Preparing for college takes hard work. High school students sometimes have difficult choices to make as they prepare themselves for the next level of education. Below are five common mistakes to avoid.

1. Taking the easy road. Students who take the easy road when choosing high school classes – opting for courses that require the least amount of work and brain power – are probably hurting their chances for success in college. College classes are very difficult and demanding. Students who don't take challenging courses in high school are likely to struggle even more with college coursework.

2. Slacking off senior year. It's very tempting for students to slack off during their senior year of high school, taking easy courses that give them more time to have fun. Students who hope to succeed in college, however, should avoid this temptation. Those who "take their senior year off" may actually find themselves behind academically when they arrive at college. The best way for students to prepare for success is to do the opposite: keep taking challenging courses and academically push through senior year.

3. Focusing too much on GPA. Grades are certainly important when it comes to getting into college. However, colleges tend to look not only at students' grades but also at the specific courses they took. Earning a "B" in an advanced course such as calculus or physics can mean more to college admissions officers than earning an "A" in an easier course such as business math or general science. Students who sacrifice advanced coursework for a high GPA may be doing more harm than good in the long run.

4. Waiting until high school to start planning. Some students wait until their junior or senior year in high school before they start planning for college. By then, it may be too late to take the courses needed to qualify for college, yet alone succeed once they get there. The best time for students to start planning and setting goals for the future is in middle school, when there is plenty of time to set the right course for success. It's never too early to start thinking about your future.

5. Not asking for help and advice—Counselors, teachers, administrators, and parents may seem out of touch about some of the things that are important to teenagers. When it comes to planning for college and the future, however, they tend to know what's important. Teens should ask these adults for help and advice when preparing for the college. Don't miss out on some of your most valuable resources.

SKI TRAILS IN CHARLEVOIX

There is a new Little Traverse Conservancy that opened this year on Boyne City Road between Burgess and Maple Grove Roads, just south of Lake Charlevoix Farms and across from Camp Seagull. Periodically, the trails there will be groomed for cross country skiing this winter. There will be tracks set for classic crosscountry skiing, and, depending on conditions, there may be some grooming for skate skiing.

The area was formerly known as Lake Charlevoix Farms. It has been renamed the Nathan Barry Driggers Memorial Nature Preserve. There is a small roadside pull out to park in non winter seasons. Winter parking is along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. There is a Little Traverse Conservancy sign at the trailhead. The Conservancy's website is www.landtrust.org.

MMA taking nominations for annual award

The Michigan Manufacturers Association (MMA) is now accepting nominations for the John G. Thodis Michigan Manufacturer of the Year Awards (MMY Awards). Nominations will be accepted through March 31, 2008. The MMY Awards are open to any individual employed in Michigan's manufacturing industry or who works to support the sector.

The awards program will recognize manufacturing leaders who make significant contributions to their communities and the manufacturing industry, such as creating jobs, engaging in public policy debate, helping employees develop skills or supporting schools, clubs, civic groups and professional organizations.

The MMY Awards are bestowed in two tiers, a "Large" tier to encompass manufacturing leaders of companies with 500 or more employees, and a "Small" tier for company leaders employing fewer than 500 employees. Additionally, award judges - representing industry, universities, professional organizations and other groups serving manufacturers - may bestow a "Special Achievement" award to honor manufacturers who clearly deserve recognition but whose exemplary achievements may not fit within the general criteria areas.

Recipients will be honored before their peers at the MMA CEO Forum luncheon, May 13, at the Henry Center for Executive Development in Lansing.

There is no fee to enter the MMY Awards.

Task force advices of potential elk risks on north I-75

In September 2007, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and the Michigan DNR in conjunction with the Elk Task Force, installed "elk crossing" signs along I-75 in an effort to alert motorists of the high volume of elk vehicle crashes between Vanderbilt and Wolverine in Cheboygan County. The task force also designed, produced, and distributed posters to key rest areas along the popular corridor as another way to increase awareness.

"While the majority of the elk vehicle crashes occur along the stretch of I-75 between October and January, we want to continue raising awareness," said MDOT's operations engineer Jay Gaitlis. "There is a concentration of elk just north of Gaylord that could cross at any time, so it is a good idea to keep the posters up."

According to Gaitlis, elk crossings do occur year round in this concentrated area, as well as on other roads in the vicinity. He also noted that elk populations, movements, and associated elk-vehicle crashes are affected by many variables that make it difficult to predict.

The I-75 Elk Task Force is comprised of officials from AAA Michigan, Michigan DNR, MDOT, the Michigan State Police, and staff members of Sen. Tony Stamas (R-Midland). The group was born out of a regional traffic safety committee that meets quarterly to discuss traffic safety issues. The task force will meet again, as needed, if additional and feasible mitigation strategies are discovered.

Charlevoix's Level 1 competitive cheer squad recently qualified for the State Cheerleading competition. Team members include Dani Milazzo, Baleigh Hill, Rylynn Sladek, Krista Dorst, and Olivia McKenon.

Young cheerleaders to compete at state

Congratulations to Charlevoix's Level 1 competitive cheer squad for qualifying for their first Young Champions State Cheerleading Competition. After performing and taking first place honors at the Northern Regional Competition in Indian River, this group went on to compete at the Delta-Plex in Grand Rapids where they were awarded second place in small division.

Each team performs one cheer and dance routine that is judged by a panel for required elements, synchronization, originality, and spirit.

Team members include Dani Milazzo, Baleigh Hill, Rylynn Sladek, Krista Dorst, and Olivia McKenon. Other local teams earning first place honors at regional competition were Petoskey-Boyne City Level 1, Petoskey-Boyne City Level 2, and BCP Elite Level 5. The Elite team members from Charlevoix are Ella Killgore, Lauren Pettis, and Bekah Poston.

The Young Champions cheer programs are available to all youth ages 4 to 18. Beginning levels are based on age and build fundamental skills and stunting techniques that carry through to the requirements for high school sports. The focus is on fun while teaching teamwork, sportsmanship, and self-confidence. The Charlevoix class is held every Tuesday night at 5:30 p.m. in the Middle School large group room. For more information on this program contact Young Champions at www.youngchampions.us or Coach Stacey at (231) 330-4671.

Run Charlevoix planned

The "Red Rock Company", a Michigan owned and nationally recognized Sports Marketing Corporation will host Run Charlevoix, a local marathon event, June 28, 2008. Run Charlevoix participants can participate in a full marathon, half marathon, 10K or 5K.

Organizer Ron Suffolk advised runners, "If you do one marathon, one running event the summer of 2008 you should seriously consider Run Charlevoix."

The staging area for Run Charlevoix is the beautiful downtown area of Charlevoix on Bridge Street, one-half block east of the drawbridge. All courses are an out-and-back and will take you through fantastic residential tree lined neighborhoods. The course is primarily flat, fast, and shaded most of the way. Runners can expect a very scenic race with some of the most breathtaking views available on any course. The full and half marathon participants will run onto the bike trail. The Charlevoix City Police, Charlevoix Sheriff's Department and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce are very helpful, supportive and want to help runners have a safe and enjoyable race.

Council approves removal of trees from park

TREES

> Street Superintendent Pat Elliott recommended three trees be removed, six put back in due in part to the incongruous construction process that has involved changing landscape architects and city managers during the process, things were "not done as tightly as they should have been," adding he believes the trees should have been removed at the beginning of the project because they were already diseased and the likelihood they would survive was low.

"When you're constructing a facility of that size (the Performance Pavilion) within 18 or so feet of trees, considering all of the infrastructure involved (water and sewer lines) they are going to sustain some damage. It is unfortunate they've got to come out but we are where we are," he said.

Outside of relocating the pavilion, Elliott said there were few options to protect the existing trees.

Elliott also recommended replacing the three diseased trees with six new ones, suggesting a large spruce or similar tree that can handle foot traffic in the center of the park and five Canadian Hemlocks or similar trees on the south side near the pavilion. The idea of replacing the trees is one thing Carlson, council, Elliott and Robinson agreed upon.

"Mr. Elliott is a knowledgeable person and I agree with what he is recommending," Robinson said in reference to Elliott's replacement recommendation.

Elliott said in addition to maintaining the greenery, the bunch of trees on the south side will offer an extra amenity to the park.

"That will be a place visitors can relax in the shade, read or whatever. There really isn't another place in the park to do that," he said, adding the trees chosen should be older mature trees, 20 to 24 feet in height, that will not block any views within the park.

Carlson added, "It has been our intention from the very beginning to preserve the trees but they cannot be saved, so we are doubling the number of trees there."

Robinson maintained, however, what a "shame" it was to cut down trees that he said are essentially teenage trees, adding it is "far too easy to remove trees, and we rarely see mature ones in Michigan anymore."

"It would be nice if in the future better planning could be done so our children could see what a real, mature tree looks like," he said.

Council member Lyle Gennett made the motion to accept Elliott's recommendation stating, "I hate to see them go but if we have to do it, now is the time."

Carlson emphasized the procedure was not a staff decision but represented Elliott's response to council's concerns. He also thanked Brennan and Robinson for their input adding the City has been and will remain committed to maintaining trees and planting more within the city.

"We appreciate our partnership with the Tree Commission and want to continue that," he said.

Local athlete to compete for Albion College track and field

Lindi Edger is one of the 41 scholar athletes who will be competing for the Albion College women's track and field team this spring. Edger is the daughter of Todd Edger and Mary Edger of Charlevoix and a graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Under the direction of seventh-year head coach Hayden Smith, the Britons are looking to improve on their third place finish in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association in 2007. The Britons are scheduled to compete against their league rivals in the MIAA Jamboree on April 17 and the MIAA Championships on May 1 and 2.

Albion will compete for the first time this season on Friday when it travels to Ada, Ohio, for an indoor meet. The Britons will also compete in indoor meets at Eastern Michigan University (Feb. 16) and Anderson University (March 1).

CHS performing arts team advances in competition

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

On the heels of their Feb. 9 win in Bay City, the Charlevoix High School performing arts team advances to the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association's state competition on Feb. 15 and 16 at Avondale High School in Detroit.

"The kids are looking forward to competing on the state level," said Steve Kantola director of Charlevoix's performance piece The Spoon River Anthology.

The Rayder actors and actresses garnered numerous accolades to win their #1 rating, for a second place nod, at Bay City's John Glenn High School last weekend.

The awards bestowed at the regional tournament include:

- Excellent acting performance — Jonathan Boyko, Kaitlin Boyko, Laura Larsen, Melissa Shephard
- Lobby display — Stephanie Milazzo, Mac Ernst
- Superior awards to costume crew and lighting — Milazzo
- Program award — Jennie Withers, Ernst
- Superior acting award — Ernst, Joel Curiel

"The Spoon River Anthology is in the category of serious," Kantola said. "It is an adaptation of a book written in the late 1800s. It's a collection of poetry which took the country by storm at the time because it was a new writing technique."

The piece entails a community cemetery full of ghosts who recount their past lives.

Kantola thanked Jill Tahaszka, Maureen Themm, Laura Borths and Sue Lane Hamilton for all their work.

"Anyone interested in helping defray costs can call the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts (department)," he said.

Phone Charlevoix High School at 547-3222 for more information.

Residents interested in viewing the show will have a chance when the group brings The Spoon River Anthology to the Charlevoix High School auditorium Feb. 23 and 24. A 7 p.m. show will be held Saturday and a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for students and seniors.

Arbor Day Foundation offers free blue spruce trees

Now's the time to start thinking about the spring planting season, and the Arbor Day Foundation is offering an ideal way for everyone to plant trees when the weather warms up.

Every person from Michigan who joins the Arbor Day Foundation in February will receive 10 free Colorado blue spruce trees.

The 10 free Colorado blue spruce trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

"Colorado blue spruces, with their silver blue green color and attractive conical shape, will give year-round beauty to homes in Michigan," said John Rosenow, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation. "They will also add to the proud heritage of Michigan's 111 Tree City USA communities. For more than 10 years, Tree City USA has supported community forestry across Michigan, and planting these graceful trees will add to this vital tree-planting tradition."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between March 1 and May 31 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6- to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's colorful bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the trees, send a $10 contribution to Ten Free Colorado Blue Spruce Trees, Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by February 29, 2008, or go to www.arborday.org.

an M.A. from the University of Michigan and a B.M.E. from Central Michigan University. Bailey has worked as 4th through 12th grade choral and instrumental music director, principal and even a golf coach.

The 58-year-old's last full-time position was as the principal of Johannesburg Lewiston High School.

"I'm glad to be here. I'm looking forward to (working) and I'm sure we will face some challenges, but this seems like a positive place," Bailey said. "I (am) impressed with the kids. They are so respectful and well behaved."

The board will now begin the process of searching for a full-time school leader.

"We will discuss the strategy and will be advertising and also going through academic circles," said board president Joe Seidel. "The board is in the process of researching the full network of options for a new administrator and the interim administrator will be considered for the full-time position."

Bailey said he will apply for the full-time school leader position.

"He's already hard at work. He is a very well educated gentleman who has served in various positions for more than 30 years," Seidel said. "We are greatly honored to have him working for us in the interim position."

Bailey will be in charge of the day-to-day operational and administrative functions of Northwest Academy.

"We're looking forward at what the future might bring us," Seidel said.

Northwest Academy's board of education will meet at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 13 in the schools conference room.

Winter weather continues to cancel blood drives

American Red Cross urges donors to keep giving

The relentless winter weather pounding Michigan has forced more than a dozen American Red Cross blood drives to cancel or close early in the past week.

Those shutdowns, Red Cross officials say, mean the loss of about 201 blood donations for today alone, and have added up to a total of 681 donations since the end of January. At drives remaining open, turnout has been low as donors struggle with heavy snowfall and poor road conditions.

"We rely greatly on our schools, businesses, churches and community groups to host blood drives," said Sharon Jaksa, CEO of the Great Lakes Region. "When snow, sleet and ice cause these facilities to shut down, it takes away a valuable opportunity to collect blood."

The loss of donations can tip the delicate balance of the blood supply during the winter season, a time when donations typically decline. Patients in 127 Michigan hospitals depend on steady and consistent blood donations to ensure a safe and adequate supply for ongoing and emergency medical needs. The Red Cross must collect about 1,600 pints of blood in Michigan each week day to meet hospital demand.

"It only takes about an hour to donate blood," said Jaksa. "And your single blood donation can help save up to three lives. Please make it a point to give the 'Gift of Life' when you can."

The American Red Cross is encouraging all eligible blood donors to consider scheduling an appointment in the next couple of weeks to offset the recent loss of donations. Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good general health. For information on a blood drive near you, call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE (1-800-448-3543) or visit www.redcrossmichigan.org.

Heating safety tips important in winter weather

Shadow, or no shadow? Consumers Energy encourages safe and "well-grounded" use of supplemental electric heating devices no matter how many weeks until spring Punxsutawney Phil predicted.

The chill of February may encourage residents to use supplemental methods of heating their homes. In doing so, never use the cooking stove as the main heat source as it may be a safety hazard or cause a fire. Also, do not use gas fired space heaters in small enclosed areas due to the potential of carbon monoxide poisoning.

It is most economical to use a home's furnace to heat large areas and multiple rooms. An electric space heater can be a good way to heat a small area.

If using an electric space heater, Consumers Energy offers the following safety tips:

When purchasing an electric space hater, make sure it has an Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label.

If the appliance has a three-prong plug, plug it directly into the wall outlet. The third prong grounds the appliance and prevents shocks. Some extension cords may not be able to handle the amount of electricity required to operate the appliance safely, and could cause a fire.

Keep the water away from curtains, drapes and bedspreads or anything flammable.

Keep the heater away from water and never touch the heater when your's wet.

Always unplug the heater before you go to bed or leave home.

Do not use the space heater if the cord is frayed or damaged.

Never use a space heater in place of your home heating system.

Heating ducts and water pipes in unheated areas should be wrapped with insulation.

If water pipes become frozen, never use electric appliances (such as hair dryers) to remedy the situation.

To maximize the warmth of your home, open the curtains on sunny days, and replace furnace filters often to help the furnace operate efficiently.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, provides natural gas and electricity to nearly 6.5 million of Michigan's 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

For more information regarding Consumers Energy, access our website at www.consumersenergy.com or Terry DeDoes, (517)374-2179 or Mary Gust, (989)791-5871.

AARP recognizes Best Employers

The application deadline for the annual AARP Best Employers for Workers Over 50 list is fast approaching. Employers that offer workplace practices and policies that are friendly toward workers aged 50+ are encouraged to apply at www.aarp.org/bestemployers before Feb. 15.

As more and more boomers turn 60, attracting and retaining skilled workers will become increasingly critical for employers seeking to retain a competitive edge. Estimates are that by 2016, one-third (34%) of the total U.S. workforce will be age 50 or older, up from 28 percent in 2007.

The AARP Best Employers program recognizes innovative organizations that offer policies and practices that appeal to workers 50+, including flexible work options, training/earning opportunities, competitive health and retirement benefits, and age neutral performance and appraisal systems. Now entering its eight year, the AARP Best Employers search honored 50 employers last year, including three from Michigan.

Any employer with at least 50 employees and based in the United States is eligible to apply to the program. This includes for profit companies, not for profit organizations, educational institutions and local, state and federal government bodies.

An independent research firm and panel of judges comprised of outside experts score applicants. Final ranking is based on these scores after review by AARP. Best Employers honorees will be acknowledged at a recognition dinner, which will be followed by an international conference addressing best practices among international companies.

For more information or to apply for the AARP Best Employers for Workers Over 50 award, visit www.aarp.org/bestemployers.

Officers train for school scares

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

"There is no sense waiting until Friday afternoon to practice for Friday night's football game."

That is the analogy offered by Mt. Pleasant Police Department Sergeant Doug LaLone in reference to training held last week regarding school safety. The multi-jurisdictional training, sponsored by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and provided by LaLone and his team, brought nearly every law enforcement agency in the county to one place — Charlevoix High School — to learn how to work together in the event of a school crisis.

"When you have an incident at a school, various agencies will be responding together," LaLone explained. "We are explaining how, when you have a deputy, a city officer and a tribal officer, people that don't normally work together, can arrive on the scene and immediately know their role."

On the heels of yet another deadly and highly profiled school shooting that took at least seven lives at Northern Illinois University last Thursday, and three other school shootings across the country last week alone, LaLone and Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater agreed a proactive approach is necessary in terms of school safety.

"These are skills and plans you need in place, but hope you never have to use," LaLone said. "But if you do you need to know how to narrow the window of opportunity that bad guy has."

Lasater emphasized his office's desire to be proactive, despite the lack of school incidents in the area to date.

"Just because you live in a small area doesn't mean it can't happen. We want to be ready, and we want our citizens and tax payers to know what we're doing to be ready," he said.

$5.9 Mil bond request to be on May ballot

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

A $5.9 million bond request to pay for technology, transportation and facility upgrades at Charlevoix schools is now up to the voters.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted unanimously last week, Tuesday, Feb. 12, to ask the voters in the May 6 election to cancel the last year of the current sinking fund and replace it with the bond.

"We are in a very unique and fortunate situation that we have an opportunity to generate $5.9 million worth of projects and actually lower people's taxes. If people vote yes, their taxes will go down," said Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik. "If it passes, it will have a tremendous impact on the school district."

The current sinking fund rate, set to expire at the end of 2008, is .86 mils. If voters approve the bond proposal, the .86 sinking fund will be canceled in lieu of the .55 mil bond.

"I don't believe the voters will find any controversy in any of the projects that we're proposing," Janik said.

Forums on the $5.9 million bond and other issues are scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 25 and March 4 in the conference room of Charlevoix Middle School.

Charlevoix school board member Bo Boss said the district is entering a "crisis" situation.

"We're way behind in technology upgrades, we've got students in classrooms that don't even have books and we don't even have paper and pencils available," Boss said. "I hate to pay taxes as much as anyone else, but personally I'm going to bite the bullet to help the kids out."

He added, "On my own personal home it's going to (cost) about $50 (annually). If somebody has a better idea, I'm all for it. But I think this is a sound way to go."

If approved, the bond would provide enough money for a district-wide telephone system; replacement of technological components including desktop and lap

Still waiting for news on historic district

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

The Charlevoix Historical District Study Committee, a sub-committee of the area Historical Society that is headed by Mary Adams, is in the process of studying the second area of Charlevoix it hopes to name a historic district while also waiting to hear from the State Historic Preservation Office and the U.S. Secretary of Interior on its application for a first district.

Adams said the first district the group hopes to designate is the east side of Bridge Street, from the bridge to Antrim Street. The group researched the district extensively, questioning which buildings were historic and would "contribute" to an historic district, Adams explained, before sending the application on to the Secretary of Interior and the State Historic Preservation Office. Once a response is received, which the group hopes will happen within the next few months, a public educational meeting will be held to answer any questions residents, business owners and others may have. From there, it is on to city council, who will make the final decision regarding the establishment of a district.

"This is all a ways away yet. It is a very involved process," Adams said.

An informational forum held in December did address a number of concerns and share information regarding the benefits of a district — such a district could potentially provide Charlevoix with access to a variety of grants as well as state and federal tax credit programs for facade and building improvement projects— and what would be involved in its establishment. Presenter Kristine Kidorf, owner of Kidorf Preservation Consulting, suggested maintaining those buildings that "add integrity" to a town's unique history.

Some of Kidorf's reasons for getting on board with the concept involved developing a downtown that is "full, vibrant, friendly and refreshing;" one that reigns "quaintness, uniqueness and historic character;" and one that maintains architectural styles within a theme. The value of historic places can be seen in their ability to tell "the story of place to current and future residents," Kidorf added, as well as create a unique setting and promote creative thinking. The Historic Commission will have DVD's of the forum made available for anyone who was unable to attend.

The second area currently under study is the west side of Bridge Street, including the side streets, from the bridge to Antrim Street. Again, the group is questioning which buildings could "contribute" to an historic district and which have been "altered too much," Adams said.

"We are working on the paperwork now. It will be several months before we are ready to submit the application," she said.

Adams said she is hopeful to hear soon from the state on the first submission, but "with the badget cuts and staffing issues" faced currently she is unsure of when to expect a response.

Training brings law enforcement agencies together

TRAINING

> "These are school safety plans that teach ... how to avoid delay."
> Doug LaLone
> MT PLEASANT PD SRGT

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan agreed the proactive approach is best.

"Things like this it is best to prepare for, and you hope you never have to use it but if you do, you're ready," he said.

Lasater said every deputy in his department was at last Friday's training, in addition to members of the Charlevoix City Police Department, the East Jordan Police Department, and the tribal unit from the Little Traverse Bay of Odawa Indians. Those present learned "tactical entry," LaLone said, and learned how to develop and enact a QUAD — a Quick Unit of Active Deployment.

"These are school safety plans that teach tactical entry and how to avoid delay. These guys need to get in there before a SWAT team arrives, and know their roles before they get there," he said

Doan said working cooperatively is a benefit to all agencies.

"If there is an incident and the Sheriff's Department gets called, we'll be out there to assist them. Also, if we get a call, we'll be contacting them," he said, adding the opportunity to train together helps officers get to know one another.

"The Sheriff's Department has a lot of new officers, so this gave us a chance to get to know those new faces," he said.

Those present said the training was useful. Nicole Smith, school liaison and deputy with the sheriff's office, said the opportunity to work with other area departments was exciting. Charlevoix City Deputy Chief Scott Hankins said the approach of the training offered a necessary reality check.

"It is difficult to train a police officer for real gun confrontation because paper targets don't shoot back. With this simulated gun fire (used at the training) it puts more pressure on the officers," Hankins said.

Charlevoix Police officer Matt Umulis noted the events of last week — "Four school shootings in oen week," he said — made training for a school incident seem like an imminent need.

"It is scary. And it is good to work with the other departments," he said.

Gaming revenue distributed in grants

The Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa & Chippewa Indians is pleased to announce the distribution of their twice a year two percent gaming revenue allocation to local units of government.

Under the terms of the consent decree, settling Tribes v. Engler I (Case no. 1:90CV-611, U.S. District Court, Western District Michigan), the Grand Traverse Band agreed to pay two percent of its video gaming revenue to local units of government, as defined in the stipulation, no later than 60 days after Oct. 1 and March 31 of each year. This payment schedule was modified with the consent of the State of Michigan to July 31 and Jan. 31 of each year because the fiscal year of the Grand Traverse Band's gaming operation is calendar-based.

On Feb. 13, 2008, the Tribal Council determined which organizations would receive a portion of the two percent gaming revenues derived from slot machines. Of the 109 applications received, which totaled $3,606,810.39, the Grand Traverse Band Tribal Council awarded 49 applicants. The total among available to allocate for this two percent cycle was $927,378.64.

It is with great pleasure than the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa & Chippewa Indians is able to provide all citizens of northern Michigan with these services that are furnished solely by gaming revenues.

Charlevoix County received $12,775.00 for prisoner bed contract with Charlevoix County Government.

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

If you're knee-deep in Whitman's Samplers, Kmart lingerie and dead flowers, you are not alone—the nation weeps over gutted wallets and lost greenbacks.

I caved to the emotional extortion after holding out for 14 years; The last time I took the wife on a date was 1994 to see Jack Nicholson's "Wolf."

Before I further expound on the scarcity of celebrating our love, I should probably mention the events which led to this matrimonial mire.

It all started 15 years ago when I tried to date my (now) sister-in-law Rachel. She resisted Gohs' charm, but thought me a match for her younger sister.

She pleaded for me to take her sibling on a date. I refused. She begged. I conceded, with one stipulation: It would cost her a case of Busch Light, for she was soon to turn 21.

A bargain was struck, one thing led to another and I eventually married the younger sister.

Fast forward to last week: The wife didn't push the issue leading up to Valentine's Day, but it was obvious she wanted acknowledgment that our marriage was more than a business that loses more money than it makes—I blame my children, who have yet to land their own Nickelodeon TV series or endorsement deal with Oscar Meyer bologna.

Once again I conceded and narrowed her gift ideas to a fishing pole, a stuffed gorilla and a trip to the movies. I chose the latter—hey, it got me through the first 14 years.

A box of goobers, a medium Diet Coke, 90 minutes of Hayden Christensen teleporting to and from Egypt and the wife was elated; I was sweaty and nervous.

Despite being the only two in the theater, I have an aversion to cavernous spaces and, with the rash of shooting sprees in past years, I am convinced I will someday be the target for a disgruntled mailman or distraught teen whose daddy didn't hug him enough.

I spent the entire movie creating a jail yard shank out of an ink pen and my empty Dots box while considering every hostage scenario imaginable. Steven Segal I'm not, but after six months of Tae Kwon Do, these stubby legs can execute enough awkward side kicks to leave any would-be assailant winded with laughter thusly eliciting our hasty departure.

With the movie finished and my blood pressure out of the danger zone, the wife thanked me and said, "Who are you and what have you done with my husband?"

I politely laughed then asked what she got me, "Seriously, where the hell's my gift?"

Despite being 0-2 for both B-day and V-Day, the wife said she would make it up by planning a trip for her and the kids to Disneyland in August. Of course, she wanted me to go but knew I'd rather gnaw off my big toe than board a plane.

I got a little misty just thinking about a week without the three of them, but protested such extravagance.

She reasoned the children would grow into maladjusted adults if such depravation was allowed to occur.

I felt nauseous, but It wasn't the money or the fact that my kids would be indoctrinated with mass marketing propaganda of an evil corporation; and it wasn't that they would be exposed to a soulless rat with a falsetto, a duck with a speech impediment who refuses to wear pants, a pair of criminally insane chipmunks and a baby elephant so whacked out on crystal meth he thinks he can fly.

OK, it was the money. But, in my defense, I could not justify spending thousands of dollars on something in which I had no interest; in the wife's defense she never once mentioned how I spend that much annually on an ever-growing car collection.

After days of deliberation, and not wanting to invite yet another karmic paddling for my misdeeds, I agreed to the trip. The wife explained that she wasn't asking my permission, but thanked me for the blessing.

Later, with a migraine, palpitations and pondering how this once mighty king got dethroned, I remembered I never even got the beer I was promised.

So Rachel, if you're reading this, I'm considering suing for breach of contract and getting out while I still have my boyish good looks.

Deep thoughts come from deep snow

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I have chapped hands, dry lips, and hair with enough static that I have acquired a few stray birthday balloons. Even my hot flashes aren't keeping me warm this winter. The frigid weather is affecting my husband's hearing as well. I picked up on this when I said I was off to school and he wondered why I thought we should build a loft with a pool. He claims he can't hear as well from snow blowing everyday. This continuous blizzard of snow we've been living in has turned some of us into philosophers, hermits, deep thinkers or worse yet, deaf. Living in this arctic like winter wonderland, I've begun to ponder a bit about coincidences, consciousness, and the meaning of life.

I've thought about how life has a way of putting people in front of you that you've been thinking about or meaning to call. No need to contact someone, just think about a situation involving the person or picture yourself talking to them and 'poof' they show up. Is this a coincidence or thoughtful messaging we didn't know we possessed?

Divine intervention, Karma, or statistical logic- no matter what your belief system, they exist. There is a plan for all of us. We are to meet certain people at specific times in our lives and whether or not you believe in God, we will continually come across situations throughout our lifetime that we won't be able to explain or understand. I feel it's important to have faith in what happens and that things happen for a reason. My left-brained, mathematical friends will be quick to point out that when certain events occur, it is a logical, statistical outcome that has brought the situation together. The odds of certain events occurring at any given point in time are a math problem not coincidence. At some point when remarkable things occur, which is daily, we only seem to notice the ones that get our attention.

Math is not a subject I embraced in school and being the right-brained child I am, I feel our lives have been mapped out by genetics and the grace of God. We are free to choose the direction we take but certain people and events are put in front of us so we may act upon them. Genetically we are already programmed to act and think a certain way. It might be good old great- grandpa that gave you your health problems or difficulties with personal relationships. Knowing that information, you can freely choose to do things differently that may have not been available years ago.

Karma says our actions create the cycle of cause and effect. I believe this to a point but why is it when I am thinking about someone I need to see or talk with, they show up where I am or better yet give me a call? Now I don't think that's coincidence, it's a blessing in disguise. It just saved me some time looking up their number and that's significant in time management with me. Maybe we really can send messages with our minds but we aren't cognizant of it

Elizabeth Kubler – Ross said, "There are no mistakes, no coincidences. All events are blessings given to us to learn from." Now there's a thought worth pondering while you are stuck in a snow bank.

BAD ZONING PLAN

Dear Editor:

Coming...Next Door to You...a five-office professional building??!!! Monday night, February 11th, the Charlevoix Planning and Zoning Commission virtually rubber-stamped approval for commercial use of an R-1 residential-zoned property. Despite 15 or more letters of objections from neighbors and nearby property owners, (not one was in favor), the commission approved, with very few changes, special use of an R-1 residential property that allows the owner to build additions to and remodel a home into a five-office building including a hard-surfaced, nine-space parking lot in the front yard. Unbelievably, access to and from the parking lot is on a residential street (NOT off Petoskey Ave.). With such total disregard to surrounding neighbors' opinions and objections, I'm wondering why the commission even bothers to send out notices of special-use requests. I also wonder how many of the planning commission members would have voted for this.....if the building and parking lot were in the house and lot next door to theirs.

NO SEX SHOPS IN CHARLEVOIX

Editor,

I would like to comment on "The Crying Towel" printed in your November 28, 2007 edition. After perusing the Internet regarding sex shops and pornography, I found a deluge of information regarding negative aspects.

Mr. Gohs states, "In case after case, sex shops lose to cities who cite fear of the unprovable secondary effects such as increased criminal activity." However, I found that Land Use Studies by the National Law Center for Children & Families show evidence of the correlation of adult businesses and crime. For example, in Phoenix neighborhoods where adult businesses were located, the number of sex offenses was 506 percent greater than in areas without such businesses. The number of property crimes was 43 percent greater and the number of violent crimes, 4 percent greater. Dr. Mary Anne Layden, Director of Education, University of Pennsylvania Health System, pointed out, "I have been treating sexual violence victims and perpetrators for 13 years. I have not treated a single case of sexual violence that did not involve pornography." This information came from just one Web site; there were many more.

There is a four-step progression among many who consume pornography: addiction, escalation, desensitization and acting out sexually (which in many cases goes from paper and computer images of porn into the real world, victimizing the innocent.) No, Mr Gohs, we are not "superstitious" and this is not "anecdotal propaganda."

Mr. Gohs states, "These things are as immoral as standing between your fellow man and the fiscal, physical and psychological pleasures which harm no one." I feel that few things are as immoral as making money off sex shops and pornography, which give physical and psychological pleasures that degrade, dehumanize and ruin innocent lives. As long as morality is taken lightly, our nation will continue its downhill spiral. Will we stand by and watch it die!

Kudos to the Planning Commission for their stance

Charlevoix to ask for $5.9 Mil BOND top computers, printers and a fiber optic cable system; the acquisition of several new buses; energy retrofitting and upgrades on the boiler system, windows and sensors; and various building improvement projects.

"We could save about $110,000 a year by doing energy retrofitting," Janik said. "Most of our buses were purchased in the 1990s and virtually all of our buses have over a 100,000 miles on them."

While Janik noted that voting "yes" on the proposed millage will lower your taxes for the remainder of 2008, it will run for up to six years longer than the current sinking fund was scheduled to last.

Issues to be discussed at the first forum include: declining enrollemnt, reductions in school funding allocated from the state,

The discussions at the second forum will be focused on the bond issue.

The tentative breakdown of projects and their costs are as follows:

- busing — $350,000 to $500,000
- Technology — $1.75 to $2.25 million
- Retrofitting and energy upgrades — $1 million
- Facility upgrades — $2.15 to $3.1 million

"The biggest issue... with a sinking fund is we cannot use those dollars for renovation or technology or purchasing of school buses," Janik said. "With a bond, we can."

He added, "We will likely come back in March with a fine-tuned list."

1998 to 2003 completed projects include boiler system repairs, asbestos removal, roof repairs, control systems upgrades, electrical upgrades and parking lot renovations.

2003 to 2008 completed projects include: Boiler system upgrades, roof repairs, security system installation and numerous upgrades to rooms and athletic fields.

Hospital awarded USDA telemedicine grant

Gene DeRossett, USDA rural development director for Michigan, presented a ceremonial $248,627 telemedicine grant check to Charlevoix Area Hospital at on Friday, Feb. 8.

"We are naturally thrilled that our application was approved and that we will be able to connect with our partner locations to provide telemedicine and teleradiology services' a great improvement in efficiency and patient care for our region," said Lyn Jenks, executive director of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation. "We are deeply appreciative to the USDA, Dow and Frey Foundations for their support of this important endeavor."

The Charlevoix Area Hospital serves as a central site for digital X-Ray imaging, diagnostic reading of imaging and storage of records on Picture Archiving and Communication Systems (PACS) for Beaver Island Rural Health Center, Boyne Area Medical Center, East Jordan Family Health Center and Bellaire Family Health Center. Charlevoix Area Hospital will also facilitate being the primary site for emergency telemedicine to occur with Beaver Island Rural Health Center.

Funds for the telemedicine project will be used based on both real time and store-and-forward concepts. Video conference equipment will be the technology utilized for synchronous telemedicine. The use of PACS and Digital Imaging (CR) will be the technology for store-and-forward. Both will need to be used for the complete holistic care in the communities being proposed.

"What this means is that we will no longer have to carry films from site to site," Jenks said. "This will assist patient care and hopefully reduce costs such as travel in the health care system. Obviously, all of our partners feel very pleased to get not only the USDA grant, but also grants from the Dow and Frey Foundations."

USDA Rural Development's mission is to deliver programs in a way that will support increasing economic opportunity and improve the quality of life of rural residents. As a venture capital entity, Rural Development provides equity, liquidity, and technical assistance to finance and foster growth in homeownership, business development, and critical community and technology infrastructure.

Performing Arts take 3rd at state

Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students earned a third place ranking with their performance piece "The Spoon River Anthology" at the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association's state competition held Feb. 15 and 16.

The Rayder actors and actresses garnered numerous accolades to win their #1 rating at the regional competition held in Bay City Feb. 9, granting them the right to head to state.

The awards bestowed at the regional tournament include:

- Excellent acting performance — Jennie Withers, Jonathan Boyko, Mac Ernst and Logal Nuthall
- Multiple roles — Benjamin Pantier, Harry Wilmans, Fletcher McGee
- Technical — Alyssa Milazzo, Avery Jason, April Whitley

Students participated in the Class C-D level and recieved four individual awards for acting. Students were directed by Steve Kantola, who complimented the students on their ability to adjust.

"We had a few kids have to drop out right before performance because of illness. We recast and still did this good," he said.

Residents interested in viewing the show will have a chance when the group brings The Spoon River Anthology to the Charlevoix High School auditorium Feb. 23 and 24. A 7 p.m. show will be held Saturday and a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for students and seniors. Phone Charlevoix High School at 547-3222 for more information.

Not mentioned in last week's story were regional Ensemble costume awards: Alyssa Millazzo, Katie Young and Avery Jason.

Winter weather chills blood collections

Bitter cold, snow and poor road conditions have forced the cancellation of 15 blood drives through the American Red Cross since the end of January.

The combined shutdown means the loss of 724 blood donations for the care of Michigan hospital patients—or slightly more than what the Red Cross collects on a typical day through the 65-county Great Lakes Region Volunteer donations have also been slow at other drives statewide, causing donations for the month of February to fall more than 15 percent.

"We rely greatly on schools, businesses, churches and community groups to host blood drives," said Sharon Jaksa, CEO of the American Red Cross Great Lakes Region. "When snow, sleet and ice cause these facilities to shut down, it takes away a valuable opportunity to collect blood."

The loss of donations can tip the delicate balance of the blood supply during the winter season, a time when donations typically decline. Patients in 127 Michigan hospitals depend on steady and consistent blood donations to ensure a safe and adequate supply for ongoing and emergency medical needs.

"It only takes about an hour to donate blood," said Jaksa "And your single blood donation can help save up to three lives. Please make it a point to give the 'Gift of Life' when you can."

Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good general health. For information on a blood drive near you, call 1-800 GIVE LIFE (1-800-448-3543) or visit www.redcrossmichigan.org.

* County commissioner questions jail menu costs

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Pudding, pie, sausage, pepperoni and ham: Are inmates at the Charlevoix County Jail eating too well?

At around $1 per meal per inmate, with the average breakfast consisting of cereal, boiled eggs and dry toast; lunch consisting of grilled cheese and soup, jail officials say they don't have people lining up for dinner reservations, but one commissioner finds the fare extravagant.

"I'm shocked at the type of food and the amount of money the taxpayers of Charlevoix County are spending on feeding the prisoners," said District 4 Charlevoix County Commissioner Joel Evans. "I was elected by the people to serve the people and one of my duties is to see that the taxpayers' money is spent wisely and only as needed."

The jail served nearly 73,000 meals in 2007 for just over $90,000 at an average of $3.69 a day per inmate and, according to Charlevoix jail food service division worker Mike Davis, the Michigan Department of Corrections (MDOC) requires a registered dietitian to approve the jail's menu.

"At our last review there was no indication of overfeeding or too diverse a menu," Davis said. "It's not the Ritz; no one is giving up their freedom to come eat a toasted cheese sandwich."

In addition to requiring a certain number of fruits, vegetables, starches and proteins for each meal, the recommended daily calorie count is 2,600 per inmate.

"At one point the MDOC had a large scope with very specific requirements," said acting jail administrator Derek Gaylord. "Now they have more basic requirements and they review or inspect our menu once every 12-month period."

Foodservice division worker Mike Davis of the Charlevoix County Sheriff Office prepares dozens of lunches for the inmates of the Charlevoix County Jail. The amount of money spent on food at the jail has come under scrutiny by Charlevoix County Commissioner Joel Evans, District Four.

He added, "They also have a maximum number of hours (14) that you can have between meals."

Evans said he does not intend to criticize the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office or any employee, but he is nonetheless concerned about the amount of money spent on food.

"The task is to fight crime. I believe that jail should be a place that nobody ever wants to return to, that prisoners should never live better in jail than they do on the outside," he said. "It is unfortunate they do live better in jail, often with all medical paid. I do not believe that throwing money at a problem automatically solves it."

Davis said he is very careful to adjust his purchases with the rate of inflation and food cost fluctuations and is not merely "throwing money" at the problem.

"We look at our bills all the time," he said. "We are very careful with the taxpayer's money."

Cost cutting measures include: Using inmate labor to wash dishes and help prepare meals; the jail belongs to a group purchasing program which saves money by buying in bulk with other organizations; and surplus fresh produce is routinely donated from local farm markets during summer months.

The jail once saved money by maintaining its own garden, but was forced to close by the State of Michigan because the produce had not been officially inspected.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater said his office has standards by which it must adhere.

"It is very important that we keep the jail certified by the state of Michigan so they don't close it down," he said. "The menu is one thing they look at very seriously. We go by their standards which we have to by law."

He added, "By giving them decent meals, it helps us maintain a safe jail for inmates and also corrections officers."

Meal offerings must meet the standards of any physician required diet, religious tenet and the jail must maintain copies of the menus for a minimum of three years.

While the MDOC allows two meals to be served on weekends and holidays, Lasater has no intention of changing his three-meal-a-day policy.

Evans, who believes the inmates should be fed twice a day: Oatmeal and water in the morning, basic stew in the evening, said he believes in "humane treatment to a certain extent."

"And, I don't think they should have coffee," Evans said. "It's a frill and jail should be a place with absolutely no frills."

The lunch served on Thursday, Feb. 14 consisted of a toasted cheese sandwich, apple, granola bar and a cup of thick soup made of egg noodles, chicken gravy and canned carrots.

Gaylord was very clear that the jail does not condone, and it is illegal, to use meals as leverage—the only exception being "the loaf" a MDOC sanctioned practice where the meal in question is pureed and baked into a loaf for prisoners who are unruly at mealtime.

"We do not use food as a punishment. The loss of freedom is the punishment for the inmate," he said. "We do not have arbitrary punishment for inmates."

However, Evans said criminals have violated people's rights and they should be treated accordingly.

"I think jail should be an uncomfortable place, but not unsafe," he said. "That doesn't mean inmates should be treated cruelly or inhumanely."

He added, "The largest percent of criminals are really cowardly, stupid and vicious. I think they are treated too kindly in jails."

Lasater said most prisoners say they do not want to come back because he runs such a strict jail.

Mealtimes are 7:30 a.m., noon and 5 p.m. Inmates are given an opportunity to eat their meal and any uneaten food must be turned back in to the kitchen.

"We respect his (Evans') opinion. Joel is a good commissioner, I think he's supportive with the sheriff office and one of his obligations as a commissioner is to look at the purse strings," Lasater said.

He added there is currently no intent to demure from the jail's current menu.

Neighbors angered by special use permit

Planning cmnission OK's SUP request for 206 Petoskey Ave.

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

> CPA Sam Supernaw will remodel home to include nine parking spaces, five offices, and two entrances
> Commissioners approved with seven conditions, hoping to address neighbors' concerns

Despite opposition from a number of neighbors – presented in written and verbal form – Charlevoix Planning Commission members granted local certified public accountant Sam Supernaw a Special Use Permit to transform a home on Petoskey Avenue into a CPA office.

Neighbors of the home, located at 206 Petoskey Avenue, cited safety, property value and parking issues as major contributing factors to their angst about the project, which would involve additions to the house and creation of a parking lot. While valid concerns commissioners noted empathy for, the group unanimously decided they were not valid enough to deny Supernaw's request.

"This project meets the requirements we have (for a Special Use Permit in a Residential 1 zone). If we deny someone's property rights we would lose a lawsuit. We've seen that before," said Commissioner Frances Flanders.

Following a public hearing and nearly two hours of discussion, Commissioner June Cross made a motion to approve the SUP request, with seven conditions that addressed the concerns opposers noted during the meeting. Cross' motion, unanimously accepted by the board, granted the permit under the restrictions that Supernaw:

- Remove three parking spots from the original plan, which included 12
- Establish a new vegetative hedge along the south side of the property (adding to the existing hedge of Cedar trees along part of the property line to extend the hedge across the entire lot)
- Follow procedures of Development Plan approval
- Make a sign restricting through traffic in the alley along the property (this will not be enforceable by law but is meant to deter traffic through the alley)
- Not light the parking lot
- Use downward lighting techniques on and around the structure
- and extend the buffer zone between the south hedge and the parking lot from 10 feet to 15 feet.

Supernaw has operated a CPA office in town, 808 Bridge Street, for eight years, and decided to expand the home into an office area to accommodate a business expansion. He said it was the most cost effective option for him — "I couldn't purchase another building and this office space for this cost," he told the Planning Commission — and he had not expected such opposition from neighbors. His original proposed plan, presented last week by Jodi Alger-Lyons of Home Planning & Design, Ltd, included remodeling work and three additions to the home. The 20,626 square-foot lot has an existing residential home and small garage, and Supernaw proposed a parking lot with nine parking spaces accessed from Nettleton Street and three spots adjacent to the nearby alley. Remodeling of the home would create five new offices, two covered entries, a break room, reception area and bathroom.

City Planner Mike Spencer received twelve letters of opposition from neighbors citing environmental concerns, safety concerns, and distaste for the project in general. Louis Warner, whose home at 211 Nettleton Street adjoins the residence in question along its south property line, is concerned about decreasing property values, increased traffic flow, water run off from the parking lot, snow removal, and landscape property.

"In the summer time we have many family gatherings and picnics in my backyard (and) it would make it very uncomfortable with the traffic and people in and out with no landscape fence," he stated in a letter to Spencer.

Commission members and Supernaw said they understood his concern, thereby developing the requirement for Supernaw to enhance the existing hedge of cedar trees and expand it across the full property line.

Vicki Seger spoke in opposition of the project, naming safety of her children as her main concern. The Seger family lives at 210 Lewis Street, near the alley frequently questioned in terms of the project.

"I have a five, six and nine year old. They play in our yard and they are not used to traffic going through that alley," she said.

She is also concerned about "the character of the neighborhood," because she and her husband "chose that location because of the quaint community there."

Other comments and letters expressed similar issues — "The house itself might not be changed much but with a parking lot there it does cause an aesthetic change," Diana Hilligan said; "We feel the spirit of a zoning ordinance is to separate incompatible land uses for the benefit of all citizens," stated Margaret and Jack Kronbert; "It (the project) will not be harmonious with the existing homes in the area," stated Ross and Miriam Winters; "This permit would make a mockery of the word residential," stated Barry Hilligan.

Supernaw told the audience and commissioners he is "more than willing to make whatever adjustments are necessary to move this project forward," emphasizing his interest in addressing his neighbors' concerns. Commissioners noted his statements.

"I know you will make this a benefit to our community. You are a good neighbor and I don't see a problem," Commissioner D.J. Way told Supernaw.

Commissioners agreed items Supernaw should address are the privacy hedge to accommodate a buffer between the business and Warner's property, limited use of the alley, a smaller parking lot that will be as environmentally and aesthetically pleasing as possible, and lack of lighting in the area. Supernaw also assured his business would only be in operation from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and would not be overly busy outside of tax season.

Commissioner Shane Cole said he owned a business near Supernaw for years (on Bridge Street) and never noticed an inordinate amount of traffic. Given the travel along US 31 as it is, commissioners agreed with Supernaw that traffic flow would not be affected noticeably. They also cited a report from Police Chief Gerard Doan regarding traffic history in that area, and only 6 crashes have occurred on Petoskey Avenue near Nettleton Street in the past 10 years. One involved a deer. Doan thus concluded it is not a dangerous traffic area.

The planning commission's approval of the SUP will now go to the city commission for final approval.

6. To encourage the clustering of development to result in the preservation of larger areas of open space

B. Use and Area Regulations

1. Planned Unit Development Eligibility Requirements. To be eligible for a planned unit development, a parcel shall meet all of the following:

a. The parcel shall be ten (10) contiguous acres or more in area. Provided, however, if the proposed PUD will contain a mixture of residential and non-residential uses, the parcel shall be twenty (20) acres or more in area. For purposes of this subsection, recreational amenities, such as health clubs and facilities providing swimming pools or tennis courts, and commercial activities customarily incidental to a residential use shall not be considered non-residential uses.

b. The parcel on which the proposed PUD will be located shall be served by public water and sanitary sewer facilities, if available.

c. The parcel on which the proposed PUD will be located shall be under single ownership, or the PUD application shall be filed jointly by all property owners.

d. The proposed uses within the PUD shall be consistent with the Hayes Township Master Plan for the subject parcel.

2. Permitted Uses. Planned unit developments shall be permitted in any Zoning District according to the following:

a. Farm Forest (CR, A-1, FF) and Residential (R-1, R-2, R-3, R-4, R-5, RR-1) Districts - Except as noted, PUD uses shall be limited to the range of uses provided for within the underlying Zoning District classification. Such uses may be placed either singularly or in combination. Institutional and commercial uses determined by the Planning Commission to be compatible with the character of the PUD and surrounding neighborhood may also be permitted, provided the total area devoted to institutional and commercial uses shall not exceed twenty (20%) percent of the PUD development area (i.e. the gross land areas less the protected open space)

b. Commercial & Business (C-1, C-2, C-3) District - Except as noted, PUD uses may include any of the range of uses provided for within the underlying Zoning District classification. Such uses may be placed either singularly or in combination. Residential uses determined by the Planning Commission to be compatible with the character of the PUD and surrounding neighborhood may also be permitted provided the total area devoted to residential uses shall not exceed forty (40%) percent of the PUD development area (i.e the gross land areas less the protected open space).

c. Industrial (I-1, I-2) District - Except as noted, PUD uses shall be limited to the range of uses provided for within the underlying Zoning District classification. Such uses may be placed either singularly or in combination. Commercial uses determined by the Planning Commission to be compatible with the character of the PUD and surrounding area may also be permitted provided the total area devoted to commercial uses shall not exceed twenty (20%) percent of the PUD development area (i.e. the gross land areas less the protected open space).

In approving a PUD with mixed uses, the Planning Commission may stipulate the sequence in which said uses, or portions thereof, are constructed.

3. Area Regulations. Except to the extent that a PUD or a portion of a PUD is subject to area regulations mandated by a state agency, a PUD shall meet the following area regulations.

a. Perimeter Setbacks. The setback maintained along the perimeter of the PUD shall equal or exceed the required setback of the underlying Zoning District, provided:

1) Any portion of a commercial or industrial use shall maintain a perimeter setback of not less than fifty (50) feet from any adjoining or abutting property which is developed residential or is located in a zoning district that permits residential development

2) With the exception of access drives, parking areas, lighting, sidewalks and curbing, the perimeter setback shall be landscaped.

b. Density and Bonus Units: A PUD project shall be permitted an initial number of units equal to the number of lots possible based on the applicable zoning district and the gross property acreage. For each ten (10) acres of contiguous protected open space within the PUD, excluding state regulated wetlands, other areas characterized with hydric soils and areas with slopes of greater than 25 percent, the PUD project shall be eligible for one (1) additional bonus unit

c. Open Space. A PUD project shall have open space totalling no less than fifty (50%) percent of the entire project area. The PUD project required open space is encouraged to be contiguous, and the open space shall have a minimum width of 100 feet and is subject to approval by the Planning Commission. This required open space shall be dedicated to the public or set aside for the common use of the owners and users within the PUD, and shall remain perpetually in an undeveloped state. Dedicated open space does not include parking lots, roads, and public rights-of-way, but may include flood plain areas and wetlands up to a maximum of twenty-five (25%) percent of the required open space and landscape area devoted to perimeter setbacks.

The required open space shall be protected by the developer in a conservation easement, or other legal means acceptable to the township. Said conveyance placed on the property shall specify that the open space is an integral component in the overall development for the use and enjoyment of the public or the residents within the Planned Unit Development.

Such conveyance shall:

1) Provide for the privately owned open-space to be maintained and the provisions of the conservation easement or deed restriction to be enforced by the private property owners.

2) Provide maintenance standards and a maintenance schedule.

3) Grant the Township the right, but not the obligation, to enforce the provisions of the conservation easement or other legal means, if in the Township's opinion such provisions are not adequately enforced by the property owners.

4) Be held by two entities, one being the Hayes Township and the other the landowner's association, land conservancy or other entity found acceptable to the Hayes Township Planning Commission.

d. Height Regulations. The height of all buildings and structures within a PUD project shall not exceed the height limit of the underlying Zoning District.

e. Other Dimensional Regulations. To promote creativity and flexibility in site design, the Planning Commission may, subject to the following limitations, reduce the other dimensional regulations, as required by the underlying Zoning District, including but not limited to minimum lot size, density, and setbacks within the PUD project, upon a finding that the proposed dimensional regulations will not be detrimental to the public health, safety, or welfare of future occupants of the PUD, the surrounding neighborhood, or the Township as a whole.

Any reductions by the Planning Commission shall be limited as follows:

1) Underlying Zoning District Setback requirements shall not be reduced by more than fifty (50%) percent. Perimeter setbacks as specifically required by the PUD regulations may not be reduced.

2) Required parking shall not be reduced by more than sixty (60%) percent of the parking normally required of the proposed use. In no case shall a single-family home, mobile or modular home, or other such detached-single-family dwelling have less than two (2) on-site (off-street) parking spaces. In reducing the required parking, the Planning Commission may require the reservation of a portion of the PUD site for future parking.

Prior to approving a reduction in dimensional regulations, the Planning Commission may require the applicant to demonstrate through bonafide documentation, including but not limited to traffic impact studies, environmental impact studies, market needs assessments, and infrastructure impact studies, that the reduction will not result in significant impacts to the PUD project and PUD occupants, the surrounding area, and the Township as a whole.

4. Pre-application Conference.

a. A pre-application conference shall be held with the Planning Commission or its representative, unless waived by the applicant, for the purpose of determining the eligibility of the proposed PUD application and to review the procedures and standards for PUD approval. The goals of the pre-application conference are to acquaint the Planning Commission, or its representative, with the applicant's proposed development, assist the applicant in understanding new or additional information which the Planning Commission will need to effectively consider the application, confirm that the application and all supporting documentation is ready for a public hearing, and to acquaint the applicant with the Planning Commission's initial, but unofficial reaction to the application. In no case shall any representations made by the Planning Commission, or its representative, at the pre-application conference be construed as an endorsement or approval of the PUD.

b. A request for a pre-application conference shall be made to the Zoning Administrator who shall schedule a date and time for the pre-application conference. As part of the pre-application conference, the applicant shall submit five (5) copies of a conceptual plan which shows the property location, boundaries, significant natural features, vehicular and pedestrian circulation, and land use for the entire site.

5. PUD Application Requirements. An applicant seeking approval of a PUD shall submit a complete application to the Zoning Administrator. The Zoning Administrator shall then forward the application to the Planning Commission for its review under the procedures of this section. The application shall include all of the following:

a. A completed application form, supplied by the Zoning Administrator

b. Payment of a fee as established by resolution of the Township Board.

c. A narrative statement describing:

1) The objectives of the proposed PUD and how they relate to the Intent of the Zoning Ordinance as described in subsection 1), above.

2) The relationship of the proposed PUD to the Hayes Township Master Plan.

3) Phases of development, if any, and the approximate time frame for the start and completion of construction of each phase.

4) Proposed master deed, deed restrictions, covenants or similar legal instruments to be used within the PUD.

5) Anticipated dates for the start and completion of the PUD construction

6) The location, type, and size of areas to be dedicated for common open space.

6. The PUD application shall include all information required by Sections 5.11 and Section 6.02, and the following:

a. Required setbacks of the Zoning Districts.

b. The area (and square footage) percentage of subject property to be covered by buildings.

c. Percentage of the total site devoted to open space and the proposed uses of that open space.

d. Such other information regarding the development area that may be required to determine conformance with this Ordinance.

7. Public Hearing on PUD Request. Notice

See Section 6.02.C

8. Planning Commission Review of PUD. Following the public hearing the Planning Commission shall review the PUD application and shall approve, deny, or approve with conditions the PUD application based on the standards for PUD approval contained in subsection 9. below. The Planning Commission's decision shall be in writing and shall include findings of fact, based on the evidence presented at the public hearing, on each standard.

9. Standards for PUD Approval; Conditions; Waiver of PUD Standards.

a. General Standards. The Planning Commission shall approve, or approve with conditions, a PUD application if the Planning Commission finds that the proposed PUD meets the standards of Section 5.11 and Section 6.02.D and all of the following.

1) The planned unit development shall be consistent with the Hayes Township Master Plan

2) The planned unit development shall be designed, constructed, operated and maintained in a manner harmonious with the character of adjacent property and the surrounding area. Landscaping shall ensure that proposed uses will be adequately buffered from one another and from surrounding public and private property and will be consistent with outdoor pedestrian movement. Vegetation proposed by the developer or required by the Planning Commission shall be maintained in a healthy living condition and such vegetation if dead shall be replaced

3) The planned unit development shall not change the essential character of the surrounding area, unless such change is consistent with the Township's current master plan

4) The planned unit development shall be designed to preserve public vistas and existing important natural, historical, and architectural features of significance within the development.

5) The planned unit development shall be designed so that its pedestrian, non-motorized and automobile circulation systems are safely and conveniently integrated with those of abutting property and any linear trail or park systems intersecting or abutting such development.

6) The planned unit development shall provide that vehicular and pedestrian traffic within the site shall be safe and convenient and that parking layout will not adversely interfere with the flow of traffic within the site or to and from the adjacent streets. Safe and adequate access for emergency vehicles to or within the development and adequate space for turning around at street ends shall be provided.

7) The planned unit development shall not result in any greater storm water runoff to adjacent property after development, than before. The open space shall be provided with ground cover suitable to control erosion, and vegetation which no longer provides erosion control shall be replaced.

8) The design of the planned unit development shall exhibit a reasonably harmonious relationship between the location of buildings on the site relative to buildings on lands in the surrounding area, and there shall be a reasonable architectural and functional compatibility between all structures on the site and structures within the surrounding area. It is not intended that contrasts in architectural design and use of facade materials is to be discouraged, but care shall be taken so that any such contrasts will not be so out of character with existing building designs and facade materials so as to create an adverse effect on the stability and value of the surrounding area.

9) The planned unit development shall be designed such that phases of development are in a logical sequence, so that any one phase will not depend upon a subsequent phase for adequate access, public utility services, and drainage or erosion control.

10) The planned unit development shall provide for underground installation of all utilities.

b. Conditions. The Planning Commission may impose reasonable conditions with the approval of a final site plan, pursuant to Section 8.03 of this Ordinance.

c. Waiver of PUD Standards. The Planning Commission may waive any of the standards for a PUD contained in subsection 9 above where all of the following findings are documented along with the rationale for the decision:

1) No good public purpose will be achieved by requiring conformance with the standards sought by the applicant to be waived.

2) The spirit and intent of the PUD provisions will still be achieved

3) No nuisance will be created.

10. Planned Unit Development Permit. Following final approval of a PUD application, a permit shall be obtained from the Zoning Administrator. The issuance of this permit, however, shall not relieve the applicant from complying with applicable county, state, and federal permit requirements. The failure of the applicant to obtain any required county, state, or federal permit shall render the PUD permit issued under this subsection void

11. Continuing Adherence to Approved PUD Application. Any property owner who fails to develop and maintain an approved PUD according to the approved PUD application and conditions, if any, shall be deemed in violation of the provisions of this Ordinance and shall be subject to the penalties provided in this Ordinance.

12. Recording of Action. The applicant shall record an affidavit acceptable to the Township with the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds that contains the full legal description of the project site, specifies the date of final Township approval, specifies the description or identification number which the Township has assigned to the PUD project, and declares that all improvements will be carried out in accordance with the approved PUD application. If the Planning Commission approves an amendment to the PUD, the applicant shall record an amended affidavit acceptable to the Township that contains all of the information described above, describes the amendment, specifies the date the Planning Commission approved the amendment, and declares that the improvements will be carried out in accordance with the approved PUD, as amended. Finally, all deed restrictions and easements shall be duly filed with the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds and copies of recorded documents filed with the Zoning Administrator.

13. Amendment of an Approved Planned Unit Development. Amendments to an approved PUD shall be permitted only under the following circumstances:

a. The owner of property for which a PUD has been approved shall notify the Zoning Administrator of any desired change to the approved PUD. Minor changes may be approved by the Zoning Administrator upon determining that the proposed revision(s) will not alter the basic design and character of the PUD, nor any specified conditions imposed as part of the original approval. Minor changes shall include the following

1) Reduction of the size of any building and/or sign

2) Movement of buildings and/or signs by no more than ten (10) feet.

3) Landscaping approved in the PUD plan that is replaced by similar landscaping to an equal or greater extent

4) Changes in floor plans that do not exceed five (5%) percent of the total floor area and which do not alter the character of the use or increase the amount of required parking.

5) Internal re-arrangement of a parking lot which does not affect the number of parking spaces or alter access locations or design.

6) Changes related to items (a) through (e) above, required or requested by Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, or other state of federal regulatory agencies in order to conform with other laws or regulations; provided the extent of such changes does not alter the basic design and character of the PUD, nor any specified conditions imposed as part of the original approval

b. All amendments to a PUD approved by the Zoning Administrator shall be in writing. After approval by the Zoning Administrator, the applicant shall prepare a revised development plan showing the approved amendment. The revised development plan shall contain a list of all approved amendments and a place for the Zoning Administrator to sign and date all approved amendments

c. An amendment to an approved PUD that cannot be processed by the Zoning Administrator under subsection 1) above shall be processed in the same manner as the original PUD application.

14. Expiration of Approved PUD, Extension.

a. An approved PUD shall expire one (1) year following final approval by the Planning Commission, unless substantial construction has begun on the PUD project prior to that time or the property owner applies to the Planning Commission for an extension prior to the expiration of the PUD. The Planning Commission may grant one (1) extension of an approved PUD for an additional one (1) year period if it finds:

1) The property owner presents reasonable evidence that the development has encountered unforeseen difficulties beyond the control of the property owner; and

2) The PUD requirements and standards that are reasonably related to the development have not changed.

b. If the PUD approval expires pursuant to subsection 1) above, no work pursuant to the PUD plan may be undertaken on the project until a new PUD approval is obtained from the Planning Commission following the procedures for a new PUD application. In addition, if the PUD approval expires, the property shall again be subject to the zoning classification of the property which existed prior to the PUD approval as if no PUD approval had ever been granted

15. Performance Guarantee.

The Planning Commission may require the applicant to obtain and maintain a performance guarantee in connection with the PUD project pursuant to Section 8.06 of this Ordinance

Section 4. Amendment of Article VII

Article VII of the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

Article VII: Zoning Board of Appeals

Section 7.01 Zoning Board of Appeals Creation and Membership

The Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) shall perform its duties and exercise its powers as provided in the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act 110, of Public Acts of 2006, as amended, and in such a way that the objectives of this Ordinance shall be observed, public safety secured, and justice done. This Board shall consist of five (5) regular members, appointed by the Township Board.

A. The first member shall be a member of the Township Planning Commission for the terms of his/her office.

B. The remaining members must be selected from the electors of the Township residing outside of incorporated cities and villages and shall be representative of the population distribution and of the various interests present in the Township. One (1) member may be a member of the Township Board.

C. An elected officer of the Township shall not serve as chairman. An employee or contractor of the Township Board may not serve as a member or an employee of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

D. The Township Board may appoint not more than two (2) alternate members for the same term as regular members to the Zoning Board of Appeals. An alternate member may be called as specified to serve as a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals in the absence of a regular member if the regular member will be unable to attend one (1) or more meetings. An alternate member may also be called to serve as a member for the purpose of reaching a decision on a case in which the member has abstained for reasons of conflict of interest. The alternate member appointed shall serve in the case until a final decision has been made. The alternate member shall have the same voting rights as a regular member of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Section 7.02 Meetings

Meetings of the Zoning Board of Appeals shall be held at the call of the Chairman and at such other times as such Board may determine or specify in its rules of procedure. All hearings conducted by said ZBA shall be open to the public. The Zoning Board of Appeals shall adopt its own rules of procedure and keep a record of its proceedings showing the vote of each member upon each question, or if absent or failing to vote, indicating said fact; and shall file a record of its proceedings in the office of the Township Clerk, and shall be a public record. The concurring vote of a majority of the members of the Zoning Board of Appeals shall be necessary to reverse any order, requirement, decision, or determination of the Zoning Administrator, or to decide in favor of an applicant any matter upon which they are required to pass under this Ordinance or to effect any variation of this Ordinance.

The Zoning Board of Appeals shall not conduct business unless a majority of the Board of Appeals regular members are present.

Section 7.03 Jurisdiction

A. Except for Planning Commission decisions concerning special use permits and Planned Unit Developments, an appeal concerning the administration of the provisions of this Ordinance may be taken to the Zoning Board of Appeals within the timeframe defined in the general rules and procedures adopted by the Zoning Board of Appeals. If such a timeframe is not specified, appeals shall be filed within thirty (30) days of the decision of the official or body from which the appellant seeks relief

B. The ZBA may hear appeals made by any person who alleges he or she has been aggrieved by a decision of the official or body, except for Zoning Administrator decisions regarding enforcement of this Ordinance.

C. The ZBA may grant variances as provided for in Section 7.07 Variances

D. The ZBA may also interpret the location of Zoning District boundaries and may interpret the provisions of this Ordinance

E. An appeal may be made by any person, firm or corporation, or by any Officer, Department or Board of the Township. The appellant shall file with the Zoning Board of Appeals, on blanks or forms to be furnished by the Zoning Administrator, a notice of appeal specifying the grounds for the appeal

F. The Zoning Administrator shall transmit to the Zoning Board of Appeals all the papers constituting the record upon which the action appealed from was taken. The final decision of such appeal shall be in the form of a resolution either reversing, modifying or affirming, wholly or partly, the decision or determination appealed from. Reasons for the decision must be stated.

G. Any person may appear and testify at the hearing either in person or by duly authorized agent or attorney.

Section 7.04 Exercising Power

In exercising the above powers, the Zoning Board of Appeals may reverse or affirm wholly or partly, or may modify the order, requirement, decision or determination appealed from and may make such order, requirement, decision or determination as ought to be made, and to that end shall have all the powers of the official or body from whom the appeal is taken.

Section 7.05 Application requirements

The applicant shall submit seven (7) copies of a completed application, with associated fee, surveys, plans and data as required under Section 5.11: Site Plan Review, or other information deemed reasonably necessary for making any informed decision on his or her appeal, not less than thirty-one (31) days prior to the date of the hearing.

Section 7.06 Notice Requirements for Zoning Board of Appeals Public Hearings

The notices for all public hearings before the Zoning Board of Appeals concerning appeals, interpretations, and variances shall comply with all of the following applicable provisions:

A. For an appeal or a request for an interpretation, the notice shall comply with all of the following:

1. The content of the notice shall include all of the following information:

a. A description of the nature of the appeal or interpretation request.

b. If the appeal or interpretation request involves a specific parcel, then the notice shall describe the property involved. The notice shall also include a listing of all existing street addresses within the property. Street addresses, however, do not need to be created and listed if no such addresses currently exist within the property. If there are no such street addresses, other means of identification may be used, such as using tax parcel identification numbers or including a map showing the location of the property

c. The time, date, and place the appeal or interpretation request will be considered.

d. The address where the deadline when written comments will be received concerning the appeal or interpretation request.

2. The notice shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation within the Township not less than 15 days before the scheduled public hearing.

3. The notice shall be sent by first-class mail or personal delivery to the person filing the appeal or requesting the interpretation and if the appeal or interpretation request involves a specific parcel, to the owners of the property involved not less than 15 days before the scheduled public hearing.

4. If the appeal or interpretation request involves a specific parcel, then the notice shall also be sent by first-class mail or personal delivery to all persons to whom real property is assessed within 300 feet of the property involved and to the occupants of all structures within 300 feet of the property involved not less than 15 days before the scheduled public hearing, regardless of whether the property or occupant is located in the Township. If the name of the occupant or tenant is not known, the term "occupant" may be used in making notification under this subsection

B. For a variance request, the notice shall comply with all of the following:

1. The content of the notice shall include all of the following information:

a. A description of the nature of the variance request

b. A description of the property on which the requested variance will apply. The notice shall also include a listing of all existing street addresses within the property. Street addresses, however, do not need to be created and listed if no such addresses currently exist within the property. If there are no street addresses, other means of identification may be used, such as using tax parcel identification numbers or including a map showing the location of the property.

c. The time, date, and place the variance request will be considered.

d. The address where and the deadline when written comments will be received concerning the variance request.

2. The notice shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation within the Township not less than 15 days before the scheduled public hearing.

3. The notice shall be sent by first-class mail or personal delivery to the owners of the property seeking the variance not less than 15 days before the scheduled public hearing.

4. Then notice shall also be sent by first-class mail or personal delivery to all persons to whom real property is assessed within 300 feet of the property on which the requested variance will apply and to the occupants of all structures within 300 feet of the property to which the requested variance will apply not less than 15 days before the scheduled public hearing, regardless of whether the property or occupant is located in the Township. If the name of the occupant is not known, the term "occupant" may be used in making notification under this subsection.

C. After providing the notice required under this section and without further notice, except that as required under the Open Meetings Act, the Zoning Board of Appeals may adjourn from time to time a duly called public hearing by passing a motion specifying the time, date, and place of the continued public hearing.

Section 7.07 Variances

The ZBA may grant dimensional variances when the applicant demonstrates in the official record of the hearing that the strict enforcement of this Ordinance would result in practical difficulty. To establish practical difficulty, the applicant must establish all of the following:

A. The need for the requested variance is due to unique circumstances or physical conditions of the property involved that do not apply generally to other properties in the surrounding area and/or zoning district, such as narrowness, shallowness, shape, water, or topography and is not due to the applicant's personal or economic hardship.

B. The need for the requested variance is not the result of action of the property owner or previous property owners (self-created).

C. That strict compliance with regulations governing area, setback, frontage, height, bulk, density or other dimensional requirements will unreasonably prevent the property owner from using the property for a permitted purpose, or will render conformity with those regulations unnecessarily burdensome.

D. Whether granting the requested variance would do substantial justice to the applicant as well as to other property owners in the district, or whether granting a lesser variance than requested would give a substantial relief to the property owner and be more consistent with justice to other property owners.

E. That the requested variance will not cause an adverse impact on surrounding property, property values, or the use and enjoyment of property in the neighborhood or Zoning District.

Section 7.08 Conditions of Approval

The ZBA may impose such conditions or limitations in granting a variance as deemed necessary to protect the character of the area, as provided for in section 8.03 of this Ordinance.

Section 7.09 Expiration of ZBA Approvals

No order of the Zoning Board of Appeals permitting the erection or alteration of a building shall be valid for a period longer than one (1) year, unless a building permit for such erection or alteration is obtained within such period and substantial construction has occurred

Section 7.10 Reapplication

No application for a variance, interpretation, or appeal which has been decided, in whole or in part, by the Zoning Board of Appeals shall be re-submitted for a period of one (1) year from the date of such decision, unless a rehearing is granted pursuant to section 8.04 of this Ordinance.

Section 7.11 Stay

An appeal to the Zoning Board of Appeals and an appeal of a decision by the Zoning Board of Appeals to Circuit Court stays all proceedings of the action appealed from, including the effectiveness of any zoning permit issued, unless the Zoning Administrator certifies to the Zoning Board of Appeals after such appeal has been filed that a stay would cause imminent peril to life or property, in which case the proceedings shall not be stayed, unless ordered stayed by the Zoning Board of Appeals or the Circuit Court.

Section 5. Amendment of Article VIII

Article VIII of the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

Article VIII: Administration and Enforcement of Ordinance

Section 8.01 Zoning Administrator

The provisions of this Ordinance shall be administered and enforced by a Township Zoning Administrator, appointed by the Township Board of Trustees for such term and subject to such conditions and at such rate of compensation as said Board shall determine as reasonable.

The Zoning Administrator shall have the power to grant Zoning Permits and to make inspections of buildings or premises necessary to carry out the duties in the enforcement of this Ordinance. It shall be unlawful for the Zoning Administrator to approve any plans or issue any Permits for the excavation or construction until such plans have been inspected in detail and found to conform to this Ordinance.

The Zoning Administrator shall under no circumstances be permitted to make changes to this Ordinance or to vary the terms of this Ordinance in carrying out the duties of Zoning Administrator.

The Zoning Administrator shall not refuse to issue a Permit when conditions imposed by this Ordinance are complied with by the applicant despite violations of contracts, such as covenants or private agreements that may occur upon the granting of said Permit.

Section 8.02 Zoning Permit

A. No building or structure subject to the provisions of this Ordinance shall hereafter be erected, structurally altered, reconstructed, used, or moved, nor shall any associated excavation or filling of land commence until a Zoning Permit application has been filed with the Township Zoning Administrator and a Zoning Permit has been issued by the Zoning Administrator, except as otherwise permitted for in this Ordinance. No Zoning Permit shall be required for any lawful use of any building or structure in existence as of the adoption date of this Ordinance. No Zoning permit shall be required for an accessory structure without a permanent foundation and which is less than two hundred (200) square feet in size. All structures shall comply with applicable district setback requirements regardless of whether a zoning permit is required.

B. The application shall be signed by the owner of the premises or his agent and shall certify that all provisions of this Ordinance and other applicable laws and requirements are to be complied with. Any application requiring approval from the Planning Commission must be submitted not less than thirty-one (31) days prior to a scheduled meeting for consideration at that Planning Commission meeting. The application shall be accompanied by:

1. A site plan, if required, or a sketch in duplicate, in a scale sufficient to clearly detail as determined by the Zoning Administrator, the location and dimensions of the premises including the boundary lines of all parcels of land under separate ownership contained therein; the size, dimensions, location on the premises, and height of all buildings, structures or other impervious surfaces in existence, to be erected and/or altered; the width and alignment of all abutting streets, highways, alleys, utility locations, easements and public open spaces; the front yard dimensions of the nearest building on both sides of the proposed building or structure; the location and dimensions of sewage disposal facilities both on adjoining land or lots and those to be erected on the lot under consideration; and the location of all wells on adjoining lands or lots and those to be erected on the lot under consideration.

2. Properties under two (2) acres in size may be required to submit a legal survey, sealed by a professional surveyor (not a mortgage survey). The Zoning Administrator shall have the authority to require such a survey in the cases where there may be encroachment on the setbacks by the proposed structures or when the exact locations of lot lines are not known.

3. Copies of permits or waivers of permits by other agencies as may be required by statute and/or by the Zoning Administrator of this Ordinance.

4. Such other information as may be required to determine compliance with the Ordinance.

C. A Zoning Permit may not be issued until all other necessary permits required by statute have been obtained or waived with exception of those permits issued by the Charlevoix County Building Department.

D. The location of the property boundaries and all structures shall be staked on the ground for Zoning Administrator approval prior to the issuance of the Zoning Permit.

E. Any Zoning Permit under which substantial construction has not started or if no substantial construction has been done in the furtherance of the zoning permit, the zoning permit shall expire after twelve (12) months from date of issuance.

F. The Zoning Administrator shall have the power to revoke or cancel any Zoning Permit in case of failure or neglect to comply with the provisions of the Ordinance, all other necessary permits have not been obtained or in the case of a false statement or misrepresentation made in the application. The owner shall be notified of such revocation in writing.

G. No Zoning Permit shall be valid until the required fees have been paid. Except for an accessory building or structure less than two hundred (200) square feet in size (which does not require a zoning permit pursuant to Section 8.02.A of this Ordinance), no separate fee shall be required for accessory buildings or structures when part of the application for the principal building or structure. Applications and petitions filed pursuant to the provisions of this Ordinance shall be accompanied by the filing fees as specified by the Township Board of Trustees.

Section 8.03 Conditions

The Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals may attach reasonable conditions on discretionary zoning decisions under their jurisdiction. These conditions may include those necessary to insure that public services and facilities affected by a proposed land use or activity will be capable of accommodating increased service and facility loads caused by the land use or activity, to protect the natural environment and conserve natural resources and energy, to insure compatibility with adjacent uses of land, and to promote the use of land in a socially and economically desirable manner. Any conditions imposed, however, shall meet all of the following requirements:

A. Be designed to protect natural resources, the health, safety, welfare, as well as the social and economic well being of those who will use the land under consideration, residents and landowners immediately adjacent to the proposed land use, and the community as a whole

B. Be related to the valid exercise of the police power, and purposes which are affected by the proposed use or activity

C. Be necessary to meet the intent and purpose of the Zoning Ordinance, be related to the standards established in the Ordinance for the land use or activity under consideration, and be necessary to insure compliance with those standards

Section 8.04 Rehearing Process

A. Final Decisions: Except as provided in this section, a decision of the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals shall be final. The Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals may grant a rehearing under exceptional circumstances for any decision made by it. Exceptional circumstances shall mean any of the following:

1. The applicant who brought the matter before the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals made misrepresentations concerning a material issue, which was relied upon by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals in reaching its decision.

2. There has been a material change in circumstances regarding the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals' findings of fact, which occurred after the public hearing.

FEB

3. The Township Attorney, by written opinion, states that in the Attorney's professional opinion the decision made by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals or the procedure used in the matter was clearly erroneous.

B. Rehearing Procedure: A rehearing may be requested by the applicant or by the Zoning Administrator, or a rehearing may be granted by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals on its own motion.

1. A request for a rehearing which is made by an applicant must be made within twenty-one (21) days from the date of approval of the Planning Commission's or Zoning Board of Appeals' minutes regarding the decision for which the rehearing is being requested.
2. A request for a rehearing made by the Zoning Administrator or a rehearing granted by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals on its own motion may be granted at any time as long as the applicant has not been prejudiced by any delay.
3. Whenever the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals considers granting a rehearing, it shall provide written notice to the applicant that a rehearing will be considered. The notice may be served upon the applicant by first class mail at the applicants' last known address, or may be served personally on the applicant. The notice must be served at least nine (9) days before the time set for the hearing if served by mail, or at least seven (7) days before the time set for the hearing if served by personal service. Service by mail shall be complete upon mailing. In addition to serving the above notice on the applicant, all other notice requirements for the type of decision being heard shall be completed before the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals holds a meeting at which it considers whether to grant a rehearing.
4. If the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals grants a rehearing, then the rehearing shall not be held until all applicable notice requirements have been satisfied.

Section 8.05 Fees

A. To assist in defraying the costs of investigating, reviewing and administering zoning applications, appeals, rezoning requests from individual property owners, and other types of decisions which result in extra costs to the Township, the Township Board may from time to time adopt by resolution a fee schedule establishing basic zoning fees, such as those fees related to the following:

1. Zoning permits.
2. Special land use permits.
3. Ordinance interpretations by the Zoning Board of Appeals, appeals of administrative interpretation or request for interpretation. Appeals and requests for interpretation initiated by the Township Board, the Planning Commission, or the Zoning Administrator shall not be subject to a zoning fee.
4. Classification of unlisted property uses.
5. Requests to change a non-conforming use to another non-conforming use.
6. Requests for variances from the Zoning Board of Appeals.
7. Requests for rezoning of property by individual property owners or amendments to the Zoning Ordinance text. Rezoning of property or text amendments initiated by the Township Board, the Planning Commission, or the Zoning Administrator shall not be subject to a zoning fee.
8. Site plan reviews.
9. Requests for a planned unit development (PUD)
10. Any other discretionary decisions by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals.

The amount of these zoning fees shall cover the costs associated with the review of the application or appeal, including but not limited to the costs associated with conducting public hearings, publishing notices in the newspaper, sending required notices to property owners, postage, photocopying, mileage, time spent by zoning staff, and time spent by the members of the Planning Commission and/or Zoning Board of Appeals. The basic zoning fees shall be paid before any application required under this Ordinance is processed. The basic zoning fees are non-refundable, even when an application or appeal is withdrawn by the applicant.

B. If the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals determines that the basic zoning fees will not cover the actual costs of the application review or appeal, or if the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals determines that review of the application and/or participation in the review process or appeal by qualified professional planners, engineers, attorneys, or other professionals is necessary or advisable, then the applicant shall deposit with the Township Treasurer such additional zoning fees in an amount determined by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals equal to the estimated additional costs. The additional zoning fees shall be held in escrow in the applicant's name and shall be used solely to pay these additional costs. If the amount held in escrow becomes less than ten (10%) percent of the initial escrow deposit or less than ten (10%) percent of the latest additional escrow deposit and review of the application or decision on the appeal is not completed, then the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals may require the applicant to deposit additional fees into escrow in an amount determined by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals to be equal to the estimated costs to complete the review or decide the appeal. Failure of the applicant to make any escrow deposit required under this Ordinance shall be deemed to make the application incomplete or the appeal procedurally defective thereby justifying the denial of the application or the dismissal of the appeal. Any unexpended funds held in escrow shall be returned to the applicant following final action on the application or the final decision on the appeal. Any actual costs incurred by the Township in excess of the amount held in escrow shall be billed to the applicant and shall be paid by the applicant prior to the issuance of any permit or the release of a final decision on an appeal.

Section 8.06 Performance Guarantee

In connection with the construction of improvements through site plan approval, special land use approval, or a PUD project, the Planning Commission may require the applicant to furnish the Township with a performance guarantee in the form of a cash deposit, certified check, irrevocable bank letter of credit, or surety bond acceptable to the Township in an amount equal to the estimated costs associated with the construction of public and site improvements. Public improvements mean by way of example and not limitation roads, parking lots, and water and sewer systems which are located within the development or which the applicant has agreed to construct even though located outside the development. Site improvements mean landscaping, buffering, and the completion of conditions imposed by the Planning Commission which are located within the development. For purposes of this section, the costs covered by the performance guarantee shall include all of the following: (1) the purchase, construction, and/or installation of the improvements, (2) architectural and engineering design and testing fees and related professional costs, and (3) an amount for contingencies consistent with generally accepted engineering and/or planning practice. The performance guarantee shall be deposited with the Township Clerk at or before the time the Township issues the permit authorizing the development, or if the development has been approved in phases, then the performance guarantee shall be deposited with the Township Clerk prior to the commencement of construction of a new phase. The performance guarantee shall ensure completion of the public and site improvements in accordance with the plans approved by the Planning Commission. Any cash deposit or certified funds shall be refunded for the development or each phase of a multi-phase development in the following manner:

A. One-third of the cash deposit after completion of one-third (monetary value), of the public and site improvements;

B. Two-thirds of the cash deposit after completion of two-thirds of the public and site improvements, and

C. The balance at the completion of the public and site improvements.

Any irrevocable bank letter of credit or surety bond shall be returned to the applicant upon completion of the public improvements. If a development is to be completed in phases, then the Planning Commission may require the applicant to furnish a performance guarantee as provided in this section for each phase of the development. If an applicant has contracted with a third-party to construct the public and site improvements and the third-party has provided a bond meeting the requirements described above and the bond also names the Township as a third-party beneficiary of the bond, then the Planning Commission may accept that bond as meeting all or a portion of the performance guarantee required by this section.

Section 8.07 Violations and Penalties

Section 8.07.1 Nuisance per se

Any land, dwellings, buildings or structures, including tents and trailer coaches, used, erected, altered, razed or converted in violation of this Ordinance or in violation of any regulations, conditions, permits or other rights granted, adopted or issued pursuant to this Ordinance are hereby declared to be a nuisance per se.

Section 8.07.2 Inspection

The Zoning Administrator shall have the duty to investigate each alleged violation and shall also have the right to inspect any property for which a zoning permit has been issued to ensure compliance with the plans and conditions of the zoning permit or approved site plan.

Section 8.07.3 Penalties

A. Any person, partnership, limited liability company, corporation, association or other entity who creates or maintains a nuisance per se or who violates or fails to comply with this Ordinance or any permit issued pursuant to this Ordinance shall be responsible for a municipal civil infraction and shall be subject to a fine of not more than Five Hundred and 00/100 ($500.00) Dollars. Every day that such violation continues may constitute a separate and distinct offense under the provisions of this Ordinance. Nothing in this section shall exempt the offender from compliance with provisions of this Ordinance or prohibit the Township from seeking additional and/or equitable relief from any court to ensure compliance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

B. The Township Zoning Administrator is hereby designated as the authorized Township official to issue municipal civil infraction citations directing alleged violators of this Ordinance to appear in court. The Township Board may also designate from time to time other officials to issue municipal infraction citations on behalf of the Township in connection with alleged violations of this Ordinance.

C. In addition to or in lieu of enforcing this Ordinance, as a municipal civil infraction, the Township may initiate proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction to abate, eliminate, or enjoin the nuisance per se or any other violation of this Ordinance.

Section 8.07.4 Stop Work Order

If construction or land uses are being undertaken contrary to a zoning permit, the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act or this Ordinance, the Zoning Administrator or Deputy of the Zoning Administrator or any other official authorized by the Township Board is authorized to post a stop work order on the property at a suitable location, such as at an entrance, in order to prevent the work or activity from proceeding in violation of the Ordinance.

A person shall not continue, or cause or allow to be continued, construction or uses in a violation of a stop work order, except with permission of the enforcing agency to abate a dangerous condition or remove the violation, or except by court order. If an order to stop work is not obeyed, the enforcing agency may apply to the circuit court for an order enjoining the violation of the stop work order. This remedy is in addition to, and not in limitation of, any other remedy provided by law or ordinance, and does not prevent criminal or civil prosecution for failure to obey the order.

Section 8.08 Conflicting Regulations

In the interpretation of this Ordinance, this Ordinance shall control unless there exists a conflict with any other Township Ordinances, in which case the more stringent regulations will rule.

Section 6. Amendment to add Article IX

The Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance is hereby amended to add Article IX to read in its entirety as follows:

Article IX: Adoption and Amendments

Section 9.01 Amendment to this Ordinance

A. The Township Board is authorized and empowered to cause this Ordinance to be amended, supplemented, or changed, pursuant to the authority and according to the procedures set forth in the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act, Act 110 of the Public Acts of 2006, as amended.

1. The regulations and provisions stated in the text of this Ordinance and the boundaries of Zoning Districts shown on the Hayes Township Zoning Map may be amended, supplemented or changed by action of the Township Board following a recommendation from the Township Planning Commission.
2. Proposals for amendments, supplements or changes may be initiated by the Township Board on its own motion, by the Township Planning Commission or by petition of one (1) or more owners of property to be affected by the proposed amendment.
3. The procedure to be followed for initiating and processing an amendment shall be as follows:

a. Each petition by one (1) or more persons for an amendment shall be submitted by application to the Zoning Administrator on a standard form provided and shall be accompanied by the fee as prescribed by the Township Board. No part of such fee shall be returnable to a petitioner if the public hearing is held.

b. The Zoning Administrator shall notify, in writing, the Township Clerk and Chair of the Planning Commission at or before the time he or she transmits the amendment request to the Planning Commission.

c. The Planning Commission shall consider each proposal for amendment on particular factors related to the individual proposal and in terms of the likely effect on the community's physical development. The Planning Commission may recommend any additions or modifications to the original proposal.

d. Before ruling on any proposal the Planning Commission shall conduct at least one (1) public hearing, notice of which shall be provided as specified in Section 9.02 of this Ordinance.

e. The Planning Commission shall review and apply the following standards and factors in the consideration of any rezoning request.

1) Is the proposed rezoning consistent with the Hayes Township Master Plan?

2) Is the proposed rezoning reasonably consistent with surrounding uses?

3) Will there be an adverse physical impact on surrounding properties?

4) Will there be an adverse effect on property values in the adjacent area?

5) Have there been changes in land use or other conditions in the immediate area or in the community in general which justify rezoning?

6) Will rezoning create a deterrent to the improvement or development of adjacent property in accord with existing regulations?

7) Will rezoning grant a special privilege to an individual property owner when contrasted with other property owners in the area or the general public (i.e. will rezoning result in spot zoning)?

8) Are there substantial reasons why the property cannot be used in accordance with its present zoning classifications?

9) Is the rezoning in conflict with the planned use for the property as reflected in the Land Use Plan?

10) Is the site served by adequate public facilities or is the petitioner able to provide them?

11) Are there sites nearby already properly zoned that can be used for the intended purposes?

12) Are other local remedies available?

f. Following the public hearing the Planning Commission shall submit the proposed amendment including any Zoning Map changes to the County Planning Commission. If the recommendation of the County Planning Commission has not been received within thirty (30) days after the receipt of the Ordinance by the County, it shall be conclusively presumed that the County has waived its right for review.

g. The Planning Commission shall submit a final report/recommendation to the Township Board along with a summary of the comments received at the public hearing.

h. The Township Board may hold additional public hearings if they decide it is necessary. Notice of such hearing shall be provided in accordance with Section 9.02 of this Ordinance.

i. Once adopted by the Township Board, amendments to this Ordinance shall be filed with the Township Clerk, and one (1) notice of adoption shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the Township within fifteen (15) days after adoption. Any amendments to this Ordinance shall take effect eight (8) days after publication or at a later date as may be specified by the Township Board at the time of adoption.

j. No application for a rezoning which has been denied by the Township shall be resubmitted for a period of one (1) year from the date of the last denial, except on grounds of newly discovered evidence or proof of changed conditions found valid upon inspection by the Township Planning Commission.

Section 9.02 Public Hearing Notice Requirements for Zoning Ordinance Amendments

Two area businesses going green together

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

> MAINTENANCE DIRECTOR, SITE PLANNING DEVELOPMENT INC.

Going green.

It is a phrase heard often these days, perhaps too often to know or understand what it really means. For two local businesses however — Harbor Industries, Inc. and Site Planning Development, Inc. — it means partnerships and making plans.

Mike Shaw, director of continuous improvement at Harbor Industries, said the idea of going green fits right in with the company's vision of being a "preeminent leader" in the industry and community. In the spring of 2006 Harbor acted on its environmentally conscious stance by forming a "Green Team," an initiative to design, manufacture and deliver sustainable business practices. Using ideas such as substituting non-biodegradable materials in products with something less damaging to the environment, the Green Team has really taken off.

Shaw said the partnership with Site Planning was initiated last spring when he approached Corey Ostrum, maintenance director at Site Planning, to learn how the landscaping firm could assist with Harbor's efforts.

"We had been working with Site Planning for a number of years, and I asked what they could do to help with our efforts in the area of lawn maintenance," Shaw said.

Ostrum said the vision of Site Planning, as developed by owner John Campbell, is to offer everything a client needs, from design to consulting to building, for landscape and architectural needs. Building new homes, remodeling or creating and maintaining landscape and outdoor spaces is the firm's specialty, and more and more the idea of sustainability began to creep into those efforts.

"A big thing for us right now with the economy down the way it is, there is even more emphasis on going green. When the economy makes a turn around we believe there will be a certain requirement on the contractor to make efforts to protect our natural resources, like water," Ostrum said, noting Site Planning is making the effort now to be "the head of the pack" in the realm of green.

Shaw noted the same emphasis in the manufacturing industry, and Harbor also desires to gain headway early in the race. The two companies share another trait: Both offer "whole package" services covering everything their customers may need — Harbor offers design, engineering, manufacturing and installation of point-of-purchase displays while Site Planning offers "whatever needs may arise" in building, remodeling or landscape architecture. That, combined with their shared interest in environmental protection, made the partnership an easy venture.

"Without a doubt we want to give back to the community," Ostrum said in reference to Site Planning's efforts to be more environmentally friendly. "This is also another way to separate ourselves. We will work with you (on green efforts) because we are concerned about you and the community's future."

Shaw said utilizing a local partnership is also important.

"We like to keep our business local and Site Planning is local and advanced in a lot of ways," he said.

Fertilization was the first major focus for the partnership, and Shaw said following his initial meetings with Ostrum, research began to find the most sustainable fertilization program. Ostrum said low-phosphorous, combination organic fertilizer was found to be the best choice, and the new fertilization template was put to use on Harbor lawns in both Charlevoix and Grand Haven.

Harbor Industries, Site Planning share environmental concerns

Water consumption is another major concern, and Site Planning has taken the steps to pilot a system new to northern Michigan that has been successful in Grand Haven: Shaw said technology that utilizes satellite information can offer controlled irrigation that utilizes up to 50 percent less water than what was previously used in Charlevoix.

"Site Planning may not be the lowest priced (service) but they are advanced, offer quality service, and have the resources and advancement to be able to pilot this type of technology," Shaw said.

Water consumption is a red flag in terms of green efforts, Shaw noted, because of the "surprising" amount of water used on irrigation. Last season, he said, 3.5 million gallons of water were used at the Charlevoix location. The goal is to cut that amount by 50 percent using the new technology, a feat already achieved in Grand Haven.

Harbor's Green Team Initiative, which has been meeting regularly for two years, has accumulated a number of green accomplishments:

The established recycling program has diverted 733,000 pounds of plastics, corrugated metal, plastic film and vinyl from the land fill to the recycling station;

The conversion of in-house lighting in Charlevoix from metal halide high bay lights to fluorescent fixtures resulting in an energy savings of 973,000 kilowatt hours of electricity; Installation of a new control dust collection system in Charlevoix that resulted in an energy savings of 905,500 kilowatt hours of electricity; Installation of water filtration systems in Charlevoix and Grand Haven and distribution of water bottles to all employees to reduce waste.

Shaw said "green" bulletin boards have been installed at both facilities to offer news and information about green concepts, and employees can post questions the company will answer in newsletters. Harbor's Green Team is also "continually researching alternate materials for use in our products that have less impact on our environment," Shaw stated.

Both Ostrum and Shaw are excited about the partnership between their companies, and both hope to develop similar collaborations with other local entities concerned about environmental issues. Both site Planning and Harbor Industries are working towards Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) certifications and are working together to achieve their goals. Site Planning used their expertise to help with outdoor concerns such as storm water run off, environmentally-friendly equipment use, planting of native species and the use of shade trees to cool the indoor environment, the clean air produced by turf areas, pest control measures, landscape waste solutions, fertilizer use, irrigation management and concerns with snow removal chemicals.

"In this day and age where the nation is becoming more aware of protecting our natural resources, Site Planning plans on being on the cutting edge of protecting the environment in an industry that is often portrayed as harmful to the environment," Ostrum stated.

Conference show-down for Lady Rayders

Senior Murphy Gillespie is one of myriad scoring threats for the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team, which is scheduled to open the Class C district today, Wednesday, at Traverse City St. Francis.

NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS EDITOR

Another showdown. And this time, there is no tomorrow.

The Charlevoix and East Jordan girls' basketball teams find themselves in the same Class C district at Traverse City St. Francis, and the Rayders are scheduled to play today, Wednesday, against either East Jordan or Mancelona.

The Red Devils, 16-4, were scheduled to play Mancelona, 1-19, in the district opener on Monday, with the Rayders, 17-2, awaiting the winner. Tonight's game is scheduled to begin at 7:45 p.m. Tonight's winner moves on to the championship game at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 22, at St. Francis against Maple City Glen Lake, Suttons Bay, or the host Gladiators.

The Rayders, who wrapped up the regular season last week with a 68-27 non-league whupping of Gaylord, have split their two games with East Jordan, winning 47-31 on Dec. 12, then falling, 39-37, at home on Jan. 17. It was Charlevoix's only Lake Michigan Conference loss of the season. The Rayders' only other loss, league or not, came to Petoskey, which finished the regular season 16-4.

"East Jordan played a lot better that second game, especially defensively," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said.

East Jordan followed that initial loss with one to Kalkaska, but after that has won 11 straight games and was 15-4 with one game left in the regular season."

"After we started out 2-3, we found our identity," East Jordan coach Sean Ferguson said. "We decided to take care of ourselves first and hope that everything would fall into place, and it has. We're playing very, very unselfishly right now, and everyone is playing to their strengths."

One of the main strengths for East Jordan is its inside-outside offense around 5-foot-11 senior Katherine Rowley, with the perimeter threats of Meghan Thomas, Cassie Crick and Andi Chew.

The Rayders have trademark depth, and it's not uncommon for every player in the book to end up in the scoring column.

"When everyone gets involved offensively, we do really well," said Erskine, who guided the Rayders to their fourth straight Lake Michigan Conference title in his first season as coach.

Charlevoix's leading scorers on the year are posts Tammy Potter and Murphy Gillespie, guard Desi Faust and forward Murphy Gillespie, all seniors. But it's not unheard of for junior forwards KC McCary and Meridith Rich to come off the bench and hit double figures, usually creating offense from their defense. Which is the m.o. that has worked for the Rayders for years.

"We play our best when the defense gets the other team to make mistakes they usually wouldn't," Erskine said.

Erskine is no stranger to the postseason, having been on the bench as an assistant when Charlevoix's boys' and girls' teams played in state championship games.

The winner of the St. Francis district advances to the Gaylord regional, where it will play a regional semifinal game on Tuesday, Feb. 26, against the winner of the Beaverton district. Winners from district tournaments at Harbor Springs and Kingsley will meet in the other regional semifinal on Feb. 26, with the championship slated for Thursday, Feb. 28.

Becca Madison and Brooke Whittaker scored 10 points each to lead the Rayders by Gaylord last week, while Desi Faust added nine, Olivia Catt had eight points and eight rebounds, KC McCary added eight points and six rebounds, Meridith Rich had nine rebounds and five assists, and Murphy Gillespie added seven boards.

Four Rayder wrestlers advance

Charlevoix's Trevor Cole (from left), Mat Golovich, Zeke Daman and Greg Bishaw medaled Saturday at the Division IV district tournament in Munising. The quartet will wrestle at the regional tournament on Saturday, Feb. 24, at Rogers City.

Four Charlevoix wrestlers placed in the top four in their respective weight classes Saturday at the Division IV Individual District Tournament at Munising High School.

Those four — Greg Bishaw, Zeke Daman, Mat Golovich and Trevor Cole — advance to the Individual Regional at Rogers City on Saturday, Feb. 23.

Golovich, 130 pounds, and Daman, 119, each placed third, while Bishaw, 103, and Cole, heavyweight, were fourth. Nobel and Robinson each placed fourth at 152 and 189 pounds, respectively.

Daman, a junior, opened with a pin in 1 minute, 15 seconds of Bill Krehbiel of Manistique then lost, 10-5, to Josh Duncan of Munising. Daman then defeated Keegan Urban of Rogers City, 8-1, and won the third-place match with a 6-3 decision over Dillon Carr of Iron Mountain.

Golovich, also a junior, pinned Norway's Josh Bozzo in 1:11 in his opening match, then fell to Jordna Paulson of Newberry. In the wrestlebacks, Golovich pinned Alan Honeycutt of St. Ignace in 53 seconds, then defeated Nick Schiavo of Iron Mountain, 12-5, in the third-place match.

Bishaw, a freshman, opened with a 10-7 win over Tom McDade of Onaway, then lost to Shawn Horn of St. Ignace to place fourth.

Cole, a senior, opened with a pin in 46 seconds of Andrew Porter of Gwinn, then fell to Nick Wollum of Iron Mountain. In the wrestlebacks, Cole pinned Josh Enos of Onaway in 1:43, then lost to Dylan Tulgetske of Rudyard in the third-place match.

"Hard work of all the wrestlers, especially outgoing Seniors Clint Longley, and Nate Tripplehorn, Tony Munkmarun and Jacob Roach also gave it their best shot," coach Greg Golovich said.

Coach happy with Rayder performance

COURTESY PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW

Imagine that. One winner, one loser, and two happy coaches.

"I'm just glad to get out of here with a win," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said after the Rayders' boys' basketball team beat East Jordan, 73-70, on Friday.

Charlevoix clinched at least a share of its second straight Lake Michigan Conference title. The Rayders are 16-2 overall, 12-1 in the league, one game ahead of Traverse City St. Francis with one conference contest left for both.

"As ugly as our game was against Boyne City to come back and play well against a team like Charlevoix, we're pretty upbeat right now," East Jordan coach Darrin Weber said.

Charlevoix never trailed after the first quarter, but the Rayders couldn't pull away, either. Adam Danell hit two 3-pointers in the final 1 minute, 20 seconds, the second banking in to cut Charlevoix's lead to 72-67 with 10.5 seconds to go. Justin Friske made a free throw for the Rayders at the other end to make it 73-67, then Scott Hansen put down a bomb at the buzzer for the final margin.

"If there was a four-point shot, we would have lost," Haske said, admiring the East Jordan senior's range.

With starting center James Brown in foul trouble, East Jordan juniors Darryl Bingham and Beau Fuller both contributed off the bench, scoring nine and 10 points, respectively.

Charlevoix had some answers of its own.

"Corey (Gotshall), Nate, Austin (Wilhelm) and Justin were all outstanding," Haske said. "The interior passing, with Justin and Corey, got us some good looks against the zone. It was nice to see Nate get out of his slump."

LaBlance led all scorers with 22 points. Gotshall had 20, and Friske and Wilhelm 10 apiece.

Danell scored 17 for East Jordan, while Scott Hansen scored 10 and Michael Hines 8. Danell's final 3-pointer gave him 103 for his career, setting the school record, held by Parke Bluhm.

The Rayders were helped by quantity, if not quality, at the line, making 21-of-39 free throws. East Jordan was 9-of-18. Charlevoix shot 41 percent from the field, 24-for-59, and East Jordan 51 percent, 28-of-55.

The Red Devils are 11-7, 7-6 and tied with Boyne City for third place in the league.

Board of Education: Two step down, two step up

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Just as two members of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education opted not to run for reelection, two members of the community filed for the empty seats.

Judith Ivan and Valerie Snyder were the only two people to file by the Feb. 13 deadline to fill the seats which will be left by five-year board member Diane Kilkenny and 20-year board member Larry Levengood when they end their respective terms this June.

"I'm not going in with a specific agenda," said Snyder. "I'm running, really, just to be involved."

She added, "I always thought I would be doing something like this as my kids went through school, and this is probably a little sooner than I planned ... but I think the timing is good."

The 38-year-old attorney and mother of two has previously served as a county commissioner, city council and city planning commission member.

Snyder

"This seems a natural fit for me right now. My kids are in elementary school and hopefully I will stay on the board while they're in school," she said.

Snyder said her experience on government boards will make her a better servant of the school district.

"I understand how boards work and some of the hoops you have to jump through to get things done," she said. "I think people should give back to the community in some way and this, I feel, is a way I can do that."

Snyder is a past member of both Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Ivan

Outgoing board member Kilkenny responded with a written statement to questions via e-mail.

"The experience has been extremely rewarding, and even though it is always sad to end something like this, my work requirements have escalated, and I can no longer devote the time to the school district that it deserves," she stated. "Without question, my association with students through school assemblies, presentations to the board, graduation ceremonies, and sporting events has been a rewarding experience and one that I will always treasure."

Kilkenny further stated, "Additionally, the professional contact with so many intelligent civic minded community leaders on the board, and in the community just serves as a reminder of the unique and special population that makes Charlevoix so wonderful."

Happy with what she sees as a high quality of education despite the constant decreases, stagnation and proration of per pupil funding by the state, Kilkenny is dismayed the old administration building and funding issues have yet to be resolved.

But, she added, "This community has so many willing and able citizens looking for the opportunity to serve, surely those problems will soon be overcome."

School board candidate Ivan decided to run after decades as a school teacher.

"Several citizens asked me and I have a history in education," she said. "I feel I have some experience that would be useful to the school board in these very difficult times."

Ivan added, "I just want to help with tough decisions and I will try to serve the board ... as well as those have in the past."

The 54-year-old wife and mother of two is a librarian and assistant adult services worker at the Charlevoix Public Library and has lived in Charlevoix for 23 years full-time and was a summer resident for all her years.

Ivan worked for Pellston schools for nearly 20 years directing 29 plays in 17 years as well as serving on the school improvement committee for 10 years and she was a sponsor for the National Honor Society for 10 years.

Outgoing board member Levengood said there really is no specific reason he decided not to run.

"I've been there 20 years and thought it was time for a change," he said. "Maybe it's time I find something else to do."

He added, "It's been good. It's kind of had its ups and downs and challenges and frustrations, but it has been a good experience."

Levengood's advice to the incoming board members, "Fight for what you believe in, fight for what's best for the community and kids. Take on challenges and do the best you can."

Levengood, who said things have changed much over the last two decades, would like to see more local control restored to individual school districts.

"Thanks for the opportunity to serve," he said. "It's been really a pleasure working with them (students and staff) over the years and, who knows, maybe I'll be back in some capacity."

Gravel mine slated for another rocky hearing

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Heralded by some, hated by many, the man of the mine is at it again.

For the second time in three years Wayne Wynkoop is seeking permission from the Norwood Township Planning Commission to operate his limestone gravel operation.

"Anyone who is concerned with the makeup of the Village of Norwood ... or really anyone in Norwood Township that has any interest in land rights, property development, allowed uses or pretty much anything that has to do with zoning ... should attend," said planning commission secretary Denny Way. "I think we'll start with statements from the applicant as well as statements from the opposing group's attorney."

He added, "And then we'll ask for input from any group opposed to the application and we ask for input from anyone in favor of the application."

The public hearing on the mine issue is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 27 at the Charlevoix Public Library in the community room.

The general consensus of letters from nearly a dozen concerned citizens to the planning commission so far is that allowing operation of the mine is a poor idea.

"The problem that I have with this request and the reason that I am opposed is that a limestone quarry is not a permitted use. To try and say this is a sand and gravel operation is a total misrepresentation of the facts," stated John Laney in a letter to Way. "I would suggest that rather than continue with this misrepresentation that the township be allowed to vote on whether limestone quarrying is an allowed special use."

He further stated, "Regardless of which way the vote goes there would be clarity on the will of the majority of the people in Norwood township."

Norwood resident Yasmin Richmond is worried about health problems, noise, improper use of agricultural land and traffic hazards becoming a reality if the mine is allowed to operate.

"Neither has the issue of conflict of interest disappeared just because he has stepped down as Supervisor," she stated in a letter to Way. "All the concerns voiced during prior hearings regarding the inappropriate steps he took in order to curry favor with the board members are still 'in effect'."

Richmond further stated, "Unless the board members are different than those who were there when he was Supervisor, these concerns and perceptions will continue to persist. I urge you and the membership of the Board to put side personal and self-concerns and to do what is right

Municipalities collaborate for 'smart' growth

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

At an organizational meeting last week, individuals representing six municipalities gathered to discuss collaborative growth planning. The effort received funding support – a $5,000 grant – from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Above, Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oale Glass accepts the check from Maureen Radke from the Foundation while (from left) Oianna Gully of the Charlevoix Planning Commission, Joe VanderMeulen, Land Information Access Association executive director, Norwood Township Supervisor Tim Boyko and Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel stand by.

Branching off work completed two years ago by a group of about 30 local government representatives, municipalities gathered last week in an organizational meeting to spark further discussion regarding cooperative planning efforts.

Hoping to "foster smart growth land use policies in the Charlevoix community," Joe VanderMeulen, executive director of the Land Information Access Association, joined representatives from Hayes, Marion, Norwood and Charlevoix townships, the City of Charlevoix and the county — Eveline Township is also involved in the endeavor but could not attend last week's gathering due to a township meeting — to discuss ways to work together.

"We want to start making some headway on working cooperatively," VanderMeulen said.

While local efforts began two years ago when municipalities developed a structured report, the Charlevoix Area Multi-Jurisdictional Comprehensive Smart Growth Land Use Initiative, VanderMeulen's agency, referred to as LIAA, did not become involved until a later request was made for funding and services. The agency works cooperatively with municipalities through the Partnerships for Change program, which seeks to support multi-jurisdictional efforts to develop and adopt local land use polities. It encourages the preservation of cultural and natural resources as well as urban redevelopment, and discourages inefficient, low-density development.

VanderMeulen noted success stories from the 13 other communities that have partnered with Partnerships for Change, which include Harbor Springs, Howell, Newaygo and others. He said in regard to the Charlevoix community, much of the "ground work" was laid by the previous efforts but now those involved need to act on the information gathered.

"These are all excellent principles (established) and now I challenge you as a community to continue down this difficult road that can mean these come true," he said referring to the guiding principles noted as prior ventures in the earlier report:

- Make environmental protection No. 1
- Preserve visual character and beauty
- Insure that economic development is appropriate for this place
- Maintain the unique "small-town character"
- Cooperate in the delivery and use of services
- Provide a diverse housing stock
- Improve traffic flow
- Maintain a Vibrant Core - Downtown Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Planning Commission secretary Dianna Gully noted each of the principles are, to some degree, important to each municipality, but the "level of interest may be different" for various entities. Thus discussion of what is important to each and to what degree was sparked.

"The challenge now is to be able to be on the same page in terms of these topics and goals," VanderMeulen said.

Discussion ranged from desire to collaborate on alternative energy laws — "I think we should talk about a multi-jurisdictional plan for things like wind energy," said Norwood Township Supervisor Tim Boyko — to plans for potential authority creations for things like recreation or fire safety — Charlevoix Township Supervisor Dale Glass noted caution should be used with authorities to ensure governments retain some level of control — and intergovernmental agreements.

VanderMeulen noted this was the first of what will be a number of regular, monthly meetings, to be held on the last Tuesday of each month at 6:30 p.m. on a rotating basis in the township halls. The project is intended to advance in phases, the next being to compare analysis and research options (March to May), then find common ground for further work (June to July), then implement and adopt policy (August). What that policy, or mulutude of policies, becomes is up to the municipalities involved. He hopes to create a group that continues to meet regularly and continues to work cooperatively.

Charlevoix couple gives back to humanity

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Jim and Anne Fiedler just want to help people.

It is a simple idea, giving to those who need, but this Charlevoix couple has taken that idea a bit further than some, having made 15 trips to Central American countries in the last 10 years on various missionary trips.

"We go with different church groups, and Anne usually works on a medical team or a bible team and I do repair (construction) work," Fiedler said.

The couple returned from a trip to northern Nicaragua in January, having spent 12 days in the impoverished country offering aid.

"We just want to help people. They are very grateful and glad we're there," Fiedler said of the experience.

While they have traveled with their own church, the Nazarene Church of Charlevoix, they've gone with other churches and other missionary groups. They've hooked up with familiar faces a number of times, and joined a reporter from Colorado, Tom Munds, on this trip who they have worked with before. Fiedler said he and his wife usually do some research on which groups are going where and chose "where we want to go." So far they have traveled to Panama, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Belize and Guatemala.

"I want to keep going to these places. There is enough need there, we want to stick with these areas," he said.

Fielder generally works on schools and churches under construction while on the mission trips. This last trip was made with two medical doctors, two EMT's and seven nurses, as well as others. A total of 18 individuals went on the trip.

"A year ago in Panama, all women and men did construction work mixing cement and carrying cement blocks," he explained.

The trips generally cost about $1,300, and individuals pay their own way. Only about a third of that expense goes toward room, board and airfare, while the rest covers medical supplies and building materials.

Anyone interested in joining the Fiedler's on a trip or getting more information about such ventures can call Fiedler at 547-9750.

Governments working together

"If we can complete this project with one good cooperative effort that is a success, it can lead to further cooperative successes in the future," he said.

While potential outcomes vary from keeping out Big Box stores to keeping spending local to water protection, representatives involved seemed keen on the idea of working together.

"What I'd like to see as tax dollars get tighter and tighter is an elimination of duplicating services (among municipalities). Any time you can stop that unnecessary waste is a benefit and an efficiency," said Charlevoix City Council member Lyle Gennett.

The next meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. March 25, and by that time local municipalities are expected to provide information on their zoning ordinances and master plans to Harry Burkholder, community planner with LIAA, so he can start developing options. VanderMeulen said the work must now begin.

"Sooner or later we are going to have to take a very hard look at your zoning ordinances, master plans and other information and ask, what is alike and what is different among them," VanderMeulen said.

Based on the earlier report, VanderMeuelen said LIAA estimated cost of the project at $27,500. Partnerships for Change funders and the Frey Foundation have contributed $19,500, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation contributed $5,000, and the seven municipalities involved will contribute a total of $3,000.

Local essay contest winners

Three students from Charlevoix Middle School have been named local winners in the 39th annual America & Me Essay Contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance.

The three students, who earned the first, second and third place awards for their school, are: Madison Zimmerman, first; Kristen Mielke, second; and Anne Dipert, third. All three received award certificates for their achievement. As the school's first place winner, Zimmerman's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

Zimmerman's first place essay now advances to the state level competition, from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected. The top 10 statewide winners, who will be announced in April, will receive plaques, cash, and U.S. savings bonds valued from $500 to $1,000. In addition, the top 10 essayists will be honored at a banquet in Lansing, meet with Michigan's top governmental leaders, and be the featured guests at a Lansing Lugnuts minor league baseball game dedicated in their honor.

Several thousand eighth grade students from over 500 Michigan schools participated in the 2007-2008 American & Me Essay Contest, which was conducted with the help of Farm Bureau Insurance agents across the state. The topic of the 2007-2008 contest was "My Personal Hero."

Summit to address non-motorized trail issues

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

What: Open meeting to discuss trail use
When: 1 to 5 p.m. Feb. 27
Where: Hagerty Center, Northwestern Michigan College

Government officials and anyone concerned about the development of non-motorized trail systems from 13 counties including Charlevoix are invited to attend an upcoming summit.

According to the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, the summit will feature a presentation on the draft of the Non-Motorized Transportation Plan and Investment Strategy.

"This project will help guide the Michigan Department of Transportation's investment in a non motorized transportation system," Thomas White Public Information Specialist with the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments in a Feb. 6 press release. "Local elected and appointed officials, trail organizations, developers, planning and design professionals, businesses and others who are interested in non-motorized transportation are encouraged to attend."

The development of non-motorized trails is something Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan said should be of concern to all.

"That type of trail would be used by walkers, joggers, rollerbladers, bicyclists, cross-country skiers," he said. "There is a recreation aspect to it and a health aspect to it ... and also an economic aspect to it."

Sullivan said unscientific surveys of the trail showed people from all over the country and all over the state of Michigan utilize the Little Traverse Wheelway which stretches from Charlevoix to Petoskey.

The counties expected to participate include: Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee, Osceola and Wexford.

The summit, scheduled for 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 27 at the Hagerty Center of Northwestern Michigan College will feature bicycle/pedestrian coordinator for the Michigan Department of Transportation Josh DeBruyn who will speak on Michigan Department of Transportation's technical report, and there will be an update on work to connect Michigan trails with one another by Barbara Nelson Jameson of the National Parks Service.

This free event offered by the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, which was founded in 1973 to facilitate and manage programs and services for a 10-county region, will also feature the following speakers: Anne McDevitt of the Top of Michigan Trails Council, Russ La Rowe of the Kalkaska Area Recreational Trails, Bob Otwell of the Traverse Area Recreational Trails, Bill Olsen of the Betsie Valley Trail and Bill Manson and Bill Lucas of the White Pine Trail.

Those interested in attending must first register by calling Patty O'Donnell, the Regional Planner with the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments at (231) 929-5039 or by e-mailing her at pattyodonnell@nwm.cog.mi.us.

Sullivan said there are efforts to connect the Traverse City trails with Charlevoix as well as a desire to build a trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix.

"That is definitely a future possibility," he said. "There is even effort to get a trail from Petoskey to Mackinaw City so people will be able to virtually travel all over by bikes."

But, he added, "There needs to be active participation in these (movements)."

Wynkoop's request

by the people who elected you to office."

Ruth Hoppe, a doctor and professor at Michigan State University and resident of Norwood, stated that, "There are proven health hazards in the vicinity of limestone mining operations. These include short-term effects on lung passages which worsen asthma and chronic lung disease in children and adults. They also include longer term effects which include lung cancer and other cancers."

Hoppe further stated, "These health effects are not mitigated by washing the quarried material. In addition, the health effects caused by the mining operation are likely to be magnified by the presence of limestone-rich dust particles aerosolized by the truck traffic in and out of the area."

As a matter of public health, Hoppe explained, the mine must be stopped.

"I would further caution township officials about potential liability from adverse health consequences of township citizens, if they approve this permit," she stated. "An 'outbreak' of lung disease in the future, if found attributable or even aggravated by limestone dust particles in the environment, might place the township in a very risky financial situation."

Wynkoop did not return calls to comment on the accusations by press time, but has in the past denied all claims of his operation's negative impact on the health, safety and enjoyment of property of his neighbors.

Way said the public hearing, though not a first for Wynkoop, will be dealt with in accordance with the law.

"We're going to treat it like it is a new application because it is," he said. "We are going to go step by step through the ordinances to see what lines up."

He added, "This is probably going to encompass two days. I anticipate it taking at least that long to accomplish this."

Charlevoix among schools affected by meat recall

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The recent recall of millions of pounds of beef, some of which fed to students of Charlevoix Public Schools, allegedly poses a "low" health risk.

While 300 to 400 pounds of the recently recalled 143,383,823 pounds of Hallmark/Westland Meat Packing's raw and processed beef resides in Charlevoix Schools, one of nearly 150 affected districts nationwide, officials are working to dispose of it and assure parents the voluntary recall is merely a precautionary measure.

"Some of it is raw beef to make into patties and some of it is processed meat in the form of spaghetti sauce and taco meat," said Charlevoix Public Schools Business Manager Shawn Biddle. "We got word on February 17 and we actually got the e-mail (recall notice) on the February 19."

The Charlevoix School District was among the 150 districts nationwide affected by the recent recall of millions of pounds of beef. An estimated 300 to 400 pounds were recalled from the local school system.

This Class II recall, classified by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) as "a health hazard situation where there is a remote probability of adverse health consequences from the use of the product," is between the more serious Class I— "a health hazard situation where there is a reasonable probability that the use of the product will cause serious, adverse health consequences or death" — and the less serious Class III— "a situation where the use of the product will not cause adverse health consequences"— according to the USDA.

This isn't the school district's first dealing with food recalls as fresh and canned vegetables have been subject in the past, but Biddle said she has never seen anything recalled on this scale.

Biddle is unaware of any incidents where students or staff became physically ill after eating from food lots later recalled.

This Hallmark/Westland, Chino, Calif. recall stems from an investigation into improper practices on the beef supplier's part.

Some of the recalled beef products include cheek meat, tongue trimmings, small intestines, loin, spleens, salivary glands, flank steak, ribeye roll, sausage, meatballs and burrito filling mix.

The Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) found the beef "unfit for human food" after cattle were not properly inspected.

"Through evidence obtained by FSIS, the establishment (Westland/Hallmark) did not consistently contact the FSIS public health veterinarian in situations in which cattle became non-ambulatory after passing ante-mortem inspection, which is not compliant with FSIS regulations," stated Amanda Eamich with the Congressional and Public Affairs. "Such circumstances require that an FSIS public health veterinarian reassess the non-ambulatory cattle which are either condemned and prohibited from the food supply, or tagged as suspect. Suspect cattle receive a more thorough inspection after slaughter than is customary."

She further stated, "This noncompliant activity occurred occasionally over the past two years and therefore all beef products produced during the period of time for which evidence indicates such activity occurred has been determined by FSIS to be unfit for human consumption, and is, therefore, adulterated."

Since Charlevoix Schools belong to a government commodity program from where they receive meat, cheese and peanut butter, they do not choose which cattle producer supplies their beef.

"Right now we will be changing our menu, taking spaghetti off and tacos off for now," Biddle said. "We're still working through the MDE (Michigan Department of Education) to find out how they're going to replace the products or reimburse us."

City Council considers renaming East Park

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Could East Park get a new name with its new look? City officials say maybe, but let the public decide.

"I'm not advocating for it to be named after a person or an event, but this is something that was brought up to me and a number of council members," Mayor Norman Carlson said of recent discussions about changing the name of the park currently under construction.

Carlson said the idea to change the park's name was a "seed planted" early on in the construction phase, almost at the beginning of conversations to initiate the renovation project. Now, anticipating the June unveiling of the new park which he said essentially brings together two former parks — East Park on the north side of what was Mason Street and Chamber Park on the south side — and creates a new identity. Along with that, Carlson added, comes opportunity.

"If we are ever going to do this, now is the time. We'll never be in this position again (having a new park constructed,)" he said.

Any suggestions?
Contact City Hall or attend the public hearing, 7 p.m. March 3 at City Hall

A public hearing will be held in city hall at 7 p.m. March 3. The city is soliciting suggestions for a new name for the park, encouraging anyone with ideas to call city hall (547-3270) or e-mail the city with suggestions. Some ideas discussed so far include City Park, Harbor Park, The Park and Mariners' Park.

"I like that one," Carlson said in reference to Mariners' Park, one of the more recent suggestions. "It obviously has related meaning with the park being by the harbor with the boaters and sailors coming in, and we have the Submariners' Memorial right there."

Naming the area after a person or an event, such as Venetian Festival, have also been suggested but council members and Carlson noted at last week's council meeting they would prefer to give the park a name with a broader meaning.

"I don't think it's most appropriate to name it after one person," Carlson said. "It is

Charlevoix Elks Lodge formed

A decision to proceed with the organization of a Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Charlevoix was reached at a recent meeting.

The group formed themselves into an Organization Committee led by Christopher Jones, Chairman; John T. Hess, Vice Chairman; Edward Rogalla, Secretary; Rochelle Roerig, Treasurer; Luke LaBlance, Travis Blissett & Bruce Beaudoin serving as Guidance Consul.

All are residents of the Charlevoix area.

There were 47 people who attended the meeting held at the American Legion Post in Charlevoix. They heard Lynn Cook and Randell Jackson, Special Representatives from the Elks Grand Lodge, tell of it's founding and growth, and describe some of the charitable and patriotic programs on which Elks nationwide expend more than $1 million annually. They also explained the procedure for forming the new Lodge and outlined the geographical area over which it would have jurisdiction.

This would include Boyne City, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Plans were made to push the organization work rapidly, with another meeting scheduled for 7 p.m., March 5 at the American Legion Post in Charlevoix (106 East Garfield Ave.), where applications will be received and processed for membership in the new Lodge. For persons who where not able to attend the previous meetings, they will cover all aspects of Elkdom and answer any questions they may have.

everyone's park."

He said he would like to have a decision made on the issue by the second week of March.

In other news, council members gave approval to design and wording of a variety of plaques to be placed within the city. Recognizing land donations, financial contributions, planning and design commitments and general dedication to the City of Charlevoix were deemed reasoning for the plaques, which include:

East Park Renovation 2001-2008 Plaque: To be located on the exterior of the Harbor Master's building. The plaque recognizes mayors, council members, Downtown Development Authority members and city staff along with contractors, architects and engineers. Recognition of funding by the DDA and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources/Waterways grant is also included.

Park Acquisition Plaque. This recognizes the land donations of private landowners that helped establish East Park. Extensive research was done by city staff to include all Charlevoix residents—past and present - who have donated land. Location of the plaque is yet to be determined.

Wharfside Building Acquisition Plaque: This plaque lists the granting agencies and private donations that led to the purchase and subsequent demolition of the Wharfside Building. Location is yet to be determined.

East Park Fountain of Youth Plaques: The fundraising committee for the fountain will be working on the names of the benefactors that donated to the interactive water fountain. The plaques will be located somewhere near the new fountain. No content language has yet been determined.

Robert Bridge Memorial Park Plaque: The Charlevoix Historical Society informed the city recently there was to be a plaque recognizing former mayor Robert Bridge for his efforts in creating parklands along the west boundary of Round Lake. Draft language has been created for a memorial which will also include a pictorial image of Robert Bridge. The plaque will be located somewhere in Bridge Park, which is named in his honor, not after the bridge.

Don't eat the meat! Beef recalled

Charlevoix Schools have been directed to soak all suspect raw meat in chlorine bleach before wrapping and discarding it.

"We're still holding the processed meat and waiting for further instruction from MDE on how to dispose of it and what documentation they're going to need for us to be reimbursed or how to get a replacement of those items," Biddle said.

Biddle is unsure how long the school has been using the suspect beef or how many pounds have been ingested at the local level.

None of the grocery stores in Charlevoix were subject to the beef recall, but if you fear you may have a product, look for "EST. 336" on the USDA mark. The beef of concern would be from Feb. 1, 2006 to Feb. 2, 2008.

No disease has been found, but the biggest worry officials look for is Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, also known as Mad Cow Disease.

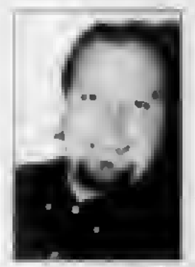
What makes a man a man in the great world of sports?



THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

So I'm flipping through the latest copy of "O" (that's The Oprah Magazine to all you godless heathens) and I come across a piece by Dr. Phil, you know, that bald chick with the mustache who dispenses painfully obvious advice to the fat and the married.

He tells a woman the reason hubby says nasty things to her is because he hasn't reconciled her doing the hunka-chunka with a coworker; as if she needed both hands and a flashlight to find that one.

While reading Phil's response to the 58-year-old obese woman who couldn't understand why overeating made her fat, I had to ask myself just what in the Funk & Wagnalls I was doing.

How did it come that this once relatively manly man was reduced to spending his day off browsing a magazine for bored housewives?

I wasn't raised in a tutu. I grew up shooting frogs, burning bugs and playing tackle football.

I blame the baseball strike of 1994.

Getting paid to do what you love seemed blessing enough, but not for these guys.

But, as so many unbelievable things do, it happened. I was 19 the year we had no World Series and so angry I sold my card collection and vowed never to watch the game again.

So began the descent into the bowels of metrosexuality.

Long gone were boyhood summer days in the outfield shielding my face from the sun with the only evidence of the father who left when I was 7: a Phil Rizzuto shortstop mitt that was far too big for my hand.

Gone was the sweet smell of old leather and scrounging quarters to buy packs of Topps from the lonely display case so out of place at the neighborhood hardware store.

Gone were the nights spent flipping through price guides and trying to calculate how much a boy of 14 was worth.

Gone were the afternoons with Alan Trammell and Kirk Gibson cards, both badly dog-eared from one too many Saturdays spent sorting them in front of the black and white TV with the tinfoil antenna while the boys of summer did their thing.

I did a fine job of abiding my oath all these years until 2006, when my Bless You Boys made it all the way to the World Series.

Sitting alone, (the wife has never known me as a "sports guy" and I know how she looks at men who are hooked on NASCAR and the NFL, so it was best kept secret) I watched every winning game with glee and the last games of the series in agony as loss after loss stacked up.

Even though they lost, watching the Tigers back in action awakened something inside me. Suddenly I found myself sneaking part of a game here and there. Then came the steroid scandals, talk of adding disclaimers and asterisks to the records of athletes who had not been found guilty and now the government inquests into what private citizens do with their respective bodies.

America's pastime may not have had any dignity left to lose, but I was not going to let another self-inflicted black eye stop me from watching the game I love.

I justified the alleged actions of MLB with the theory that, while steroids can make a person stronger, pills and serums are no substitute for dedication, training, sacrifice or talent.

Players who take drugs do so often at great risk and at very least they should get the accolades they've earned without fear of municipal witch hunts.

Besides, we all take steroids, it's just a matter of to what degree—The U.S. Olympic team must take its own food to China this year because Chinese meat is so loaded with growth hormones, our athletes would test positive for steroids if they ingested it.

Though perhaps to a lesser degree, American livestock and produce are also on the juice: One-pound chicken breasts and bulletproof tomatoes are not natural.

Whether it's the World's Strongest Man competitors, pro wrestlers or even baseball players, I just don't care what they put in their bodies.

I made the mistake of giving up a lifelong love (and a portion of my manhood) over dubious behavior once, I'm not going to let it happen again.

Now if you'll excuse me, the Tigers are already in spring training and I have to get started rebuilding my card collection from scratch.

Burlap before the saw: How to save the trees

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Commenting on the trees that were cut down in East Park surely comes under the category of locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen, but I do have a couple of stories about how other people in other places have dealt with missing trees. Not everyone considers trees to be impediments to future greatness. However, it is true that I have seldom seen a landscaping plan for some planned development that did not include removing all the trees currently present and replacing them with a fine collection of small guy-wired trees and some attractive shrubs. Let it be clear at the beginning: I like trees, and the older and larger they are the more I like them. It is almost impossible to get a century-old tree without the passage of 100 years.

The first tree management story comes from the University of Washington in Seattle. Our family spent five months there about 25 years ago. I walked three miles to the Botany Building from our rented basement apartment, and each day viewed what was a truly magnificent approach to the campus. A long, mall-like space with grass and seasonal blooming flower beds culminated in a very large circular pool and fountain at the university entrance. Looking away from the university buildings to the south, the mall framed Mount Ranier— a truly spectacular public space. There was already an underground parking garage located below the central quad of the campus. That one was a marvelous use of space without compromising the appearance of the campus, and we hoped that the new one would be equally inconspicuous when completed.

There was one problem. The eastern edge of the mall space included a magnificent Redwood tree. It was nearly one hundred feet tall, beautifully shaped and almost as old as the university. What did a university board, traditionally short of money, decide to do? I am sure cutting down the tree was considered, as the least expensive option. But the decision was to move it out of the construction zone. Imagine moving a hundred foot tall tree for several hundred yards! Since I walked to the campus down that mall six days a week. I had an opportunity to watch the process. The grounds crew separated a ball of earth the size of a small house from the surrounding soil, wrapped it in burlap and a web of steel cable (a lot of burlap) and called in the two largest construction cranes on the west cost to lift the tree and its earth ball onto a large half-inch thick steel plate and pull it with two bulldozers to its new location, where a suitable hole had been provided. The process took more than two weeks in total and cost tens of thousands of dollars from an already stressed university budget.

Such costly care for a tree in the way of construction may be unprecedented. All that it really demonstrates is that if you care enough it is not necessary to cut down inconvenient, old trees. I do not suggest that an identical solution was available for our local officials, only that if you care enough for old trees, they could be saved in SOME way.

The second tree story involves the largest hemlock tree in North Georgia. I never got to see the tree. But Gaither Plummer, a professor at the University of Georgia, led a group of students, including me, on a half-mile walk up a narrow mountain valley to where the tree had once stood. It had been removed, but it was clear that Professor Plummer could still see it. He discoursed at length about how it had taken six people with arms outstretched to enclose its circumference, and how it had towered over its surroundings. I thought at the time that Professor Plummer was just a little bit crazy to take us on a lengthy, uphill hike to look at the place where a tree had once been. But now I can imagine myself with a couple of grandchildren, next summer or the one after, telling them, "There used to be a wonderful, tall, old spruce tree, right here by the memorial." They will look at me with as much doubt about my connection to reality as I did at Professor Plummer.

It turns out that once you have cut it down and removed it there is no way to get an old tree back, no matter how vivid are y[illegible] memories or how good y[illegible] imagination.

SAVE OUR SIDEWALKS

Editor,

Exercise is a great way to maintain our health. As a walker enjoying the outdoors, why are our sidewalks such a hazard to our health?

Sidewalks are full of snow clumps causing a twisted ankle, falls, slips. It seems the only people who are concerned are homeowners.

Granted we walkers could go to a mall or other indoor places for exercise. Why can't we walk along our sidewalks and enjoy the snow, and most of all the fresh air.

The City has a machine, "The holder," that maintains sidewalks. It doesn't seem to be used much this year. Why?

MORE INFORMATION ABOUT WINDMILLS

Editor:

I do not wish to be confused with Don Quixote. However, the issue of wind generators in Charlevoix should concern all citizens.

First, let me say that I am not opposed to wind power. We obviously need alternatives to fossil fuel.

But, before we allow structures which I've heard may reach 400 feet high, a full and open public discussion and disclosure of the entire proposal is needed. There are many rumors floating about. I've heard varying estimates of how much money various people will make but I don't know the truth.

This is not a township issue. It concerns all of Charlevoix and will have a great impact upon the future of our local environment. As some wise folks once said, we do not own the land. We are caretakers, let us take care.

COA DOING WHAT IT CAN

Editor:

After reading numerous articles in the newspaper regarding the Commission On Aging, and being a member of this board myself, I feel it important to express the issues that the current COA board is addressing. The COA is working diligently to improve the services for our senior citizens. We are working together to solve the problems that we have found with the recent survey. We are evaluating our staff and will have quarterly personnel meetings to address any concerns and to improve our services in all areas. We are in the process of computerizing our accounting system, which will enable us to provide necessary monthly reports to be accountable to our taxpayers.

Our main concern is our senior citizens. We want to do our best to provide our seniors with the help they need.

CONGRATS PERFORMING ARTS STUDENTS

Editor:

PA Students Excel and Amaze!

Recently, Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students competed at district and regional levels with their play, "Spoon River Anthology." They did an awesome job and advanced to state finals. Congratulations to the students! I am so proud of you and I know that Connie Ford would be proud too - her legacy of student success lives on in all of you…

The educational benefits of performing arts programs include teamwork, responsibility, diligence, organization, leadership, communication, public speaking skills, self esteem, confidence, creativity, and maturity. These students will be well equipped as the future leaders of tomorrow. Although it takes an incredible amount of work, these PA students always seem to have fun doing it. That is the best part!

For the readers, do yourself a favor and get involved - these young people will amaze you. Support your school PA program by attending performances, making a donation, or get involved with set building, fund raising, etc. There is a lot to do and in these financially troubled times the students need your support in order to succeed. They work hard at raising funds all year long for costumes, props, makeup, set building materials, paint, show programs and hotel and food costs associated with travel. A special thanks to the coaches and teacher who give so much of their personal time and energy to cultivate success in our students. It truly is a wonderfully enriching program.

CHS PA students: Thanks for letting me share in your success! You rock!

Water fountain gets boost from local grant

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Efforts to bring an interactive water fountain to Charlevoix's newly renovated park, set to open this summer, are enjoying success, emphasized by the award of a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

"We are one for one as of now in terms of grants," Downtown Development Authority Director Keith Carey said.

The local funding award was in the amount of $2,000, which will be put toward the $380,000 price tag for the fountain. Private funds, solicited by the Fountain of Youth fund raising committee, are hoped to equal $100,000, while DDA has pledged $200,000 and the city Marina Fund will contribute $80,000. In addition to contributing grant funding, the Community Foundation is also acting as fiduciary for the other four grants applied for: The Frey Foundation, the Dow Foundation of Midland, the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chipewa Indians and the Great Lakes Energy People's Fund. Carey is hopeful about hearing from the other grant sources soon.

Success is also noted in collection of private donations, he said, with pledges still coming in.

"I still get a few calls a week from people wanting to contribute. Many are non-Charleviox residents who either own a second home here or visit frequently that want to support our community and this project," he said.

Fundraising for the interactive water fountain is coming to a close, but Carey said he has turned his sights to grant opportunities for other components of the park, also remaining optimistic about those newer endeavors.

"I can't let the cat out of the bag yet, but we're working on some things," he said.

At last estimate, the park was set for a June opening.

Sheriff warns: Protect yourself from car theft

Sheriff George T. Lasater warned recently about the threat of car theft during winter months.

"During the extreme cold Michigan has been experiencing recently, there is increased temptation to start your vehicle and go back inside to let it warm up," Lasater said. "The problem is that crooks may target people who do this."

Crooks have been known to "patrol" neighborhoods looking for unoccupied running vehicles. They may work in teams, with one person driving the car and the passenger prepared to jump out when an unattended, running vehicle is spotted. Some thieves target only unlocked cars, but others will break out a window, if necessary.

If warming up your car is absolutely necessary, Lasater recommends you invest in a remote car starter. These are designed to allow your car to start and warm up without the key, but disable the vehicle if anyone tries to put the car in gear before inserting the key.

If a remote car starter is not an option for you and you insist on staying inside your home while your car warms up, Lasater recommends you follow these important tips.

Keep a watchful eye on your car from inside the house.

Make sure you have a backup key so you can lock the door to your car.

Don't keep your "warm up" key on a ring with your house keys. If you do, the thief will also have access to your home.

If you leave your car running in the garage, partially close the garage door. This will still allow the exhaust fumes to escape but serve as a deterrent to the thief.

"It is very easy to avoid falling victim to this crime," Lasater said. "By remaining with your vehicle during warm up, you will deter thieves who are looking for an easy mark."

Sheriff program utilizes wanted posters

Sheriff George T. Lasater recently announced a new program where a citizen behind in child support payments and current warrant for their arrest has been authorized, their photograph will appear on a 'Wanted' poster, posted in various areas along with news media.

Lasater said this is an attempt to bring these citizens who are not paying child support to justice.

Information may be forwarded to Lasater, Undersheriff Don Schneider or Acting Jail Administrator Derek Gaylord at 547-4461.

DC4K will help minimize and eliminate the short and long-term negative effects of divorce on your children's schoolwork, emotional health and spiritual life.

As your children begin to heal from the pain and confusion, their relationships with you, God and others will grow healthy and strong.

DC4K group meetings are offered each Thursday, from 4-5:30p.m. at the Charlevoix Elementary School starting March 13th for 13 weeks.

Please note that if school has 1/2 day, snow day or it's a holiday, there will be NO class.

'IN STITCHES' AT LIBRARY

The Charlevoix Public Library hosts a knitting community working the first Monday of every month at 6 p.m. (March 3). Bring knitting, crocheting, or stitching of any kind, and work while you learn and share with others.

Each meeting will feature an optional class (kit fee required) and a workgroup area. Local knitter Chris Abramowski will lead the group. In response to the resurgence of knitting, the Charlevoix Public Library has added many new knitting resources to their collection. A sampling of those books include:

Son of stitch 'n bitch: 45 projects to knit & crochet for men, by Debbie Stoller offers many projects to work on that men will love. Stoller knows that at least half the projects women knit are intended for the men in their lives. She also knows that knitting for a boyfriend, husband, or father is full of pitfalls. The solution is this hip, smart knitters guide to knitting for men.

Kristin knits: 27 inspired designs for playing with color, by Kristin Nicholas provides confidence to work with many different colors for a fantastic result. Nicholas is a noted knitwear designer and color connoisseur. She encourages readers to conquer their color inhibitions, learn a little basic color theory, and create personally satisfying fiber palettes. The fresh collection of 25 designs showcases her extraordinary talent for color.

Many fiction books with a knitting theme are also part of the collection. Check out the library catalog at www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call for more information about these or other knitting favorites, 237-7340.

Charlevoix Middle School Band receives top honors at festival

Straight ones are the highest rank that bands can receive at this festival. The Charlevoix Middle School Band, under the direction of Jayne Bennett, achieved this honor at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Festival Saturday, Feb. 23 in Petoskey.

There were three judges listening to each band perform a march, a piece taken from a required list and a third song of their choosing. Each judge gave the band grades of all A's, adding up to a first division rating for the concert portion of the program. The band then went into the sight reading room where they performed two new pieces of music. They had seven minutes to prepare the music and then perform for another judge. The band also received all A's for this performance and another first division rating. Since all judges gave the band first division ratings, or "ones," we call this Straight Ones, which is a great accomplishment. Out of the 19 bands performing at the festival, Charlevoix Middle School was one of three to receive this high ranking. This is the first time in about 12 years that Charlevoix Bands have received Straight Ones ratings.

OBITUARIES

CHARLES J. BLEHA

Charles J. Bleha, 98, passed away in Charlevoix February 2, 2008.

Born in Detroit on June 10, 1909, Charlie came with his parents, John and Anna (Kinski) Bleha to Charlevoix County in 1914. After his father's death in 1916, he and his mother moved to Charlevoix.

He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1929. Charlie played center on the football team and played trombone in the high school and city bands.

Shortly after graduating from high school Charlie took a job with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, better known as A&P. He worked for A&P in Charlevoix, Sault Ste. Marie, Harbor Springs and Petoskey until drafted into the army in 1942. He served with the 13th Armored Division, a part of General George Patton's Third Army, that fought it's way through France and Germany, including the Battle of the Bulge.

After the war, Charlie returned to Charlevoix and managed the A&P store. When A&P decided to close its Charlevoix store, he opened his own grocery store, Food Port, on Bridge Street. He sold Food Port in 1957 and went to work for Kroger in Charlevoix and Petoskey until his retirement in 1971.

After living on Nettleton Street in Charlevoix from boyhood, Charlie moved with his family in 1957 to Pa Be Shan Lane on North Point where he trapped and hunted as a youth.

Charlie was an active, lifelong member of the First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ of Charlevoix. He participated in many civic organizations, including treasurer of the Charlevoix County Hospital Board when the present hospital was approved, funded and built; trustee of Charlevoix Township; board member of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce; and Cub Scout Master.

Charlie was an avid hunter and fisherman, but his real passion was golf. Beginning as a youngster with five wooden-shaft clubs, he competed as an 18-year-old amateur in the 1927 Great Lakes Open. He worked on both the Charlevoix municipal golf course and the Belvedere, where he helped lay the greens. After playing well for nearly 80 years, he gave up golf at age 87 because he could no longer walk the course.

His wife of 66 years, Ester (FitzGerald) Bleha passed away in 1999. He is survived by his two sons and their wives, Thomas Bleha and Natasha Simes of Arlington, Virginia and John and Penny (Gibelyou) Bleha of Charlevoix; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 1 at the First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ in Charlevoix. The family suggests memorial contributions be directed to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, Charlevoix or Charlevoix Area Hospital. The Winchester Funeral Home served the family.

EVELYN ENG ELLIOTT

Three days after celebrating her 87th birthday, longtime Charlevoix resident Evelyn Eng Elliott passed away Saturday, Dec. 22, 2007.

Born Dec. 19, 1920, in Carroll, Iowa, to E.J. and Maude Kratoska, Evelyn was preceded in death by her brothers, Jim and Bob and her sister, Vivian. After graduating from the Creighton University nursing school, she served as an ensign in the U.S. Navy Nurses Corps in World War II. There, she cared primarily for the injured of the Pacific Theater while stationed at Oak Knoll Naval Hospital in Oakland, Calif. There, she married Seaman John Giles Eng, a short marriage that produced two sons.

After the war, she received her master's degree on the G.I. Bill in nursing administration from the University of Iowa in 1952 and became the director of nursing and dean of students at Broadlawn Polk County Hospital in Des Moines, Iowa.

In the pioneering days of the University of Missouri medical center, Evelyn accepted the position of director of nursing services in 1960, bringing her and her two sons to Columbia, MO.

She authored a book and many articles on nursing and public health, and in 1969 she served as president of the Missouri Nurses Association. In the early 1970s, Evelyn left Columbia to become the director of nursing for Cabrini, Columbus and Cunio hospitals in Chicago. She retired in 1976.

In 1954, she met and later married her soul mate, James Lee Elliott, with whom she enjoyed 30 years of marriage before he preceded her in death in May 2005. They were "snowbirds" residing in Charlevoix, Mich., and escaping the harsh winters in Naples, Fla.

She will be remembered as the life of the party, a hard-nosed but fair administrator, and a force to be reckoned with. A woman before her time, she was a champion of the rights of women in general, and especially in the workplace, long before it was popular and often to the risk of her own career. And if that wasn't enough, her efforts in single-handedly raising the "Eng boys" have earned her a free pass to all the good things in the hereafter. She is survived by her sons Michael and Patrick Eng and his wife, Mary Del Eng, all of Columbia; and her three grandchildren, Jennifer and Matthew Eng of Columbia, MO and Allen Russell of Kansas City.

Per her wishes, there will be no service. A family gathering will be held in Naples, Fla., where her ashes will be spread outside her door in Doctor's Pass, where she loved to watch the dolphins swim.

A celebration of her life is being planned for spring in Columbia.

10 things you never knew about Scott Hankins

Bringing you closer to your neighbors

February's 10 Things features 42-year-old Deputy-Chief of Charlevoix City Police Scott Hankins.

In addition to being a husband and father of two, Hankins plays bass, drums and mandolin in his spare time and plays guitar in the band In Service which performs everything from gospel and country to rock-n-roll; is an auctioneer and a farrier (one who fits and removes horse shoes); and was even an MP in the military.

Hankins has been a musician for nearly 30 years and an officer for nearly 18 years.

Q 1. What is your favorite food to eat or prepare?

A. My favorite food to eat is BBQ ribs or pizza.

Q 2. What are your hobbies?

A. The band and we have four horses of our own. We ride 'em and have buggies. We drive them into town every once in a while to get Dairy Queen.

Q 3. What's the toughest AND BEST part of your job?

A. The toughest part of my job is when it involves a case where a younger person has been hurt or killed and having to deal with their family. The best part of my job is when you get to see a positive resolution to a case and you know you've done the best you can to help somebody else.

Q 4. If you could change one thing about yourself or your world what would it be?

A. I would enact federal legislation to limit the presidential campaigns to three-month periods.

Q 5. If you could meet anyone, who would it be?

A. Vince Gill. He just won his 19th Grammy. He is, I think, one of the best song writers and guitar players known to man.

Q 6. What is something nobody knows about you?

A. When I was in high school I wanted to be in radio broadcasting.

Q 7. Favorite movie of all time?

A: Mel Brooks' Blazing Saddles.

Q 8. What is the biggest misconception in your line of work?

A. I think it can be summed up in one question I have been asked I don't know how many times: People say, "Why were you following me last night?"; and my response is, "I was going in the same direction."

I think officers forget that people get nervous with a cop car behind them. To us, it's just a means of transportation.

Q 9. What really makes you mad?

A. If I have failed to meet my obligations with my family or work or something I've committed to and I haven't followed through with.

10. Where do you see yourself in five years?

A: I will be ... still working for the Charlevoix City Police Department.

Area departments train with Coast Guard

The Charlevoix Station of the United States Coast Guard held a training exercise last week, inviting surrounding police, fire and rescue departments to learn about their equipment and procedures. Departments worked together on training and simulated rescue exercises.

BY ERICA GOFF

Hoping their faces, equipment and procedures will become more familiar with neighboring law enforcement, fire and rescue agencies, the United States Coast Guard Charlevoix Station held a collaborative training exercise last week.

Officer in Charge BMC Scott Boop said the training was organized to help boost efficient response to emergencies, and help various officers — from Elk Rapids to Emmet County— become familiar with each other.

"We have a rather large coverage area (as the Coast Guard) and we wanted to be familiar with these folks and have them familiar with us," Boop said.

Emmet County Sheriff, East Jordan Fire Department, Elk Rapids Fire Department, Charlevoix County Dive Team, Resort Bear Creek Township and the Coast Guard Auxiliary attended the event, which involved hands-on demonstrative training as well as a simulated helicopter rescue, demonstrated by the Air Station Traverse City. Boatswain Mate 3rd Class Frank Wehher said the event was of benefit for all involved.

"This can help us put some names to faces. We're comparing equipment used, showing them our policies, procedures, training and rescue techniques," he said.

While only in Charlevoix for eight months, Wehher spent time serving in the Coast Guard in other areas such as Washington state, Alaska and up and down the East Coast, and he learned how important it can be to work closely with neighboring agencies.

"When you respond to a scene, it helps to know what other agencies have as resources, what they do, and have them know what we can do to help," he said, noting as the only federal agency in the area and the first likely called to ice rescue events, the Coast Guard will be seen by other agencies.

Boop said the exercise will become an annual event in Charlevoix, and he hopes every agency can attend at some point.

"This will help bolster a greater partnership. In case you have an incident, each department will know each other's capabilities and call upon those assets," he said. "When you know other departments' capabilities, you can offer a quicker, better response."

Lady Rayders win districts

There was no running clock this time. After beating Traverse City St. Francis in their second regular-season meeting, 63-17, it took everything it had for Charlevoix's girls' basketball team to get by the Gladiators in Friday's Class C district final.

The Rayders trailed at the half and at the end of three quarters, before winning 57-43.

It's the fourth straight district title for Charlevoix, 19-2. St. Francis finishes 8-15.

"We finally got the right combination on the floor," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "We play so many (players), sometimes it takes a while to find. We put Shauna Spencley in there at the end of the third quarter and she got us going. She ran the show, hit a big 3 and played great defense."

Desi Faust, who scored 10 points, hit a 3-pointer on the opening play of the fourth quarter. That put Charlevoix up, 36-34, and gave it the lead for the first time since the first quarter.

Then Becca Madison, with four fouls, came back on the floor with 6 minutes to play. She scored two straight buckets for a 43-37 lead with 5 minutes, 7 seconds to go. Spencley's 3-pointer came midway through the fourth for a 47-39 lead and Charlevoix was able to maintain a cushion the rest of the way.

Madison led the Rayders with 18 points. Murphy Gillespie had eight points, five rebounds and five assists, and Tammy Potter eight rebounds.

"She (Madison) had a tremendous second half," Erskine said.

For its part, St. Francis had a tremendous first half. Charlevoix thrives on its defensive pressure, but it is hard to press when you can't score. For much of the game, the Gladiators saw to that.

"Our half-court defense is our strength, that's what gave us a chance," St. Francis coach Sue Nissen said.

What happened to the team that lost by 40 the last time?

"That was just one of those games, that wasn't really us. We put it behind us," Nissen said.

"We knew St. Francis was going to come out and give us a tough game, they didn't want to lose their last game on their floor," Erskine said. "The score of that last game doesn't reflect how good they really are. But we were still tentative in the first half."

Lyndsay LaCourse was particularly good for the Glads, beating Charlevoix's pressure despite being St. Francis' tallest player, and scoring a team-best 13 points.

"She's only a sophomore," Erskine said. "St. Francis has a great future."

Charlevoix's future is 6 p.m. Tuesday in a regional semifinal at Gaylord against McBain, 20-

Wrestlers qualify for state

Two Charlevoix High School wrestlers qualified for the Division IV Individual State Finals after placing third in their respective weight classes at the individual regional tournament Saturday at Rogers City High School.

Charlevoix's Zeke Daman, 119 pounds, opened the regional with an 11-6 victory over Chris Weber of Farwell, then dropped a 13-3 major decision to T.J. Sobeck of Rogers City.

Daman came back to defeated Josh Chartier of Mio then downed Weber in the third-place match by a 10-1 major decision. Daman improved to 42-6 on the season

Charlevoix's Mat Golovich dropped his opening match, a 12-3 major decision to Travis Perkins of Blanchard Montabella, then won three straight matches in the wrestleback bracke to finish the day 3-1 and claim the third-place medal.

Golovich pinned Jared Prusick of Traverse City St. Francis in 51 seconds, pinned Tanner Colantonio of Gwinn in 3:33, then topped Billy Preston of Kingsley, 4-1, in the third-place match. Golovich is 41-9 on the season.

Charlevoix senior Trevor Cole and freshman Greg Bishaw also competed in the tournament for Charlevoix. Cole went 0-2 at heavyweight, while Bishaw was 0-2 at 103.

The Individual State Finals are March 6-8 at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

Daman and Golovich each placed third at 119 and 130, respectively, at the Division IV regional at Rogers City.

Rayders on to next step

One title locked away forever. Another on the horizon?

Corey Gotshall scored 23 points and Nate LaBlance added 19 Thursday as Charlevoix put the finishing touches on an 18-2 regular boys' basketball season with a 77-63 non-league win at Cheboygan. Now, the Rayders, who won their second straight Lake Michigan Conference title in 2007-08, set their sights on more hardware.

Supreme Court raises smoking gun at litigation

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

As Michigan Supreme Court justices question an aspect of Charlevoix's smoke ban, local commissioners consider rescinding it.

The fact the justices asked interested parties to submit briefs on the matter last month is noteworthy, say legal representatives on both sides, not because the court cares about tobacco use regulations, but whether health departments in general have the right to pass codes which supersede state law

"You have a right to go to the court of appeals. You do not have a right to go to the Supreme Court," said Sam Frederick, a Lansing attorney representing five local plaintiffs in the case. "They (justices) said they would like to hear more about this issue of improper delegation of authority."

He added, "Health departments can enact these types (Charlevoix's Clean Indoor Air Act) of laws, but the question is: 'Are they delegated too much power from the state legislature?'"

The Supreme Court's curiosity stems from the case filed by Kent McNeil, Franklin Fisher and Roger "Archie" Griffin in July 2005, and which later added plaintiffs Scott Way and Jeff Legato, but not because of any arguments raised by the plaintiffs.

Regardless of which course the Supreme Court chooses, some Charlevoix County Commissioners intend to bring the matter up for a vote once again.

"We're taking a hard and fast look at all the rules that apply to private citizens," said District Two Charlevoix County Commissioner and Chairman of the Board Chris Christensen "Micromanagement is what we're trying to avoid."

He added, "This should be on the agenda for the next meeting (7 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 27)."

The plaintiffs, who originally lost their case in Charlevoix Circuit Court, lost again in state appeals court last June, but then, last month, the Michigan Supreme Court asked the plaintiffs, defendants, the Michigan Attorney General's office, the Michigan Association of Counties and the Michigan Township Association.

"The Supreme Court, on its own initiative, asked the parties ... to file supplemental briefs on whether the public health code contains sufficient guidelines for the delegation of rule making authority by the legislature to state agencies," said Jim Young, attorney for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. "This principle applies to any health department regulation whether it relates to septic systems, tattoo parlors, wells, it literally has nothing to do at all with the fact that we're regulating tobacco"

As all briefs in the matter have been filed with the high court, the defendants and plaintiffs now must wait for the justices to decide one of several possible scenarios including. Choosing not to hear the case; choosing to hear oral arguments on the case; or giving a decision based on the supplemental briefs

"They were invited to do that because of the tremendous statewide impact that an adverse ruling would have," Young said. "If that happened I would expect the legislature to pass emergency legislation to try to bring order out of potential chaos."

He added, "On the other hand, if the legislature drafted the statute poorly then the legislature should be told. I don't have a problem with them looking at the issue"

The significance of the court ruling against the health department "is, if the Supreme Court finds that the public health code is defective and health departments should be treated as state agencies, then the very ordinances passed by health departments in this entire state would be invalid," Young said.

He added, "This would create chaos."

The argument laid out in Frederick's brief is that, while local health departments have a right to pass laws more stringent than state law, they may not pass laws which override different laws and that the appeals court erred by ruling the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency did not have an improper delegation of authority from the legislature

"What I would like to see is the court grant oral argument on the issue. This is an issue of public concern, not just for Charlevoix County, but all counties in the State of Michigan, and I think it serves the public to have discourse from both sides," Frederick said. "Hopefully the court would issue decisions, opinions that would acknowledge there is improper use of power at the local health department level."

Both attorneys said the Supreme Court operates on its own timeline and therefore a decision will be forthcoming at an indeterminable date play either Maple City Glen Lake, 11-9, or Suttons Bay, 9-11, in a semifinal game 7:45 p.m. today, Wednesday, Feb. 27. The winner advances to the championship game 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 29. If the Rayders make the final, they could very well meet Traverse City St. Francis in what promises to be another classic showdown between the two schools.

The Gladiators, 17-3 and second to the Rayders, at 12-2, this year in the Lake Michigan Conference, are one of only two teams to beat Charlevoix this season. The Gladiators won on their home court — remember, also the site of the district — on Feb. 11, 74-61. Charlevoix topped the Glads, 55-46, on Dec. 18. Charlevoix's only other loss this season came to Class B Petoskey, 56-55.

The Rayders, who are ranked eighth in the Associated Press Class C state poll, opened the season with seven straight wins, won seven in a row after the non-league loss to Petoskey, and have won four in entering Wednesday's district game. Included in that season-ending four-game win streak was a 104-55 shellacking of Harbor Springs, and the 77-63 win over Cheboygan, in which the Rayders outscored the Chiefs, 32-17 in the fourth quarter to win going away.

"They're pretty good and it was a very physical game," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. Charlevoix made 10 of its 12 fourth-quarter free throw attempts with Gotshall going a perfect 4-for-4.

Weston Bryan added nine points and Thomas Parrish had eight for Charlevoix, while Justin Friske grabbed nine rebounds and dished out four assists, and LaBlance added five assists.

John Lafrniere scored 20 points, Trevor Closs had 13

Third candidate files in school board race

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Native Kevin Pearsall is the third candidate vying for a seat on the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education during the upcoming election

As a lifelong resident of Charlevoix, Pearsall is a 39-year-old father of two children and professional landscaper.

"My kids were in school and I wanted to get a little bit more involved," Pearsall commented when asked what motivated him to run for the office. "I think it will be something different, exciting. I basically think my past business experiences and past life experiences will help me make good decisions."

He added, "And, I know a lot of people in the county and I talk to a lot of people and I don't think anyone is afraid to come up and talk to me."

Pearsall

Pearsall said he understands the schools face various issues, but that he will come into this position with no political agenda.

Any other resident of the Charlevoix Public Schools District interested in running for the two seats which will be vacated by Larry Levengood and Diane Kilkenny, may file as write-in candidates by filing a declaration of intent form available at the Charlevoix County Building.

The deadline for write-in candidates is 4 p.m. on Friday, April 25.

For more information about the open seats, call 547-3200.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Officials: Potential conflict of offices dubious but possible

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema will soon address Charlevoix County Commissioners to clarify recent Michigan Attorney General opinions on alleged conflicts of offices.

Satisfied with two of three attorney general opinions on potential conflict of offices, local lawyer Ellis Boal, concerned with Jarema's prior reading that there is no conflict for a person to hold both soil erosion and drain commissioner duties, brought his concerns to the commissioners during their Wednesday, Feb. 13 meeting.

"The basic issue here is whether the drain commission office and the soil erosion office can be held by the same person," Boal said. "I think there is a conflict in the same person holding the office ... chiefly because of his presence on the appeals board that's set up by the county's storm water ordinance."

He added, "The attorney general said just flatly that the two positions are incompatible."

Marc Seelye, the drain commissioner and soil erosion officer who's potential conflict of offices is in question, declined comment until he receives legal counsel.

According to Jarema, who intends to give his interpretation of the attorney general's opinion during the 7 p.m., Feb. 27 meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, he still feels there is no conflict.

"I think this is more form over substance," he said. "The nuts and bolts issue is: Is there a conflict of interest in wearing both hats?; are their any conflicts in holding both offices and making decisions?"

He added, "I don't think that their are."

During the meeting, Boal read from page three, section two of the attorney general's opinion: "It is noted that the storm water control ordinance in Charlevoix County assigns the drain commissioner to a county storm water appeals board that reviews the decisions of the soil erosion officer on appeal."

He further read, "If that provision is included in the county ordinance, the two positions are incompatible to the extent the soil erosion officer is supervised by the drain commissioner who, as a member of the county's storm water appeals board, reviews the decisions of the soil erosion officer that are appealed to that board."

Boal said Seelye's conflict has been in effect for as long as he has held the offices.

"You need to have him (Seelye) removed as soil officer ... it's too late to say, 'Well he's had an incompatible office for three years or for 17 months or for five months and we're going to fix it now,' he's got to resign right now," Boal said. "Even if you put a motion on the floor right now and you pass that motion five minutes from now, during those five minutes he is holding an incompatible office."

District Two Charlevoix County Commissioner and Chairman of the Board Chris Christensen asked Chief Assistant Charlevoix County Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara for her opinion on the matter during the meeting.

"It's my understanding just reading this through that this can be resolved just that you can have the two positions and you can receive compensation so long as one of those positions does not oversee the appeal process," she said. "Which I think we can resolve at the next meeting."

Boal, who did not see the issue in the same way, also has an issue with the compensation Seelye receives for his duties as drain commissioner officer.

"If it is done it has to be done with a formal resolution ... and if it is done then it also has to be with an increase, a commensurate increase in the compensation of the drain commissioner," he said. "Right now the drain commissioner is getting $200 a month plus per diems. If the drain commissioner is working a day a week ... that means the drain commissioner has to work 32 or 40 hours in a month and that is less than the minimum wage."

Boal added, "Marc Seelye could sue the county right now for the difference in wages that he's getting."

Boal wished to clarify that he asked Jarema to investigate Marc Seelye's position, not Brannon's position as both county clerk and fiscal officer or and Frykberg's positions as a former county commissioner and zoning administrator for several counties positions as was stated in the Feb. 6 edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

Hey Jane!

Jane

Hey Jane,

I have a concern about my 90-year-old dad and his guns. He is a former police officer and life long hunter. All of our lives he has kept loaded weapons in the house and this has never, ever been an issue as we are all knowledgeable about fire arms. But now he is developing suspicions about people being in his house and has started to carry his loaded pistol around with him and this concerns me. I hate to impose on his rights but I worry all the time that he could hurt himself.

ARE YOU NUTS? Immediately, BUT KINDLY, place your father's weapons in a very safe place that is inaccessible to him! You should continue to be 'knowledgeable about fire arms' and think like a responsible adult. This is NOT a gun control issue this is a competency issue. Your dear, sweet father is "armed and dangerous." He can no longer be trusted to make the good decisions he did previously. You describe a situation waiting for a heart breaking accident.

Your father comes from a generation that respects authority. AFTER you place his guns in a safe place ask a local police officer to visit your dad, in uniform, to reinforce the reasons why there will be no more guns in the house. Get it done. Hey Jane.

Address your questions and comments to "Hey Jane" P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or e-mail to: heyjane@heyjaneonline.com.

Don't be scared, think of eBay as a digital rummage sale

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Hundreds of millions of people use eBay each year to buy and sell everything from movies to homes, but many are timid about using it.

Enough people are timid about using the online auction service that stores have sprung up all over the country, but said one local user, there is nothing to fear.

"It's really good for looking for stuff you don't think anybody else is going to have," said Charlevoix resident Matthew Smith. "If you can't find it anywhere, then eBay is most likely going to have it."

How eBay works: Sellers of nearly anything you can imagine, barring human tissue, explosives and a few other no-nos, place items they want to sell on the site by typing a description and price and including a photo of the item at www.ebay.com; then people worldwide have the chance to view and bid on the item in question. Whoever bids the most money wins.

"I bought a Harry Potter book I was looking for and got it for $8 plus two or three for shipping, and it was one I could not find around here," Smith said. "I looked in Traverse City, I looked around here and couldn't find it, but eBay had it."

Formed in 1995 as AuctionWeb, eBay was given its current name in 1997.

According to www.thebidfloor.com, an informational site dedicated to all things eBay, of the 212 million registered users, the most expensive item sold was a jet for $4.9 million, followed by a Honus Wagner baseball card for $1.65 million.

eBay Motors alone had $11 billion in sales in 2006.

Some of what may be considered the stranger sales on eBay include a human soul, kidney, Bob Dylan's house and a World War II submarine.

While anyone can browse the millions of items on its site, you will need to register to buy and sell merchandise.

Getting started as a buyer only:

- go to www.ebay.com
- click on the "register" link
- complete the form with your address, phone number, etc. — personal information is secure on this site.

Those who wish to sell need to click on the "sell" link and follow the instructions on how to register as a seller, all of which takes merely minutes.

- Those who wish to sell items will need checking account or credit card information handy for verification purposes.
- Begin buying and selling antiques, movies, golf clubs, toys, clothing, baby supplies, cars, houses, rare coins, computer parts and more.

The cost to sell items on the site varies, but a few examples from eBay are: You place a camera for sale with the beginning bid of $60 — eBay's "insertion fee" would be $2; you are also assessed a "final value fee" when the item sells: If your camera sold for $153, then your final value fee would be $6.67.

"I've used it to buy Game Boy (Nintendo) games for my kids for $5 or $6 when I can't find them at Kmart or Wal-Mart," Smith said. "I haven't used it much lately to buy anything, but I go there to see something I have that's collectible and I can see how much people are bidding, so it's good to sort of judge what your collections are worth."

Smith

As with all things, there is an element of risk. And, while eBay claims to do all it can to prevent fraud, there are precautions you can take to ensure the most positive shopping experience possible.

- Check the seller's feedback — feedback is basically a measure of how honest and efficient you are. A higher number and better rating generally denote someone who is safe to buy from.
- Leave honest feedback so others will know what kind of an eBay member they are dealing with.
- Keep contact information on the seller/buyer in case a problem arises.
- Try to resolve any issues with the seller/buyer before leaving poor feedback as feedback cannot be removed and false information could unfairly harm an eBay member's reputation.

"Make sure you read the fine print and description of the item you're looking at," Smith said. "I've had problems in the past, accidental I'm sure, but I had it where I never received it (an item upon which he bid) but I kept in touch with the guy and he ... gave me back my money and everything was cool."

He added, "I think there are more positive (aspects) than bad."

Water Works Coaltion meeting planned

MEETING

ter, specifically the Great Lakes, have become such a "hot topic" lately, largely due to decreasing water levels, Charlevoix should be up to speed on water related issues, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Director Erin Bemis said.

"There is a lot of (legislative) action going on right now in terms of water and lake levels and our Chamber Alliance (the Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance) is very concerned with those issues," Bemis said.

The newest addition to the five-member Alliance, Charlevoix joins Cadillac, Gaylord/Otsego, Petoskey and Traverse City in a variety of endeavors, including those related to water legislation. While not a lot of information has been distributed locally as of yet — "We'll all be learning this together," Bemis said — Friday's meeting, to begin at 11:30 a.m. in the downstairs room of the Weathervane restaurant, will be a place to start. Sponsored jointly by the Charlevoix and Petoskey chambers, the event was designed for chamber members but is open to anyone with an interest in the topic.

Bemis said those interested should call the Chamber — 547-2101 — to RSVP a spot.

The residents have spoken: Charlevoix's East Park will continue to be known as East Park.

The public hearing held last night to discuss the possibility of renaming what will be a newly renovated city park this summer was called in part because the construction project essentially brings together two former parks— East Park and Chamber Park — and a decision was needed to choose a name for the area, Mayor Norman Carlson said. The construction specifications removed Mason Street, which divided the two parks prior to the project, he noted.

Overwhelming response from the approximately 25 people who attended the hearing as well as written and verbal comments provided to city staff, Carlson and city council members supported maintaining the East Park designation.

"I've been stopped at the grocery store, I've been approached at church and other events and my phone has been ringing off the hook, and I have not heard anything but leave the name along," councilman Gabe Campbell said.

While Carlson noted a number of reasons the issue was raised — to avoid confusion with East Park of Bay Harbor, to promote events and boost tourism dollars in downtown and near the park and to provide a "more site-specific name"— he also recognized reasons not to change the name, which also involved avoiding confusion.

"People are used to it (East Park)," he said, adding a com-

His food distribution business, which helps put local food and processed product on shelves throughout northern Michigan, has enjoyed quick, stong growth since its birth last spring.

Local business, local product

BY ERICA GOFF

What is grown in northern Michigan is sold in northern Michigan.

That is the driving force behind Charlevoix resident Eric Hahn's new business, Cherry Capital Foods. Helping local growers and food processors distribute and sell product in the northwest Michigan area is the name of the game for Hahn, whose endeavor began with a simple idea less than one year ago.

"I was one man with a van and a plan," Hahn said.

Now he is one man with two vans, two employees, more to come and an even bigger plan. He is working with more than 100 growers, distributing to more than 160 customers and has no intention of slowing down. Keeping the economic impact of one of Michigan's strongest resources — agriculture— local is his goal.

"We want to keep the money here in our local community," he said.

Hahn's experience in market distribution was gained largely during his time as a product representative for a company out of Detroit. He handled the northern Michigan accounts for the firm, selling products to restaurants, retailers and grocers. About four years ago, he started "dabbling" in local distribution, he said, acting as the go-between for growers and suppliers such as Friske's Market and area restaurants. Doing the work on a "case-by-case basis," Hahn, said, he realized he was on to something.

"I could tell where the market demand structure was, who was willing to buy local, and how much of a market we had," he said.

Then last spring, about a month before asparagus season — an important time for many Michigan farmers — the company from Detroit Hahn was working with decided not to work with local asparagus growers. The decision put added strain on an already heavily-

Eric Hahn of Charlevoix stands in front of a cash-and-carry display in his Cherry Capital Foods, Inc. warehouse in Traverse City. His food distribution business, which helps put local food and processed product on shelves throughout northern Michigan, has enjoyed quick, stong growth since its birth last spring.

Local business, local product

BY ERICA GOFF

What is grown in northern Michigan is sold in northern Michigan.

That is the driving force behind Charlevoix resident Eric Hahn's new business, Cherry Capital Foods. Helping local growers and food processors distribute and sell product in the northwest Michigan area is the name of the game for Hahn, whose endeavor began with a simple idea less than one year ago:

"I was one man with a van and a plan," Hahn said.

Now he is one man with two vans, two employees, more to come and an even bigger plan. He is working with more than 100 growers, distributing to more than 160 customers and has no intention of slowing down. Keeping the economic impact of one of Michigan's strongest resources — agriculture— local is his goal.

"We want to keep the money here in our local community," he said.

Hahn's experience in market distribution was gained largely during his time as a product representative for a company out of Detroit. He handled the northern Michigan accounts for the firm, selling products to restaurants, retailers and grocers. About four years ago, he started "dabbling" in local distribution, he said, acting as the go-between for growers and suppliers such as Friske's Market and area restaurants. Doing the work on a "case-by-case basis," Hahn, said, he realized he was on to something.

"I could tell where the market demand structure was, who was willing to buy local, and how much of a market we had," he said.

Then last spring, about a month before asparagus season — an important time for many Michigan farmers — the company from Detroit Hahn was working with decided not to work with local asparagus growers. The decision put added strain on an already heavily-

Teens injured in crash

A two-vehicle crash in Charlevoix County last Friday left two area teens hospitalized.

Speed was said to be the cause of the crash, which occurred around 3 p.m. Friday, Feb. 29 at Marion Center just north of Vernida. The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office stated the crash occurred when Emilee Jo Colvin, 18, lost control of her vehicle, crossing the center line into the path of an oncoming car driven by Joseph Forrest Seidel, 49. The high impact collision left Seidel dazed, authorities said, but he called 9-1-1 and rendered aid to those injured until rescue workers arrived.

All three occupants in Colvin's car— Hannah Megan Bradley, 16, Lillian Jean Left, 16, and Colvin— were injured. Bradley and Left were hospitalized after rescue workers from the Sheriff's Office, Charlevoix Fire and EMS worked to free them from the vehicle. Colvin was treated and released with minor cuts and bruises.

member Denny Way. "Planning commission members will now formulate questions they might have for the applicant and opposition group and try and get some answers to those so we're ready to go."

He added, "It was informative. Both sides laid out their arguments in detail and we listened to all the comments from the public, which were very good, and we'll take that information along with the answers to our questions before deliberating."

Norwood resident and member of the Wynkoop mine opposition group Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety Bill Gnodtke said his biggest disappointment was the township's refusal to release documents under the Freedom of Information Act by the hearing date.

"Five minutes before the deadline there was a telephone call that they (Norwood Township officials) were requesting a 10-day extension," he said. "Some of the information requested was crucial to the application and because we were never able to get it we were not able to enter it into the hearing."

Gnodtke's other main issue with the SUP hearing was that he had requested the commission table it until a Michigan appeals court has had time to determine whether or not the judge's decision to invalidate Wynkoop's second SUP will be overturned.

"The second lawsuit is still active. Let's say they go through and in April issue another SUP and (NTCHS) go to court, which they will, the township will be potentially litigating the second SUP and the third SUP at the same time," Gnodtke said. "It just doesn't make any sense to me."

Former Norwood Township Supervisor and current applicant for an SUP for his Norwood Limestone Quarry LLC Wynkoop was disappointed with what he felt was a brief amount of time to propose his project.

"I had a lot of information I wanted to get up there and present, but only allowed us 30 minutes to present to the planning commission," he said. "It's not a popularity contest. We submit information to the planning commission so they can do their job. It would have been nice to present all of our documents in public."

Wynkoop was careful to explain that he meant nothing disparaging concerning the commissioners, but wished he could have had closer to an hour and a half.

"We felt that we provided sufficient time considering the amount of material submitted in advance, which the planning commission already had a chance to study," said Planning Commission Chairman Duane Lawton. "I think the hearing went well. Everyone that signed up to speak spoke."

Two members of the public spoke in favor of the operation and nearly a dozen spoke in opposition.

Wynkoop

The Norwood Township Planning Commission members will likely set the official date of the April hearing on Wynkoop's SUP during their 6:30 p.m., March 11 public hearing on the draft master plan at the Charlevoix Public Library.

"I encourage anybody who has input on the master plan to provide it and if they are not able to come and speak briefly, to please send it to us in writing in advance," Lawton said. "I anticipate now it (SUP hearing) will be the second week of April. I don't know how long deliberation will take, so I don't know if we will be able to complete it in one evening or not."

Lawton said that, while the public is welcome, no more public comment will be accepted at the April meeting.

"The parties (Wynkoop and his opposition need to be involved) so we can ask questions," he added.

Aaaahhhh, the strangeness of homebrew

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

They say spring is right around the proverbial corner, but it's snowing as I write this and, like many of you, I am in week three of clinging to life in the fight against this bionic bubonic '08.

Not feeling well enough to hit my usual Saturday hot spot, Handsome Stranger came over to my place for a guitar lesson.

[For those of you who don't listen to the Vic McCarty show, Handsome Stranger is my partner in minor misadventures upon which I am only allowed to report under the condition of strict anonymity. And by the by, he's more strange than handsome, but that's another story for another time.]

Since no illness in existence is a good enough reason to excuse myself from our weekly ritual of scholarly discussions over suds, HS insisted on bringing alcohol with him.

He arrived around nine Saturday evening, and like a skid row denizen, pulled a tall glass bottle from a wrinkled paper sack and set it on the coffee table.

"Get a couple glasses," he ordered.

The clear glass showed a color of liquid which belied the bottle's label. HS informed me that it was not watered-down scotch, but homemade mead.

For those of you who don't spend much time with Vikings, mead is an alcoholic beverage which consists of honey, oranges, spices and 10 percent evil.

The jaundice bathtub brew bubbled and churned, and as if commanding us to drink, the cork popped out on its own.

My eyes darted to and from Stranger and his creation; I couldn't help feeling like Igor to his Dr. Frankenstein.

Apprehensive to ingest the libation, I gave it a sniff.

It was a full-bodied stench, with overtones of oranges and armpits distilled and strained through a ripe gym sock.

Shaking my head in defiance, I gasped for air and flashed back to my teen years with good friend Kent Ludwig and the time we attempted to make our own vodka.

Being adventurous sorts, we forewent the recipe and filled a large plastic ice-cream pail with sliced potatoes, sugar, yeast and water before shoving it lovingly in a drawer under Kent's heated water bed.

For six weeks we watched the sauce grow from bad idea to an affront to nature.

Convinced, for no other reason than moron's intuition, it was ready, Kent pulled the hatch of biohazard out, strained it through his mother's spaghetti colander and poured it into an unsanitary, but empty, liquor bottle.

The smell was indescribable except to say I'm sure I witnessed a maggot fashion a hangman's noose out of dental floss.

Kent took the first sip. His lazy eye straightened and he winced in disgust.

Searching mother Ludwig's cupboard for something to mask the flavor, we found a bottle of mint extract and emptied it into the vodka; It was a move only slightly less effective than dunking horse biscuits in ketchup.

Kent poured the murky sauce over two ice filled tumblers. We stared at each other for a long time before raising the glasses and chugging.

Now I'm not a picky eater by any standard, but what can only be described as minty rancidity was enough to kick start my sympathetic nervous system. My gag reflexes stood on their tippy toes and flipped my stomach the bird—no, both birds.

It's been awhile, but I remember exclaiming something loud and wet like "yurk!" before clapping both hands over my mouth and running from the kitchen.

Hot prickly sweats broke out all over as I besmirched mother Ludwig's carefully decorated bathroom.

In between convulsions I prayed to anyone listening that I would not die or go blind.

Quite sure I'd coughed up the majority of my organs, I wiped my bulging watery eyes and headed for the living room where I spotted Kent on the couch, clutching his stomach and moaning what sounded like an old time gospel hymn.

Nausea soon turned to intestinal distress as the demon brew sauntered through our lower intestines clad in golf cleats for the following two days.

HS's request for drink glasses awakened me from my day terror and I obliged, returning from the kitchen with one cup. He took a nip for himself and then pushed the issue no further.

Anyone interested in a full fifth of homemade mead can contact me at the office. You must be 21 and willing to sign a waiver.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I recently entered the Friske Orchard Cherry Recipe Contest. I didn't have to think twice about entering. I've been cooking and creating culinary concoctions since the age of five with my first Easy Bake oven. It's amazing how much heat a 60 watt electric bulb can emanate. When I was older I joined the Girl Scouts but I was only interested in the cook outs. I couldn't wait until we had a campout so I could bake a cake in a coffee can on a charcoal grill or wrap biscuit dough carefully around a hotdog on a stick, watching it slowly plump to perfection.

Cooking for me has been a way of expressing love and care for others. During my teen years, mom was quick to use the verbiage: "the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach" and I took her at her word. While most of my dates in high school expected we'd head to River Rouge for the 'submarine races' or watch the planes land at Metro Airport, I'd invite them into the family kitchen and proceed to make a meal. Word spread and soon there would be three or four young men at the front door asking to see me and dad would proceed to follow them into our kitchen.

My unspoken oath is; "Whenever two or more gather together food shall be present." The renewal of old friendships and solidifying new ones is centered on eating out or eating in, or stopping for coffee and dessert. This nourishment is not only for the body but also for the soul. Some of us long for comfort food. Items mom used to cook which can stir up fond memories whether you are nine or ninety-nine. The aroma of onions and garlic cooking in olive oil in a hot cast iron skillet can whet the appetite of those who enjoy plain home cooked food as well as the gourmet. Who wouldn't want to come home to the smell of freshly baked bread or brownies? The aromas emanating from a kitchen can quickly conjure up memories of the past and give us a sense of someone caring about us.

Cooking takes in so many of our senses. First the aroma, then the site, followed by taste and if its finger food it involves the sense of touch as well.

With the advent of the Cooking Channel, we are exposed to a variety of cooking methods and creating flavors that seem endless. I grew up watching Julia Child and the Galloping Gourmet while most of my friends were glued to American Bandstand. Yes, I admit I am a cooking nerd but a happy one. I've heard you can't trust a skinny chef, but that's not true. Some of us have higher metabolisms and we dance around our kitchen a lot. Did I mention wine and music also play a part in cooking?

Never assume that if a woman loves to cook her spouse or significant other enjoys the same. My husband repairs computers and I can only turn one on and type this article. I may be in luck as I do believe they have started relating computers to cooking. Recently the bank told me I couldn't get on line with my account because I had used up all my 'cookies'. It has something to do with security. As the patient young man tried to explain it, all I could think about was chocolate chips. When someone asks my husband if he cooks his response is, "I can burn water; my idea of cooking is buttering toast". I think it's safer we have different interests in our home.

To my fellow contestants; I wish you well in your future endeavors. I am looking forward to next year's contest and the fun and camaraderie that come with it. If you are ever in our neck of the woods and the aroma wafting outdoors is reminiscent of mom's or grandmas, do stop in for a spell. The Kindergarten rule of sharing is well respected by this cook.

LETTERS to the editor

CONFLICT EXISTS

Editor:

The erroneous headline, "Attorney General says 'no conflict' for local officials" makes it clear that neither the Courier staff reporter, or the Prosecuting Attorney read the Attorney General's letter carefully.

Regarding Political Activities by Public Employees: Chief General Attorney Carol Isaacs writes, "Section 3(2) of the Political Activities by Public Employees Act, MCL 15.403(2) states the following general prohibition; "[A] public employee of a unit of local government... who is elected to an office within that unit of local government...shall resign or may be granted a leave of absence from his employment during his elected term... While it would be anticipated that a newly elected drain commissioner would, in compliance with MCL 15.403(2), either resign his position as the county's soil erosion officer in the county's building department or take a leave of absence, it is also reasonable to recognize that the county board of commissioners could, in its discretion, assign the role of soil erosion officer to the county drain commissioner as is done in approximately 25% of Michigan counties..." This has not been done. Marc Seelye continues to be a $200 a month elected Drain Commissioner and a $34,000 plus benefits employee (Soil Erosion Officer) of Charlevoix County through the building department. This is a blatant violation of the law.

Regarding Incompatible Offices: Chief General Carol Isaacs writes, "However, it is noted that the storm water control ordinance in Charlevoix County assigns the drain commissioner to a county storm water appeals board that reviews the decisions of the soil erosion officer on appeal. If that provision is included in the county ordinance, the two positions are incompatible ..." This is the current situation.

Marc Seelye deserves to draw a fair and legal salary as the elected Charlevoix Drain Commissioner. It is a matter of a simple resolution by the Charlevoix County Commissioners to make the Office of the Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner the County Enforcing Agency for Soil Erosion. Time and again, Attorney Generals have upheld these laws. It is time for Charlevoix County to honor the law

NEW NAME FOR EAST PARK

Editor:

According to a recent front page article in the Courier the city fathers are requesting input from citizens regarding the re-naming of "EAST" park. I should like to take advantage of this excellent opportunity and offer my suggestion based on these two factors. 1: You have a beautiful harbor. 2: You have a beautiful park. Why then not name it "HARBOR PARK." I thought about "MARINA PARK" however there are other parks near marinas on Lake Charlevoix that might confuse new comers to the area. Were it to be named after a "group" i.e. "Mariner's Park," those folks that are not mariners might feel they were not included in the process or perhaps the park is there for summer transit and local boaters. I can tell you without reservation that the former mayor Robert Bridge would most certainly have approved of allowing the citizens to name their park. To Mayor Carlson, the council members, and all the folks that have had a hand in the development of this project ... y'all can stand proud!

NAME IT HARBOR PARK

Editor:

Although we are at the moment spending time in Florida, we none the less remain informed and interested in the issues being debated back home in our beloved City of Charlevoix. We have been aware for some time now that there was interest in re-naming the rebuilt and remodeled East Park. We have read and heard about several different possibilities for a new name. But we want to go on record as being solidly in favor of calling it "Harbor Park." In our opinion, this would be the most appropriate name. Because, on the one hand, it is facing an incredibly beautiful "Harbor" as well as being an impressive and glorious "Park." We are looking forward to seeing the completed project when we get back home in the spring.

Youth arrested for online threat

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

A former Charlevoix Middle School student is in police custody, charged with a felony, following reports of a threat against another student last week, Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said.

Given the nature of online chatter and seemingly ever-increasing violence among youth, Doan said it is important to take every mention of violence, regardless of perceived threat level, very seriously.

"We are not going to take these things for granted. We will take every report seriously, and we took this report very seriously," he said.

Charlevoix Police received a report of a threat made by an East Jordan youth, a former Charlevoix Middle School student, against a current local student via the Internet. Doan said the information was provided to another current student, and was passed on to school staff, who then notified police "late in the afternoon" last Thursday (Feb. 28.) Police "did everything we could as quickly as we could," Doan said, interviewing students prior to the end of the school day and subsequently approaching the suspect. Police, assisted by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office during the investigation, determined there was enough evidence to detain the suspect in a youth detention center.

The initial charge was a felony, Doan reported.

Doan warned of the importance of immediate action regarding threat reports. He encouraged students, staff and parents to react immediately when confronted with any mention of threat regardless of how high or low they believe that threat level to be.

"As we understand it, this information was going around the student body for sometime before it was brought to the attention of the staff," Doan said. "You just never know (what could happen) so you shouldn't take for granted that it is not a real threat."

Police obtained a search warrant and have seized the suspect's computer. Doan said there will be a forensic examination done on the equipment but "that will take sometime."

Endless possibilities.

Conference cares for caregivers

Courtesy photo

Vi Sattlemeier poses with her husband Gordon in the family room of their Petoskey home. Vi has been the primary caregiver for Gordon for several years.

Caring for a loved one who is chronically ill, disabled or dying can be profoundly isolating and can wear people down, both physically and emotionally. Yet, an estimated 22 million adults provide care in their homes for loved ones. Family members provide 80 percent of all care received by older Americans. Forty percent of family caregivers are employed and, in addition to their jobs, spend an estimated 47 hours a week on care giving. Caregiver burnout is an all-too real problem because many people don't know where to go or what to do when they need help.

The Friendship Centers (Council on Aging) of Emmet County are collaborating with the Charlevoix Commission on Aging; Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, The Living Room Adult Day Services, Harbor Home Care and Independence Village to present a caregiver event for people who are caring for someone who is disabled, has dementia or a terminal illness. This free event is designed as a fun, relaxing and informative day away for caregivers.

Conference keynote speaker this year will be State Representative Gary McDowell who will address legislation affecting health care costs and how to be proactive in fighting for issues which affect those persons who are being cared for at home. Also, Amy & Gerald Throop will share their caregiver experiences. The Throops have written a book, "Living with Lewy's: Empowering Today's Dementia Caregiver", which is scheduled to be released this spring.

Chair massages, paraffin hand waxes and general pampering will be provided to participants. Lunch will be provided.

The Care for the Caregiver Conference will be held at the Friendship Center in Petoskey from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, March 15. Respite care will be provided on the day of the conference by request. Registration is requested by March 10. For more information and to register, contact the Friendship Center at 347-3211.

The Charlevoix High School band, led by director Jayne Bennett, performs at the MSBOA District Band Festival held March 1.

CHS Band success at festival

Once again, the Charlevoix Band brought home straight ones at the MSBOA District Band Festival. This time it was the high school band who received all A's and straight ones at the band festival.

"The students did a beautiful job performing their music. I was very proud of their performance," said director Jayne Bennett.

Judges comments included "Gorgeous sonorities," "Fantastic teaching with detailed instruction on every aspect of performance," "The nuances and exchanges of phrases from section to section was masterful. I have to say, this was the most versatile musical group that I have heard in a long time." "It was a joy to hear this band."

All soloists received "Bravo!" for their wonderful performances. Both the High School and Middle School Bands now qualify for the State Band Festival which takes place the first weekend of May. Congratulations to another fine group of musicians from Charlevoix High School.

Federal housing funds received

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

The 30 percent increase in federal funds offered through the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program is a blessing and a curse, Char-Em United Way Director Martha Lancaster said, because while the increase is needed, it represents a worsening economic scenario in the county.

"It is based on unemployment rates, so this increase in allocated funds means we're hurting," she said.

Still the $27,315 will help individuals and families in Charlevoix County with food, shelter and utility expense needs during a time they need it most.

"With the economy in the state it is, more people need help with housing, utility payments and food, and this program puts those funds in the hands of those who need them most," she said.

Emmet County was awarded $40,627.

Through the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program, these federal funds are allocated throughout the country based on decisions made by the National Board, chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, with representatives from various other human service agencies such as the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, United Jewish Communities, Catholic Charities USA, National Council of the Churches of Christ and the United Way of America. A local board in each area that receives funds then distributes the awarded funds to local programs. That board is made of local representatives from the Char-Em United Way, the local Salvation Army and Red Cross agencies, Catholic Human Services, Community Foundations, local churches, Temple B'nai Israel, the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawas, the Department of Human Services, local governments and a representative of the homeless population.

Lancaster said the local group is headed by United Way, who, under strict federal guidelines, acts as administrator of the federal funds. The board is currently soliciting applications for grant funding to be awarded to programs within area agencies.

"Agencies apply for funds and use the money for programs that directly impacts those in need of these services," she explained.

According to national guidelines, agencies chosen to receive funds must: Be private, voluntary non-profits or units of government; have an accounting system; practice non-discrimination; have demonstrated the ability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs; and if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board.

In the past, including last year, funds have been awarded to the Women's Resource Center, the Salvation Army, the Manna Project, St. Francis Church, Brother Dan's Food pantry, Care and Share, Charlevoix Community Pantry, SDA Community Services Center and Good Samaritan Family Services.

Public or private voluntary agencies interested in applying for Emergency Food and Shelter Program funds must contact Lancaster at the Char-Em United Way, P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey, MI, 49770. Or call (231) 487-4006 or e-mail charemuw@sbcglobal.net. The deadline for applications is 5 p.m. March 14

County nixes workplace smoking ban

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County's workplace smoking ban is no more.

Citing distaste for excessive government control and hoping to avoid overstepping existing state laws, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners repealed the regulation with an unanimous Wednesday, Feb. 27 vote.

"My bottom line is: Were do we draw the line for control?," said Chairman of the Board and District Two Charlevoix County Commissioner Chris Christensen. "There were no citations written for it and business owners were clamoring about having it removed."

He added, "We were against it because it was excessive control (by) government."

The motion to rescind the regulation, originally levied in 2005 to prevent smoking in local businesses excluding bars and restaurants, was made by District Five County Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt.

"I don't like the idea of the little old health department creating a law that supersedes state law," Drebenstedt said. "To me, it's sort of like if I'm a GM (General Motors) man and I'm going to make a law that says you can't buy a Ford."

Christensen

He added, "We cannot stop people from having their own little vices. I think we've got enough out there telling people in the public what not to do without making another law"

But, former Charlevoix County Commissioner Connie Saltonstall does not see it that way.

"I think it's very unfortunate," Saltonstall said. "Secondhand smoke is proven to be a medical health hazard, and for these commissioners to think that it's more important to give people the right to smoke than to protect the health of the citizens of Charlevoix County."

She added, "I think it is deplorable."

Christensen would not draw a direct correlation between the commission's decision to rescind the regulation and the recent Michigan Supreme Court decision to read briefs on a lawsuit filed by several county men against the local health department over the smoke ban.

"In the same regard, if the Supreme Court is looking at it, it might warrant a look from other counties as well," he said. "If this issue would have been a slam-dunk in the first place, the old commission would not have voted 3 to 3 to rescind it."

And besides, Christensen added, "Why have laws on the books that are not enforceable or not effective?"

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney and board of commissioner's civil council John Jarema said the workplace smoking ban still stands for the other three counties in the four-county purview of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency: Antrim, Emmet and Otsego.

"Because our county passed it in two resolutions ... the resolution stands in the other counties until such time that they would, if they choose, vote to rescind it," he said.

Jarema said not once in the duration of the smoke ban did he see any cases for prosecution regarding smoke ban scofflaws.

"I think this is a necessary health regulation and it's happening all over the country," Saltonstall said. "It's an issue where someone's poor choice can impact someone else's health; just like you're not allowed to drink and drive because you can hurt someone else."

Charlevoix native earns international honor

Diving. That is all Norman Ketchman ever wanted to do

After graduating from Charlevoix High School in the late 1950s, he initiated what would become a nearly 40-year career, and received international recognition for his work in January when he was inducted into the Association of Diving Contractors International Commercial Diving Hall of Fame

"This really meant a lot I kept right on diving (into my 50s) partially because it was all I knew," Ketchman said of his diving career.

Currently a resident of Stevensville, Mich., Ketchman and his wife, Joyce, own a summer home in Charlevoix and maintain contacts to his hometown Ketchman received his honor at the Underwater Intervention Awards dinner held in New Orleans Jan. 29, accepting the award from some of the most involved and prestigious members of the commercial diving profession, including fellow founders of World Wide Divers Association Johnny Johnson and Mike Hughes.

Ketchman's career essentially began when he attended the School of Deep Sea Diving in the L.A Harbor in California following his graduation from Charlevoix High School. He learned the "fundamental methods" of diving at the six-month school, he said, then went to work in the Navy Ship Yard for one year Following that stint he worked for Bultema Dock and Dredge in Michigan for about a year, doing mostly pile driving related dives, and in 1960 moved to Louisiana and began diving offshore. Making a name for himself quickly, Ketchman was one of the first in his trade to do mixed gas dives. By 1962 the Shell Oil Company would not hire anyone else to do their critical deep water work.

"When the Blue Water rig (one of the first semi-submersibles working in the deep water Gulf) experienced underwater problems, Shell would actually shut the rig down and wait until Norman (Ketetman) was available to come out rather than have someone else perform the diving," information from the Underwater Intervention Committee stated.

Ketchman said the excitement of travel and the freedom of "being my own boss" were among the major appeals for diving work. He shared some fond memories he has of his career, including the time he was nearly abandoned in Cuba.

"We had been doing some work in Venezuela and were on our way home when the plane stopped in Cuba for what they said was to be a 15-minute stop," Ketchman recalled

A fellow diver and friend decided he wanted to "grab some souvenirs," Ketchman said, and the two got off the plane. A few minutes later they were running down the runway chasing the plane, which eventually stopped for them and let them back on.

"We found out later the United States had severed ties with Cuba that day. We could still be in prison!" he joked Ketchman also got the opportunity to be one of few divers to walk— about 200 feet underwater— from St. Ignace to Mackinaw City doing inspection work on the Mackinac Bridge. Another accomplishment is that he made the first helium-oxygen dive in the Gulf of Mexico to a record depth of 335 feet, opening the door to deep water oil exploration in the Gulf.

Giving back to his profession, Ketchman was also one of five original founders of the World Wide Divers that became Oceaneering International, Inc. a leading provider of underwater services and a New York Stock Exchange company. He continued his work for several years after that as a premier deep water diver, eventually moving back to Michigan, where he continues to serve as a consultant on diving operations around the world.

The Underwater Intervention Committee noted that underwater Ketchman could "do it all," exhibiting a "quiet courage and determination that made him a leader of any diving operation he participated in."

School board slots at NWA

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

With the deadline to file for three positions on the Northwest Academy Schools Board of Education on April 15, two of three former board members intend to run again

While the community does not have the chance to vote on who will be seated on the board, there is still a strict selection process involving Northwest's charter holder Saginaw Valley State University

Board president Joe Seidel and treasurer DJ Way have both filed to run, while board member Rick Beemon has not

"I have served on the board for three years coming up in June," Seidel said "I enjoy it. It's fun and it's interesting and I get to see a positive impact or effect of whatever we are able to do through the board"

He added "You don't have to be connected in any way with the school but if you have a general interest in education and young people it's a great opportunity and a wonderful idea"

Way said he enjoys working with his fellow board members because they are "very community minded" people

"It is just a darn good group of people who are extremely committed to kids," he said "We want to grow the school and are looking at some of the numbers and building issues which would arise if we grow the numbers"

Way added, "I have children there (at Northwest) and I'm extremely happy"

Beemon who has served two and a half years on the board, responding to questions via e-mail, feels it is time to give others the chance to serve

"Service on the board is giving back to the community and overseeing what is probably one of the most important things that we contribute to the future, a well educated populace," he stated "I think everyone should get an opportunity to serve on a board such as this, and as there are willing candidates waiting, I'm not going to serve another term"

Beemon wrote that interested parties should "go for it" if they are on the proverbial fence about whether to file for the office

"The toughest part (of a board member's duty) is having to deal with students' expulsions," he stated "I think the main issue facing schools is funding As a society we say that education is the most important thing for our future, but our money is not where our mouth is"

He further stated, "As far as goals accomplished, the board I serve on has the school on a sound financial footing, and in good shape for future improvements"

Applications for the three year board positions can be obtained and filed by visiting Northwest Academy at 115 West Hurlbut St in Charlevoix

Applicants can be from any of the following counties Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmett

Local girl scout still committed after 12 years

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Sometimes numbers can tell a story. Charlevoix High School junior Alicia Giudice could tell a story about herself using a variety of numbers.

12- years of commitment to the Girl Scouts of America

400- Girl Scout events attended

126- Junior Girl Scout badges earned

670- boxes of cookies sold last year alone

4,000- hours of community service completed — so far

"She got involved in kindergarten and has been going ever since," Alicia's mother, Karen Giudice, said of her daughter's commitment to the organization.

Karen attended that very first Girl Scout meeting with her daughter— the family then lived in Berrien County in southern Michigan— and both became hooked. When Alicia was in second grade the Giudices moved north to the Charlevoix area and maintained their interest in the Scouts, Alicia as a member and Karen as a leader. Since that time Alicia has sold countless cookies, completed a wide array of community service projects, earned numerous badges and, she said, learned a number of valuable lessons.

"This really helps prepare you (for college and life)," she said.

Alicia's hard work has paid off in a number of ways, not the least of which came in the form of a very special honor. Being chosen for the Governor's Honor Guard, an involvement that will send her to Mackinac Island in July as one of few scouts from the state to participate in a week-long service camp.

"It is the elite of the Girl Scouts. You learn leadership skills, education, and skills with the flag," Alicia said.

She is the only Charlevoix area Girl Scout chosen through the application process to serve on the Governor's Honor Guard, and considers it "quite an honor." This will be her third year attending the camp, and she is currently working hard on her annual cookie sale to help fund her trip.

"My goal this year is to sell 700 boxes of cookies," she said, noting while that is a lot of cookies, she came close to that — more than 670 boxes sold— last year. The funds will also help fund a trip to Chicago with her local troop.

Another goal Alicia has set for herself is to earn her Gold Award, an honor similar to the Boy Scout's Eagle Scout Award, and is planning a project that will benefit the Charlevoix community per award requirements. Alicia intends to develop a literacy program, and is working on details for that project now. She has already earned her Bronze Award, which helps her troop, during Junior Scouts, and her Silver Award, which helps anyone, during Cadets.

As a veteran Girl Scout, Alicia has spent time giving back to the organization and helping guide young Girl Scouts. She is a a Senior Girl Scout Troop Assistant with the Brownie Troop #255 and Junior Girl Scout Troops #263 and #269 in Charlevoix. In addition to working with the younger scouts, Alicia said sisterhood is one of her favorite parts of Girl Scout involvement.

"When you go (to events such as the camp on Mackinac Island) you get to know a lot of sisters there, and you help each other. You always know someone there will remember you as a Girl Scout Sister and not just a person," she said.

Following her graduation from Charlevoix High School next year, Alicia said she is not sure where she'll attend college, likely somewhere close to the area, but thinks she will study some type of medical profession such as physical therapy. Regardless of what she does, Alicia is sure her experience with the Girl Scouts will help in her future success. Anyone interested in purchasing Girl Scout cookies from Giudice can contact her at 547-0739 or giudicek_chip@yahoo.com.

City Council votes not to change East Park name

PARK

mon response he heard involved the age-old phrase, 'If it's not broke, don't fix it,' a sentiment shared by some audience members.

"This is not broke. East Park is not broken yet," said Charlevoix resident Ken Staley.

Bob Timms also spoke, stating enough time and tax payer money has already been spent on the issue.

"I think people have expressed strongly enough they don't want a change, and it should be left alone," Timms said.

Resident and owner of Charlevoix Camera Marell Staffel told council she did her own "informal poll" of customers, friends and family members, which she said to total about 30 people. Only three said they had no opinion, and the rest "felt very strongly against changing the name."

"I was one of those who feels strongly about it. This (new) park is going to be beautiful, and that construction alone is going to be a big change," she said. "East Park may not be the strongest name, but it is the name of our park."

The decision to stick with East Park was unanimous, following a motion made by council member Lyle Gennett and supported by Jill Picha, despite earlier discussion in the meeting by council regarding a proposal by city clerk Carol Ochs that would allow city residents to vote on the issue. Ochs presented an idea that would establish an "unofficial" election which would have opened up a polling booth in her office for a week to allow registered voters to choose between two or three names, one of which would have been East Park and the other one or two determined by council, to "get public input." She noted the results would be "in now way official" but would provide council an idea of the direction the public wanted to go. She estimated the cost of the effort to be around $2,000.

Campbell and Gennett noted it would be a good way to generate public participation, but others, including council member Dennis Kucina, said it was an unnecessary expense.

"If we're operating on a tight budget already, why spend more? This (issue) has been in the papers, its been on the radio, and we've called this public hearing to allow people to have their input," he said. "This (making these decisions) is what we've been elected for. Let's see what people have to say."

One comment from the public, given by resident Donald Brown on behalf of summer resident E.M. Bridge, supported choosing the name Harbor Park, but the overwhelming response and final decision remained East Park.

Council continues to seek public input on issues involving the park, asking whether dogs should be allowed in the park when evnts are not taking place. The public hearing regarding that issue will be held at 7 p.m. in City Hall Chambers March 17.

Program brings banners, dollars to Charlevoix Schools

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

> "We're trying to be as creative as possible in generating revenue in these tough economic times."
> Chet Janik
> CHARLEVOIX SUPERINTENDENT

Charlevoix Public Schools are using banners sporting inspirational messages hoping to earn money while inspiring students.

Projecting tentative earnings of between $10,000 and $15,000 per school year, school administration officials say the program is already a success.

"The feedback I'm getting so far has been fairly positive," said Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik. "We're trying to be as creative as possible in generating revenue in these tough economic times."

Banners, created by Britten Banner of Traverse City, come in several sizes including four feet by 20 feet and four feet by 10 feet, and cost approximately $1,500 per sponsor per semester.

Between the four at Charlevoix Middle School and the 11 at Charlevoix High School, there are 15 banners currently erected with commitments for five more yet to be installed.

"We don't want it to get too cluttered," said Britten Banner market leader Keith Mahoney. "Our goal is that the school looks better after the banners are up than before."

He added, "We don't want to overwhelm them. We think if we get 20 to 25 at the high school and maybe another six at the middle school."

The district, which receives approximately 30 to 40 percent of the revenue generated by the banners, will likely see the profit divided thusly: 45 percent allocated to high school athletics; 15 percent allocated to middle school athletics; 40 percent will be directed to a yet-to-be-determined source.

Inspirational quotes already lining the high school gymnasium include the words "Opportunity is missed by most people because it is dressed in overalls and looks like work," from Thomas Edison and "You just can't beat the person who never gives up," fom Babe Ruth.

"The biggest part of this is using quotes from successful people to motivate the students and impart some of that wisdom that they might not normally get from Thomas Edison, Abe Lincoln and Tiger Woods," Mahoney said. "The logo of the business that's sponsored gives people the opportunity of being community supporters."

For mure information on how to sponsor your own banner, call (231) 437-0975 or e-mail Mahoney at kmahoney@brittenbanners.com.

How sweet it is: local syrup producers awarded

Local syrup producers Jan and Art Currey stand with their awards presented by the Michigan Maple Syrup Association at a recent competition.

Mark Williamson is seen here in this circa 1948 photograph. Williamson, Art Currey's maternal grandfather gathers sap from maple trees and pours it into containers headed via wagon for the processing house where the sap is boiled until reduced to a syrup.

One local syrup company has been awarded the top honor bestowed by the Michigan Maple Syrup Association.

While the Currey family has been making maple syrup for decades, this is the first award they have won official accolades for the product.

"It's an honor to have won against the seasoned veterans of the industry," said Art Currey. "I guess it's a result of a lot of good mentoring and coaching from other producers."

Art and his wife Jan have been making the syrup commercially for two years, but the family has been producing their own sweet maple sap for 32 years total.

"I'm just pleased that our product has been recognized for the hard work my husband and I have put into the operation," Jan said. "We are the fifth generation of Curreys to make this syrup and I'm sure Art's grandfather and great grandfather would be honored."

More than 30 of 100 farms represented at the annual gathering in Clare, where the syrup mavens were honored, competed against the Currey's product.

The syrups were judged for color, flavor, density and how well it represented maple syrup in general.

Not only did the Curreys win best of pure maple syrup, one of several categories including best maple cream and best maple candy, they won best in show for having the best overall maple product.

The Curreys said they knew their product would be a contender from the start.

"When Art made this syrup last spring, he said, 'We ought to bottle that and put a number on it and save it. I think that's the best maple syrup I've ever made,'" Jan said. "The rest of our maple syrup is still very good, but this was one of those days with perfect conditions to make maple syrup, so it's sort of a luck thing."

Perfect conditions, Art added, "Would be a day when the temperature goes down to 27 the night before and the sun comes out right first thing in the morning and the temperature rises to 40 degrees by 10 a.m. and then it doesn't get any warmer and stays there with a blue sky and not a lot of wind."

Parenting conference brings child expert to area

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

> What: 'If I Only Had A Brain' parenting workshop
> When: March 8
> Where: the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix
> To register: call (231) 582-8070

Helping parents parent is the focus of the free workshop, organized by a collaboration of area agencies, which will bring renowned speaker Dr. Wil Blechman to Charlevoix March 8.

Former president of Kiwanis International, Blechman will present his discussion, "If I Only Had a Brain," at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, beginning at 10 a.m. Inviting parents to discuss various issues and learn about child brain development from an expert on the subject is the purpose of the event, local organizers said.

"One of the important things is to understand how the neurons affect how the brain develops," Blechman said.

Not a neurologist, physician or psychologist, Blechman said he became "exceptionally interested" in the area of early child brain development during his years as president of Kiwanis International in the 1990s. Hoping to develop programs to assist middle school children, Blechman said he was informed by a juvenile judge that if he waited until children were of middle school age to help with behavioral problems he would be "too late." He subsequently began his own research on the subject and found the suggestion to be true.

"We are not doing enough right now in terms of addressing childhood development," Blechman said.

Noting research regarding brain development and psychological issues in children at infant stages— one researcher has documented severe depression in a six-month old child— Blechman said young children are "a silent group" that need to be represented. Studying and understanding the complex interplay of genetic and environmental factors— i.e. the ever-present 'nature vs. nurture' discussion regarding child development— will be a major focus of Blechman's presentation. He said he will also offer information to parents regarding what they can do to assure healthy development of their children. Blechman noted the earlier brain development is addressed, the better.

"This is a pro-active approach (to guiding brain development.) The brain is plastic, and it is the most plastic and the most susceptible to assistance and readjustment at an early age, preferably under five years," he said, noting the approach should be considered an investment, not an expense.

"By addressing these issues early on, you could save a lot of resources later," he said.

Blechman said he will also dispel some common parenting myths, such as babies cannot learn during infancy. Babies are in fact ready and willing to begin learning as soon as they are born. Another myth involves picking up a crying baby: Parents often believe it is bad to try to stop a baby from crying but "that is simply not true."

Eliminating risk factors such as illness, poverty, child abuse and many others can create a different brain than maintaining an environment with such risks, Blechman noted, and he will discuss these and other issues related to environment.

The conference is sponsored by the Great Start Collaborative and Parent Coalition of Charlevoix, Emmet and Northern Antrim counties, with support from the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, Charleovix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Child Abuse Council of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency-Head Start/Early Head Start, and the Kiwanis Clubs of Boyne City, Charlevoix and Petoskey.

An additional workshop will be held at the church March 7 for business and education professionals. To register for either workshop call (231)582-8070.

Winter weather hurts blood drives

American Red Cross urges blood donors to make or keep appointments

Snow and poor road conditions have forced the American Red Cross to cancel another American Red Cross blood drive today.

The shutdown, Red Cross officials say, mean the loss of 60 blood donations for today alone. Since the end of January, 19 blood drives have canceled because of weather, amounting to the loss of 950 blood donations. At drives remaining open, turnout has been low as donors struggle with heavy snowfall.

"We rely greatly on schools, businesses, churches and community groups to host blood drives," said Sharon Jaksa, CEO of the Great Lakes Region. "When snow, sleet and ice cause these facilities to shut down, it takes away a valuable opportunity to collect blood."

The loss of donation opportunities can tip the delicate balance of the blood supply during the winter season, a time when donations typically decline. Patients in 127 Michigan hospitals depend on steady and consistent blood donations to ensure a safe and adequate supply for ongoing and emergency medical needs. The Red Cross must collect about 1,600 pints of blood in Michigan each weekday to meet hospital demand.

"It only takes about an hour to donate blood," said Jaksa. "And your single blood donation can help save up to three lives. Please make it a point to give the 'Gift of Life' when you can."

Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good general health. For information on a blood drive near you, call 1-800-GIVE LIFE (1-800-448-3543) or visit www.redcrossmichigan.org.

Lady Rayders fall in regionals

Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine consoles junior KC McCary Thursday late in the Rayders' Class C regional championship game loss to Kingsley.

Charlevoix guard Alyssa Smith (left) drives past a Kingsley player.

GAYLORD — Too many shooters. Too many ball-handlers.

Kingsley had it going on in the Class C girls' basketball regional final at Gaylord on Thursday, knocking off Charlevoix, 63-39.

"They shot the lights out," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "And it wasn't just Ashley Slade. If we concentrated on her, Courtney Stocking made a shot. Then (Brittany Denter) would hit one. It was a barrage of 3s."

Kingsley's fourth 3-pointer of the night, from Slade with 3 minutes to go in the second quarter, put the Stags up 33-12. It was 39-16 at the half and 48-23 after three quarters.

"Charlevoix is a tough defensive team, but it plays right into our style because of our guard play," Kingsley coach Matt Schelich said.

Whereas McBain, which Charlevoix handled in the regional semifinal, 62-57, featured but one ball-handler, Kingsley has myriad.

Chief among was them Natalya Waurzyniak, a little senior but full of moxie and good to the hole; and Slade, a smooth, efficient and unselfish 5-foot-10 junior who got her game-high 17 points within the flow of the offense and without having to dominate the ball.

"(Waurzyniak) did a tremendous job against our pressure," Erskine said.

Stocking scored 14 for Kingsley and Waurzyniak had 10. The Stags, 22-3, were scheduled to play Ishpeming Westwood, 24-0, in a state quarterfinal Tuesday, with the winner advancing to the State Finals at Eastern Michigan University's Convocation Center.

"This is three regionals in a row for us, and that's a big deal," Kingsley coach Matt Schelich. "It's tough when teams are gunning for you. It takes a lot of hard work and effort."

On this night, Charlevoix, 20-3, just didn't have the ammunition.

Rayders bow in semis

GAYLORD — Yes, coach, there's still a place for half-court defense and get-it-to-the-bigs offense.

"It's two different styles," McBain coach Bruce Koopman said. "We want to play a halfcourt game, and Charlevoix wants to get up and down for 32 minutes. It's nice to know our system isn't obsolete."

If anything, McBain looked like the vanguard Wednesday in a Class C boys' basketball regional semifinal at Gaylord High School. Its zone defense stifled Charlevoix on one end, as its guards moved unhindered on the other, and the Ramblers won, 74-56, earning the right to play Harbor Springs for the regional title 7 p.m. Wednesday at Gaylord High School.

McBain is 21-2, while Charlevoix finishes 20-3.

"It was kind of the reverse of last year's game, where we were ahead early and they came back and beat us by nine," Koopman said.

Charlevoix was up, 18-14, after the first quarter. The Rayders took a 31-20 lead with 3 minutes, 32 seconds to play in the half on a bucket from Justin Friske. But McBain went to a zone defense and as it tightened, the junior center's inside opportunities decreased.

Sprinter-fast McBain guard Caleb Sluiter made a baseline shot at the halftime horn to tie the game, 34-34, and from there it was all downhill for the Rayders. They never led again.

"Their zone really plugged up the middle, and in the second half the lid went on the rim for us," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "We couldn't find a perimeter guy to step up and hit the outside shot."

munition.

"I don't know if we were tired from the McBain game or what," Erskine said. "They deserved to win. We got beat by a better team tonight."

Brooke Whittaker led Charlevoix with eight points. Murphy Gillespie scored seven and Meridith Rich and Tammy Potter had six points apiece. Erskine held Becca Madison out of the lineup because of an ankle injury, although she did make a cameo appearance in the fourth quarter.

"You don't want it to come to an end, but we had a great year," said Erskine, who saw the Rayders win Lake Michigan Conference and district titles in his first season. "By the end of the year, we were playing really, really well. I'll miss the seniors, they made me laugh every day. The hardest thing will be getting done with work tomorrow and not having practice to go to."

Against McBain in the semifinal on Tuesday, the senior Desi Faust put down what would prove to be the game-winning shot, a 3-pointer from the right corner for a 58-55 lead.

She hustled back to block a McBain shot. But Janie Geesenian put back an offensive rebound with 40 seconds to go, what would be the Ramblers' last bucket.

Faust made both ends of a one-and-one with 23 seconds to go for a 60-57 lead. Then, after McBain threw the ball away on the other end, Charlevoix's Olivia Catt and Meridith Rich made a free throw apiece in the closing moments for the final margin.

Faust scored a game-high 20 points. She and Catt both hit 3-pointers in the opening 90 seconds of the fourth quarter to get Charlevoix's momentum going. Shauna Spencley also made a crucial 3-pointer, one of her two from downtown, out of a Charlevoix timeout with 2:50 remaining for a 52-51 lead.

There were three lead changes and two ties between then and Faust's final 3-pointer, with Charlevoix's Becca Madison hitting a scoop shot in the lane, and later a free throw.

Spencley, who played a crucial role in Charlevoix's district final win against Traverse City St. Francis, was in foul trouble and eventually fouled out. But that's when the Rayders' depth once again proved the difference.

"Olivia came in and ran the point, and did a tremendous job," Erskine said. "McBain has 10 players, and I'm sure the can play, but we have 15 who can play. It's not the quantity of minutes, it's the quality, and Olivia put in eight quality minutes. Having a fresh point guard ready to go is a real advantage."

Another reserve, Meridith Rich, scored 10 for the Rayders, including a couple first-half layups where she went right at and through McBain's bigger frontcourt.

For McBain, 20-4, Emily Bronkema and Jennifer Brunink both scored 11.

In our democratic society, your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? Cherry Capital puts local foods on shelves strained realm of industry in northern Michigan, and Hahn decided to take things into his own hands. In April 2006 he kicked off his business endeavor, trading in his Volvo for a refrigerated van, and the rest is history. Cherry Capital Foods helps provide and maintain a market for asparagus, apples, cherries, corn, and other locally grown products, as well as locally processed products such as syrup, apple sauce and wine. He has contracts with schools, hospitals, restaurants, grocers, retail markets and more, and plenty of promise for growth.

FOODS

"Our projected growth is expected to double within the next year," he said.

A national radio spot, which aired on National Public Radio in January, gave Hahn a major public relations boost — "My phone has been ringing off the hook since it aired," he said of the feature on his business, available for listening on his website, www.cherrycapitalfoods.com— and contracts may begin to extend outside of the eight-county area he currently focuses on. A newly opened warehouse in Traverse City houses much of the product he helps distribute, and he plans to soon offer product sale from the location. Another personal goal, he said, is to help offer fresh food to customers.

"We are able to offer a fresher, more nutritional product," he said, which has been a boost for his involvement in the school project Farm to School.

"This is a national project offered by the USDA," Hahn explained, which offers funds to school districts that contract with local growers to offer such fresh, local product as part of their school meals.

While Hahn does not yet have a contract with Charlevoix Schools, he hopes to establish a relationship with them, and already works with Traverse City Catholic Schools, a number of colleges and some others in the northern Michigan area.

Giving the farmer an economic boost is another important part of Hahn's business. Providing Fair Market Value for products is something larger distributors are often unable or unwilling to do, giving much less bang for the farmers' buck than is necessary to maintain a strong agricultural industry. Offering Fair Market Value dollars instead of "pennies per pound" will help keep producers' businesses healthy, and keep the product coming.

"We can then faciliate movement of the product from point A to point B, and get Michigan products out on the shelves," he said, adding the recent contract with a vendor out of Chicago will help get Michigan product to southern Michigan and Illinois and further increase market demand.

"I already have producers who have expanded their operations to accommodate the increase this season. That speaks for the success," he said.

While he had high hopes in the beginning, Hahn said he had no idea his business would grow so fast. The demand structure is "far greater than I anticipated on the onset," he said, but he is seeing all the support he needs to continue. He's received commitment from local chefs, grocers, retailers and other customers, and expects the growth to continue. Some plans for the future, he said, is to standardize the distribution packaging — using a single measurement instead of bushels, pecks or barrels— and working with chefs to get some popular menu items which feature local product out on some shelves. For now maintaining partnerships is vital.

"Once you've got a fair amount of growers and chefs willing to work together and all willing to help with the entire structure, you're on your way. Those individuals (growers and retailers) deserve a lot of credit for helping to get this off the ground," Hahn said.

Headed to state

Two Charlevoix High School wrestlers will step onto the biggest stage in their sport this weekend when they compete in the State Individual Tournament beginning Thursday at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Zeke Daman and Mat Golovich, both juniors, are among some 900 of the state's very best high school wrestlers in the tournament.

Daman, who wrestles at 119 pounds, takes a 42-6 record into the tournament, while Mat Golovich, 130, goes in with a 41-9 mark. The Rayders will wrestle in the Division IV event and each of their weight classes comprises 16 wrestlers.

Both Daman and Golovich placed third in their respective weight classes at the individual regional at Rogers City High School to earn a spot at the Palace.

Daman will open against Springport senior Jacob Eagen, who is 49-3. If Daman wins that match, he would face either Jon Hren of Hesperia, a senior with a 42-9 record; or Kevin Vanderpool of Hudson, a junior with a 41-16 mark.

Golovich will open against Addison senior Nate Elston, who is 41-5. If Golovich wins that match, he would face either Carson City Crystal junior Dan Osterman, 48-0, or Mendon senior Justin McClish, 34-12.

If and when a wrestler drops a match, he falls into the wrestleback bracket where he is still eligible for a medal. The top eight wrestlers in each weight class earns a medal.

Rayders lose in semifinal match

BOYS

Charlevoix got a 3-pointer from Nate LaBlance with 1:13 to play in the third, cutting McBain's lead to 52-50, and one more from Thomas Parrish in the fourth, to make it 59-53 with 5:13 left. But the Rayders made only 1-of-7 from behind the arc in the final period, one in which they scored six points.

"Our zone worked, but if they would have made a couple of those 3-pointers, it could have been a totally different game," Koopman said.

Even then, Charlevoix would have had to stop McBain on the other end. That was a tough task, as Sluiter, Jordan Hoekwater and Ethan Sikkema were all capable with the ball in their hands, and had a plethora of bigs go get it to. With leading scorer Josh Eisenga, a 6-foot-7 senior, on the bench with foul trouble, and eventually being disqualified, senior forward Randall Sterk came to the fore and led McBain with 22 points. Hoekwater scored 13.

"They just beat us up inside," Haske said.

For Charlevoix, Friske scored 15 and LaBlance had 10 points.

This was the fifth time in eight years that Charlevoix and McBain have played at the regional level. Charlevoix has won three times, McBain twice.

"Any time you can beat Charlevoix, you have to feel good about it," Koopman said. "We have the utmost respect for them. Keith is the best coach in Northern Michigan. I'm just riding his shirt tail."

"I'm proud to have coached this team," Haske said. "It was another great season of Rayder basketball."

While Monday's mood was somber, the Rayders had plenty of reason to celebrate throughout the season, including on Friday, when they won their ninth district championship in 10 years — a remarkable run, by any standard — with a 64-60 win over Traverse City St. Francis on the Gladiators' home court.

Friske scored 12 of his 15 points in the second half to lead the Rayders, LaBlance also had 15 points, and Wilhelm added 10.

"The Big Grin" boasts big success on hills

A snowboard competition, "The Big Grin," was held at Mt. McSauba Feb. 24, hosted by the City of Charlevoix and sponsored by Go Film Local Productions, Revolution Manufacturing, and Bandits International. Entertainment was provided by Charlie's Root Fusion. At stake was a sponsorship from Revolution Manufacturing, and a new snowboard for the winner. Participants came from all over Michigan. "Smart style" rules applied.

The front hill was magically transformed into a first class terrain park, with elements, or jibs as the snowboarders call them. All the rails and boxes were built by Brennan Stebe of Charlevoix, for his Eagle Project. With the help of Bo Boss and Chuck Meier, jumps were pushed into place and the design for the competition was directed by John Curtis of Go Film Local and Scott Stebe. There were jumps and jibs for all ages and skill levels, as was soon realized on Sunday when the competitors warmed up for the competition.

This event was all about one snowboarder's dream to give back to the ski hill he grew up on. John Curtis had a dream realized: An awesome terrain park on the front hill of McSauba. For some it looked ominous but on Feb. 24 when the riders took to the hill it was apparent the riders all appreciated it and embraced all that was done for them.

Footage from the event will be used in the documentary "The Exposure Project," which is the current film project by GFL.

The winners of the Big grin event are:

First Place: Marc Collier, Marquette and Charlevoix

2nd Place: Colin Campbell, Charlevoix

3rd Place: Shaun Couture, Charlevoix

4th Place: Conner Klooster, Charlevoix

5th Place: Cody Blunt, Mt. Pleasant

6th Place: Zach Merrill, Charlevoix

Best Trick: Kris Keiser, Petoskey

Most extreme: Andrew Mailloux, Charlevoix

Hardest Hit: Jake McLean, Charlevoix

Skier Division: Austen Lobenhertz

Charlevoix Area Hospital expands urgent care services

Urgent Care is staffed by Charlevoix Area Hospital Emergency Department physicians. Pictured, left to right, are Mitchell Carey, MD; Daniel Mann, MD; Melodie Brown, MD; Mark Smith, MD; Dennis Joy, MD; N. Craig Boss, MD; Greg Chupp, MD; Edward Newcomb, MD; and Ryan McConnell, DO.

A bad bump, sprain, fever, or pain can occur anytime. In fact, they seem to happen with greater frequency after business hours, or when the doctor's office is closed.

That's why Charlevoix Area Hospital has expanded its Urgent Care Center hours.

Urgent Care will now be open every day-including weekends and holidays-from 10 am to 8 pm. No appointment is required. Patients can walk in and usually be seen immediately for treatment. Located in the hospital's Emergency Department, Urgent Care is staffed by ER physicians and nurses.

Dennis Joy, MD, Medical Director of the Emergency Department, said the expanded hours are a welcome change that will result in excellent medical care 'round the clock, and better utilization of hospital facilities.

"This will be very convenient for visitors and tourists who require non-emergency care-while, at the same time, providing area residents with an appropriate alternative to the ER," he explained. "As an integral part of our new Emergency Department, Urgent Care puts all of our hospital's medical resources within reach, and ensures patients are seen by our skilled emergency staff."

Joy said many Urgent Care services are covered by health insurance plans, and no one in need of immediate treatment will be turned away.

For more information about Charlevoix Area Hospital Urgent Care, please call Carol Gillespie, RN, Emergency Department Nurse Manager, at (231) 547-4024

A winter view

This view of Round Lake from the north side of Charlevoix taken last week is evidence of the frequent fresh snowfall seen by the region in recent weeks. The National Weather Service in Gaylord is forecasting the chance for snow showers from Wednesday through Saturday with snow stopping Saturday evening for a high around 30 on Sunday.

Tradition thrives in Island Irish celebration

Beaver Island's annual St. Patrick's Day celebration brings crowds to cheer and brave souls to participate in the games, which include a cart race down Main Street (left) and a fish tossing contest. This year's celebration is slated for March 15.

Tradition, tradition, tradition.

That is the force that guides Beaver Island's annual St. Patrick's Day festival, which will return to the island March 15. Fish tossing, tug of war, live entertainment and good old fashioned fun have been part of the celebration for centuries, Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Director Steve West said.

"I don't think the festivities have changed all that much since the beginning," he said.

The games themselves and the families that participate in and watch them have been the same since Irish immigrants arrived on the island in the mid-19th century, West said. The annual celebration of the country's heritage is "strongly rooted in tradition," he added, with many of the island's residents participating as fifth or sixth generation "veterans." One change, he noted, is the welcome issued to non-islanders.

"We've really become fond of inviting others to our celebration and opening up the festival to 'outsiders' (not from the island) to see what we have to offer," West said.

Those 'outsiders' are welcome to learn about the long-standing competition between the Fish Stompers and the Hay Seeders, who battle every year in the Tug of War, one of the popular St. Patrick's Day festival events. West explained most residents belong to or claim one of the two teams, which represent the two original forms of Former county commissioner seeks state seat

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

With much of the nation focused on who the next president will be, it may be easy to forget there are also some upcoming state races.

Charlevoix resident and former county commissioner Connie Saltonstall filed last week to run against Michigan State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Bellaire) for the 105th District which covers Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Otsego counties.

- Age 62
- Party affiliation: Democrat
- Previous political experience: Held seats on the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners
- Work experience: 17 years as a school teacher; 18 years operating a research company
- Platform: Universal health care; renewable energy, job creation, environmental protection

Saltonstall

"I think I am a person who is willing to spend the time to work on the solutions and not get hung up on party politics," Saltonstall said. "I'm going to be working on 105th District issues, and our issues really aren't of a partisan nature. Everybody needs jobs, everybody needs education and everybody needs a healthy environment."

Saltonstall cited the impending closure of Dura, a manufacturing plant in Mancelona, as an example of where government should help retain businesses.

"I think we should see what we can do. If we can't save the plant, we need to at least help these people with retraining for a new job and I think we have to be actively recruiting new businesses to come here," she said. "You don't sit at a desk and say you want someone to take a job, you recruit them. You put an ad in the paper, you make it known you need someone to come to you."

Saltonstall also cited her work in trying to secure funding for Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

"Kevin Elsenheimer two years ago said that maybe he could work on getting the Charlevoix Boyne City Road to be an extension of M-75," she said. "And now two years later he was helpful to arrange a meeting for MDOT to tell us that, no, that is not going to happen."

Norwood officials cry 'foul' over FOIA allegations

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

> "The most straight-forward way to avoid this would be if submissions made to the Planning Commission were provided directly to the other party."
> Duane Lawton
> PLANNING COMMISSION CHAIRMAN

While Norwood resident Bill Gnodtke concluded recently that Norwood officials procrastinated on a FOIA (Freedom of Information Act) request, officials say it just isn't so.

In a March 5 Charlevoix Courier article entitled "Norwood Mine Still in Limbo," Gnodtke was quoted as saying, "Five minutes before the deadline there was a telephone call that they (Norwood Township officials) were requesting a 10-day extension. Some of the information requested was crucial to the application and because we were never able to get it we were not able to enter it into the hearing."

The FOIA request in question was submitted by Norwood resident and Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety (NTCHS) member Marion Shea-Light on Feb. 14 pertaining to a reclamation fund dealing with the Wayne Wynkoop Limestone Mine issue.

NTCHS members hoped to have the information by the Wednesday, Feb. 27 Special Use Permit hearing, but were informed, according to FOIA documents, on Thursday, Feb. 21 that the clerk Chele Cyr was requesting an additional 10-day extension per statutes set forth in the Freedom of Information Act.

"We do not make phone calls for extensions," said Norwood Planning Commission member and deputy clerk and administrative assistant to the clerk Marilyn Maynard. "There's a lot of misinformation given out regarding this whole issue and the application and I think it's just to add another claim against the township."

She added, "They hammered it in that night (the SUP hearing of Feb. 27) that we withheld documents and that we asked for an extension. We can legally ask for extensions."

The records indicate that the notice for an extension on the FOIA request in question was made via e-mail at 2:52 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 21, the last of the five days the clerk had to turn the records over to Shea-Light without an extension.

As far as the extension request being sent five minutes before the deadline as Gnodtke claimed, Cyr said she does not keep regular business hours and considers the end of the day 10 p.m. and therefore the extension request was made at least seven hours before the deadline.

"I've never done a time," Cyr added.

"The point was that we weren't provided that information," Gnodtke said. "Yeah, they sent us back an e-mail saying they wanted an extension, but we needed that information prior to the hearing. If we don't have it, how can we respond to (Wynkoop's proposal)? It makes it kind of hard to prepare yourself."

Maynard said the township can only provide documents it has in its possession.

"At the time of her (Shea-Light's) FOIA, we didn't have those documents," she said.

The FOIA request was fulfilled on Feb. 29.

"Nothing was withheld," Cyr said. "A 10-day extension was filed. I don't want anyone thinking I withheld documents."

Shea-Light did not return calls by press time.

In a Feb. 28 letter from Planning Commission Chairman Duane Lawton to the concerned parties in the Wynkoop mine issue, Lawton directed both sides to be more cooperative with each other.

"Observation was made last night of each party not receiving copies of all the submissions of the other," Lawton stated. "The most straight forward way to avoid this would be if submissions made to the Planning Commission were provided directly to the other party."

He further stated, "This will be a more effective communication method than waiting on FOIA responses. Realistically, I expect the FOIAs to continue, and it would be very helpful to the township if material that has been received directly be listed in future FOIAs and noted as 'not required.'" livelihood on the island: Farming and fishing.

"This dates back to when there were only two ways to make a living here, farm or fish. That's how the teams started," West said.

The two sides face off each year on Main Street, where the festival activities are held, and have their battle in front of a cheering crowd.

The fish toss is another popular event, which involves taking a large lake trout, 10 to 12 pounds in size, freezing it, and challenging participants to throw the fish as far as possible. West said any technique is accepted, and there are many; the shot put technique, the two-handed approach, the "hold on to the tail and flail it as far as you can" approach, and whatever else participants can come up with. West said anyone interested in participating is welcome.

The shopping cart race, also open to anyone interested, puts one person in a cart and challenges another person to push the cart along the race course on Main Street.

Island life is "pretty laid back and spontaneous," West said, so while the games are scheduled to begin "around 1 p.m." the festivities generally get started "whenever we get around to it." West recalled one year when a snow storm moved in quickly just as the games were about to begin, so everything was moved indoors.

"Instead of tossing a lake trout for the fish toss, we used goldfish," he said. "We all still had a great time."

Live entertainment, from local bands and visiting bagpiper Jack Fellows, leader of the Grand Traverse Pipe and Drum Band, will play at both the Shamrock Pub and Donegal Danny's Pub, both downtown, throughout the weekend. West invited anyone and everyone interested in taking a "beautiful flight across the frozen lake" over to the island to come.

"March is the perfect time to get out and do something to get you out of that winter rut. This is the perfect way to do it," he said.

Both local airlines, Fresh Air Aviation and Island Airways, offer flights to and from the island.

She added, "We need people in the legislature who are willing to put aside partisan politics and create solutions, and that's what I want to do."

Saltonstall feels providing universal health care will also aid the economy by reducing the burden on business owners, and she also wants to work toward protecting Michigan's land and water to maintain a healthy environment for residents and tourists.

"I think Kevin is a nice person. He's smart, he's a good attorney, but I think I can offer a greater involvement in our northern Michigan issues than we've seen," she added.

The laws of blasphemy: A quick Gohs guide

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

I'd planned to write about the impending switch to Digital TV, but then it hit me: I'm not running an information hotline. This is The Crying Towel, not the Kind-hearted Helpful Towel.

I was all set to expound on the mating rituals of the Himalayan yak when I get this e-mail from those devil worshipers over at the American Humanist Association saying they want to follow England's cue and repeal blasphemy laws.

It seems England had a hard time wagging the finger of shame at Sudan for arresting a teacher who broke blasphemy laws by allowing her students to name their mascot "Mohammed", the equivalent of your kid's teacher naming the class guinea pig "Jesus Christ", while the limeys simultaneously had similar laws.

American talking heads, including my favorite charlatan Bill O'Reilly, got in on the act, decrying those evil Muslim extremists for their inhumane ways. The irony of which being that there are still states, including Massachusetts, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Wyoming, which have said laws on their hooks.

According to Michigan penal code, "Any person who shall willfully blaspheme the holy name of God, by cursing or contumeliously [sic] reproaching God, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor," and "Any person who has arrived at the age of discretion, who shall profanely curse or damn or swear by the name of God, Jesus Christ or the Holy Ghost, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

As far as I could tell, my fellow media professional could get away with naming his microphones after the Muslim prophet and I was still OK to curse Shiva, Zeus and Scrappy Doo, but "Holy $#!!% God," I screamed for no good reason, "As often as I curse deities, they'll never let me out of jail."

Wondering what other strange laws there might be for the breaking, I began intense research, by which I mean listening to Supertramp albums and dropping pizza crumbs in the keyboard.

Though more unconventional than strange, it was with glee I read of the Australian teacher found not-guilty of abuse after jet slapping an unruly 8-year-old student. It seems "correction, discipline, management or control" is OK down under, which may explain why they have far fewer school shootings than do we.

Then I found a website which specializes in weird rules, but our legal department says watching episodes of Matlock does not make me a lawyer, no matter how many times I use the words "juris" or "habeas," so you might want to double-check accuracy of the following:

According to www.dumblaws.com, Michiganders may not: Be drunk on a train, seduce an unmarried girl or sell a car on Sunday, which pretty much kills my plans for this weekend.

You may not cut your hair without your husband's permission, and since those 'evil gays' are prohibited from the practice of obtaining ownership over each other via governmental certificate ceremony, this one is for the dames only.

Michiganian farmers may not sleep with their pigs, sheep, goats, cows or chickens; Though it is perfectly legal to get freaky with animals in Washington State so long as you do not harm them in the process—puts a whole new spin on the term "puppy love."

Look for the Evergreen State's new slogans: "A chicken in every pot, a dress on every goat" and "Single farmers, worried livestock."

Speaking of animal cruelty, Act 339 of 1919 states, "An animal control officer or other person killing a dog or other animal ... shall not use a high altitude decompression chamber ... for that killing."

And, since what happens in the barn stays in the barn, we'll never know if 339 was passed to prevent bachelor farmers from hiding the evidence of their forbidden love.

And, while it's probably too late to save my job after lampooning beastiality and child abuse, you can learn everything you never wanted to know about digital TV by visiting: www.dtv.gov.

Evenday: A new seasonal holiday for all

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Evenday for Ear to the Ground by Roger M. Knutson

Each year at this time I attempt to encourage the development of a new and significant international holiday. As part of that continuing attempt I re-offer the column from two years ago.

Two years ago at this season I proposed a new worldwide holiday on the occasion of the Spring Equinox. It was meant to celebrate the idea that on that day everyone, all over the earth from the equator to the poles has the same number of hours of light and darkness. With the sun on that date positioned precisely over the equator, we are all equal in its light. I suggested, at that time that we could surely use a holiday that unites all citizens of the earth. And nothing is so ultimately important to us as the sun, which provides essentially all the energy that fuels life and growth on our globe. Even fossil fuels like petroleum and coal are products of that sun which lighted the earth millions of years before humans arrived on the scene.

It is safe to say that the idea has not yet caught on. I can only assume that it has not had sufficient advertising. I suggested two years ago that we call it Equal Day. Maybe it needs a somewhat catchier name. Evenday carries the same idea in a more complex way. Since the exact time of the sun's location over the equator is sometimes on March 20 (as it is this year) and sometimes on March 21, we might need to make annual adjustments of the holiday. I will firmly resist placing it on the nearest Friday or Monday in order to establish a long weekend. Some things, like the placement of the sun, are too important to be moved for our holiday convenience.

In our northern hemisphere of the earth, Evenday will mark our emergence from winter into spring, a most welcome change. On the southern half of the earth the March Evenday will precede their descent into winter from autumn, but there must be reasons to celebrate that transition as well. The larger problem may be finding a way to appropriately celebrate this international day.

The participation of schools will be vital. Only when every primary school class takes note of Evenday will it begin to find a place in the broader culture. A celebration of equality in every grade of every school would not be out of place. There could be equal signs everywhere and 12-12 might become as well known as 24-7. I stand ready to help our local schools in any way they might desire.

Maybe our stores could hold Evenday sales, and temporarily price everything at the same level. If we can only get Wal Mart to agree, the holiday could almost instantly become a part of worldwide culture. Restaurants could for one day sell all meals for one price. Fast food emporiums could do the same.

A single holiday that includes every political, religious, ethnic and economic group on earth might cause us all to think differently about equality. And who could object to a holiday based on the location of the sun?

When the equinox arrives on March 20 this year, give some thought to how you could celebrate it. What can you do on that day that will enhance the idea of equality for all? Even if the day happens to be cloudy, look up occasionally. We know the sun is up there somewhere even when we don't see much of it. Take note of the times of sunset and sunrise on March 20. And tie the idea of life giving sunlight to the idea of our worldwide equality in the light of that sun. Celebrate Evenday.

LETTERS to the editor

COUNTY NEEDS A CHANGE

Editor:

It's unanimous! Everyone on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is irresponsible! The first sentence is from Tuesday's News-Review. The second is mine.

For the second time in only a few months, since being chosen by the voters to represent them, this board has repealed a very important law just enacted by the old board. The former board had become progressive in their last year. The new board seems determined to destroy all the good that was done.

First it was the Purchase of Development Rights (PDR) ordinance, and now it's the working-place smoking ban. Does anyone believe that these laws were not supported by the majority of voters in our county? If you believe that both laws had been supported by majority opinion, then we do not have democracy in this county. We have irresponsible and poorly considered rule by a few biased people.

I was at the meeting where these uninformed commissioners voted down the PDR ordinance, but, in reading the recent article in the paper, the discussion did not appear to be much different at the smoking ban vote. Their reasons were almost the same in their complete ignorance of the subject. In both cases their stated reasons were personal, ultra conservative and did not even begin to address the pros and cons of the pertinent law. They prefer to use worn out slogans and rhetoric rather than sound judgment as a basis for decision making. As a result, they persist in making bad decisions.

There were a lot of complaints about the old commission, but they gave us two good laws. I felt that some commissioners were very good and that I was well represented in my area (Hayes Township). I also feel that one former commissioner who retained her seat has done a lot of good for our community in the past, but she may be in the wrong crowd now. Most voters wanted a change, but did they want commissioners who display no regard for preserving farmland and open space or for the health of non-smokers? As voters we were trying to improve our political situation in the last election, but we clearly took a giant step backward... about 50 years!

Since the entire commission has shown themselves to be out of touch and disinterested in the opinion of the majority of their constituents, I suggest that they all simply resign immediately. Otherwise we will continue to be a county without leadership until we can correct this abysmal situation in the next election.

This time, change will certainly be an improvement.

INTOLERANCE IN CHARLEVOIX

Editor:

This letter is in response to an article in the Courier. The article is titled "Youth arrested for online threat." I appreciate the quick reaction of the school and the police departments.

I know my next statements may draw a mixed bag of opinions, but nonetheless it needs to be said.

The youth arrested is my nephew. There is never an excuse for violence of any kind, but in this, and many other cases, there are some circumstances that we believe contributed to the alleged threat.

He attended CMS for a few weeks in the fall. It became apparent that he was being bullied and picked on, so he went to EJMS. He was threatened with violence by some kids at the school (CMS), he was kicked in the privates also. In fact the threats continued even after he moved to East Jordan Middle School, via myspace.com. There were, as I hope the investigation into the computer will prove, certain youth individuals who felt it was necessary to continue to threaten and bully over the Internet. So much so that my nephew was afraid to even go to the movies in Charlevoix.

I have never felt violence is an answer, but if you look at the whole situation maybe we could understand what kids go through who are repeatedly picked on.

Yes folks, it happens right here in little old Charlevoix. Intolerance. We need to educate our young people to explore non-violent solutions. Mr. Haske has done a great job of addressing the bullying issue at CMS. I hope people will talk to their children about bullying.

CHECK PROPERTY TAXES

Editor:

This week is an opportunity for each property owner to file objections about the assessment of your property. If you did not receive approximately a 20 percent decrease in your assessment, you should be asking your Board of Review why that is not reflected. You should also request your state officials, the County Board of Commissioners, to demand that their employees at the Equalization Department serve your interest, not tax crazed bureaucrats.

Samuel Adams wrote in the Boston Gazette, Jan. 9, 1769, in criticizing an apologist for the crown responded to the contention: "Formerly the right of taxation was in the King only..." with a bold and provocative statement: "We know that kings, even English kings, have lost their crowns and their heads for assuming such a right."

Do not expect to have your assessment reduced since the Board of Review has as its primary unstated function to spread the tax as mandated by the County Equalization Department on the citizens of their Township. This is not right, but it is a fact that not change until enough citizens say it must change? Citizens saying "no more" led to the passing Proposition A. That was a fine short term fix, but will not help your children when you pass them your property. Most children will not be able to afford the stepped up basis leaving only rich and affluent owning property in Michigan.

The assessment process is broken. Each citizen must demand that your equalization department will follow the "guidelines" of the State Tax Commission but do what is right and just for their constituents, the tax payers, and include foreclosures and bank sales in their sales studies.

Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra to perform

The next concert pair of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 29 in the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Center and will be repeated at 4 p.m. Sunday, March 30 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey.

"We are calling this concert pair The Oxford Connection," stated Dale Hull, executive director of the local chamber orchestra. "And for very good reason. Our guest conductor is Paul Hilliam, conductor of the Heart of England Orchestra. In these concerts he will be conducting our own heart of northern Michigan chamber orchestra in Franz Joseph Haydn's, the Oxford Symphony."

Paul Hilliam was born in Canterbury and educated in Bournemouth. Following years of study in London, he worked extensively as an oboist before turning to conducting. Now Maestro Hilliam lives in Leicestershire, England where he serves as the Heart of England Orchestra's Musical Director, and Conductor. Though engagements now take Paul to Britain's most prestigious venues like Barbican Hall in London, Symphony Hall in Birmingham, St. David's Hall in Cardiff and to the famous Buxton Opera House, he has found time to come to northern Michigan to work with our Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra on three works that are especially important to him: the Oxford Symphony by Haydn, Songs of Travel by Ralph Vaughn Williams, and Saint Paul's Suite by Gustav Holst.

Baritone Peter Sims will perform the Vaughn Williams piece, under the direction of Maestro Hilliam and accompanied by thirty-five members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra. Sims is enjoying his fifth year as a year-round resident of northern Michigan. A fourth-generation Bay View summer resident, he was active in the Bay View Music Festival for many years as a student of voice, piano and organ. Sims graduated from the Jordan College of Fine Arts at Butler University in Indianapolis with a Masters Degree in Vocal Performance. Sims performed with the GLCO last December in its performances of Messiah. He is currently Director of Music for the first Presbyterian Church of Harbor Springs and serves as the Chorus Master of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra Chorus.

Filling out the repertoire for the Oxford Connection concerts is the Saint Paul's Suite by English composer, Gustav Holst. Holst met Ralph Vaughn Williams while both attended the Royal College, and they became lifelong friends. In 1905 Holst accepted the post of Director of Music at the St. Paul's Girls' School in Hammersmith, a borough of west London. Although he later served as a visiting professor at Harvard as well as the University of Michigan, he never relinquished his position with the St. Paul's Girls' School.

Tickets for The Oxford Connection are available at the door or in advance at the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey, at Kurtz Music Pianos in Traverse City, at the Jordan River Arts Council in East Jordan, or at Chambers of Commerce in Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Boyne City, and East Jordan. Ticket prices are $15 for adults and $8 for students of all ages.

Local musician heads to Carnegie Hall

BY EDITH GILBERT
BEHIND THE NEWS

To Carnegie Hall in New York City.

That's where Charlevoix's Andy Tuck is heading with a select group of students from Interlochen Arts Academy for a live taping by PBS. The show is called, "From The Top."

The all-expense paid, three-day trip will take place March 19 to 21. At a later date, yet to be announced, it will be broadcast from coast to coast to over 300,00 households on PBS stations. The half-hour program includes performances, off-beat humor, skits, and behind-the-scenes look at the music of young musicians from all over the United States. According to the director Christopher O'Riley, "These are amazing kids, full of hope and joy."

How true. Tuck's amazing life has been full of hope and joy from the moment he first attended Kary Johnson's introductory string program five years ago, while in the fifth grade at St. Mary School. This outreach program serves Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties and is sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

With a variety of string instruments to choose from, Andy chose the viola because he said he loved the tone and richness of this instrument. Johnson remembers when placing the instrument in his hands: "I saw his face light up and a determination to make music begin!"

Because he has perfect pitch, she considers him a prodigy. She gave him private lessons for two years until she married and moved away. He continued private instruction with David Holland, viola teacher at Interlochen Arts Academy, who says he absorbs information "like a sponge."

By now Tuck didn't want to just play the viola - he also wanted to learn music theory and composition. In order to do this he was told he needed to learn to play the piano. His parents found an old Baldwin upright and thanks to a group of generous men - they call themselves "the Lunch Bunch"-- Tuck got his piano. Through more social networking, Dr. Maria Kranz, who teaches twice a month at Chicago's American Conservatory of Music, heard about Andy and said, "No one can teach him but me." After only a year he was playing Chopin and the Moonlight Sonata—with feeling.

One day he was invited to play for the late Sally Scholl, who was so enchanted with his music, she made arrangements through Crooked Tree Arts Center to have her grand piano delivered to his home and to let him use it for as long as he liked.

At this point in time, Tuck was also a member of the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra, and playing with the Jordan Valley Fiddlers Jamboree, for the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, for weddings, and other local and charitable functions.

In addition to viola, Tuck also learned to play the trumpet and band under the supervision of Gary Stutsman at Northwest Academy.

When Tuck was 13 he was invited to play with the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra. He was the youngest player among this group of highly skilled professionals. Although he felt accepted by them, he was unhappy playing on his beginner's viola because he knew this instrument wasn't capable of producing the caliber of music he was able to make. Consequently, he entered a national contest sponsored by the American String Teachers' Association and much to his surprise won a high quality, Porter's instrument.

Andy Tuck

When Tuck graduated from grade school in 2005, at age 14, he was invited to accept a partial scholarship to Interlochen Center for the Arts. (In case you wonder, a full scholarship these days is $32,000 a year.) He was now ready to skip the 9th grade and enter the 10th grade.

In order to help raise an additional $10,000, the Charlevoix community sprang into action. Members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra planned a successful Scholarship Concert at Castle Farms. Tuck's parents, Debi and Tom Tuck, are both nurses at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and have three children. Tuck being the youngest. Fortunately they were able to set up a scholarship fund at the Charlevoix State Bank called the Andrew Tuck Scholarship fund. (10# 26-0277213)

When Andy graduates from Interlochen Arts Academy this year, the plan is for him to spend another year of post-graduate studies at Interlochen, because his parents feel that at age 16, he is too young to go to college. In the interim, Tuck is practicing excerpts from "Appalachian Strings" to be performed at Carnegie Hall.

Charlevoix loses familiar face, beloved artist

Well-known northern Michigan artist Norman Howard Brumm died Feb. 29, leaving behind a legacy of art and appreciation for nature.

Brumm, born to Howard and Lela (Palmer) Brumm Sept. 30, 1938, developed an interest in art early in life. His first studio was in Norwood Township on Lake Michigan, opened following his graduation from Holland High School and Michigan State University, where he earned a Master's of Art degree. Brumm also taught art at Fremont Public Schools.

Although formally trained on oil painting, Brumm produced exceptional water colors and pen and ink drawings.

Brumm

In 1966, he met and married Judith Wedemeier and moved into the field of enamel on metal with the same enthusiasm he had brought to his paintings. The opportunity to depict in sculpture the things in nature he loved drew him deeper into the process of enameling, and soon his art work became sought after, and he decided to include other artisans in the making of his exquisite creations.

Honors began to come his way, a few highlights of Brumm's career include:

His wall hanging of Apple Blossoms was presented to President Gerald R. Ford in the White House

His sculpture of Pine was given to the Empress of Japan

Beatrice, Queen of the Netherlands, requested an art piece

And when the Governors' Conference was held in Michigan, Michigan's governor ordered Kirkland Warbler and Pine sculptures to be given to each of the visiting governors.

For 28 years Sparrow Hospital in Lansing has given Sparrow sculptures created by Brumm as awards to their volunteers.

Those who worked with him and loved him remember with such fondness his artistic quirks, as well as the pure delight that he had while explaining some marvel of nature that he observed.

Through art fairs and his own studios in Charlevoix and Plainwell, his glass enamel sculptures, paintings and agate sun catchers were collected by many. He was a contributing artists at many art fairs including Charlevoix, Ann Arbor, Kalamazoo and many out-of-state shows.

Brumm is survived by his son, Joel, and daughter-in-law Sarah Brumm, and their five children (Reed, Forest, Cedar, Hawthorn and Sage) of Box Elder, South Dakota, sisters Joan Way of Charlevoix, and Nita Clarkson of Ludington. He was preceded in death by his son Andrew Palmer Brumm in 2005.

The family is planning a memorial in the spring.

Local blood drive

An American Red Cross Blood Drive will be held 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Thursday, April 17 at Charlevoix High School band room, sponsored by student council. Donors are needed. Please call (231) 547-3222, extension 2008 for appointment. Leave a message if needed.

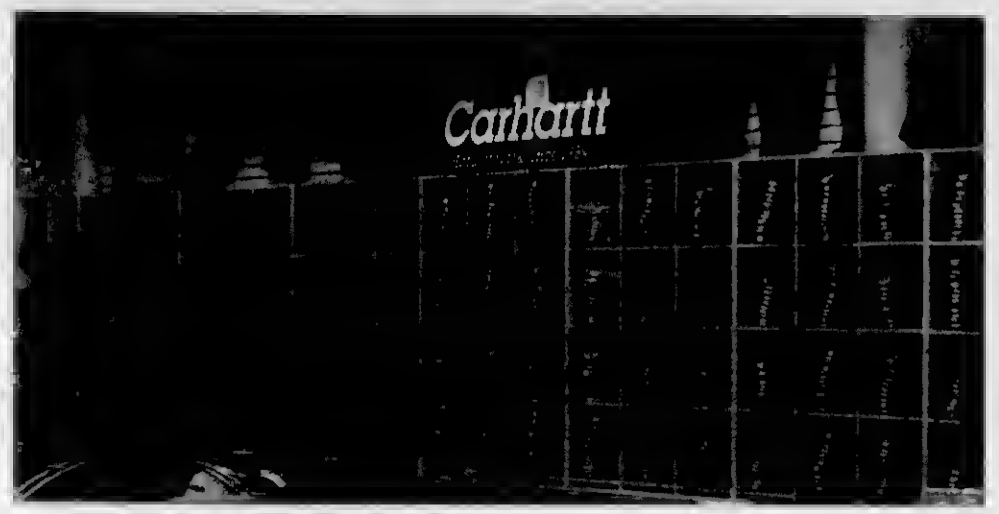
Bosman's Mercantile to expand with new store



BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

After just one year in business, Bosman's Mercantile of Charlevoix has enjoyed so much success that owner Chris Helstrum said he is ready to expand and will open a new store in Gaylord in April.

"We plan to open one store a year after this. We've done really well and been really welcomed here (in Charlevoix)," he said.

Assistant manager Jake McCollun will take over as manager of the Charlevoix store, Helstrum said.

Bosman's is the one-stop-shop for nearly anything you could need except food, Helstrum said, whether it's dog food, horse racing equipment, a welder, a wood stove or clothing, and anything in between. The store is large enough to compete with big box store prices, Helstrum said, but offers that "familiar face and personal attention" customers enjoy at smaller stores.

"We offer a really high level of customer attention. We open doors for people, carry large items out to your car, and great you with a familiar face," he said. "That is exactly what Charlevoix shoppers can expect to continue."

Supporting the community is important to the business, Helstrum said, and that will also continue.

Helstrum and his family, wife Melanie and their children, moved to northern Michigan from Montana, where they owned 14 Bosman's stores. Helstrum said he wants to build a similar chain here in northern Michigan.

Weather watchers wanted at SKYWARN training

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

SKYWARN is coming to Charlevoix.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer severe weather spotter for the National Weather Service in Gaylord should plan to attend the free training session at 6 p.m. on March 17 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

"We tell people there are certain cloud formations that, if they are aware of them and trained, can tell them certain things about storms," said Gaylord branch of the National Weather Service meteorologist Jim Keysor. "We also talk about lightning, hail and flooding as well. We show videos and we talk with diagrams during the training so people see how it all fits together."

With nearly 30 years of SKYWARN training and 25 classes in Michigan each year, SKYWARN has more than 300,000 spotters across the United States.

"We like to emphasize to people the importance of spotters to fill in the gaps of what we do not see on radar," Keysor said. "They provide ground truth to what we see with our technology. So basically they are our eyes and ears in the field. A blending of those two provides us with the best warning."

He added, "This is a program for anyone that has enthusiasm for weather and is wanting to observe it and report it."

Keysor said there is no age minimum or limit.

"We have had people bring their kids. If they can sit for a couple hours and are interested in weather, they are invited to attend," he said. "The biggest thing you have to do is have your name and information available in our database so the weather guys can call them when they need things observed locally."

While Michigan does not compare to Tornado Alley in the Midwest, he said the Great Lakes state has its fair share of

Are You Prepared for the Inside Theft?

Korthase Flinn is pleased to offer a seminar looking into the topic of "Employees Who Steal". This valuable seminar will take place from 8:30 – 11:00am on March 19 at Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey. The thought that each of our businesses is immune from employee theft or embezzlement is a dangerous perspective. Training to certify area fire safety instructors

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Charlevoix City Fire Captain Jesse Silva said it took nearly two years to get a fire instructor training course to the area, but the effort and patience was worth it.

A visit from Gary Crum, Region I and II supervisor from the Department of Economic Labor and Growth Office of Firefighter Training, brought a four-hour training course to Charlevoix last week, which served as the first step necessary to get more certified fire response instructors in the state.

"Right now we're so busy we're doing trainings every weekend from September to April," commended Silva, one of only three certified instructors in Charlevoix County.

Silva said counties within the region generally work together to supply instructors for various training courses necessary for fire response certification, and there are currently only about six in the area. Plans were in place to bring the sought-after training to the area about two years ago, but, due to state budget woes, that and other training sessions were canceled. Silva said the Fire Marshall's office assured him the training would come to northern Michigan as soon as possible, and now, thanks to local fundraising efforts in addition to cooperation from the state, it has.

Crum conducted the training before a group of nearly 45 fire safety professionals eager to earn their instructor certification. Currently in charge of training for a large portion of the state, Crum said he is excited to have such a strong response.

"It is a major task for us to perform these trainings and a major task for them to get certified. I am really happy with the response here," he said.

Silva said Charlevoix County and surrounding areas have been "raising the bar" in recent years in terms of fire training. For one "man off the street" to go through basic fire training and all other necessary courses to become a certified fire fighter, 476 hours — minimum— of training are required. Certified instructors like Silva are the teachers that provide those hours of training, and he said the demand has become too great.

"It is a strain on family life and a lot of stress. We need a break," he said, noting there are also a number of certified instructors in the area close to retirement, which would put further strain on instructors if newcomers do not move up to take their place.

"I am hoping we'll get three or four new instructors at least from this training," he said.

As Crum noted, last week's four-hour introduction is just a stepping stone to the work yet to come. Following this step of training and classes, officers can get a provisional instructor status, allowing them to teach classes in the presence of a full certified instructor. When ready, officers are evaluated by a three-hour lecture and a three-hour practical before given full certification. Silva said the entire process takes about two years.

"This really takes commitment. Not only does it take a lot of time, but these guys are getting paid (during provisional teaching)," he said.

The state requires such training events to "share the wealth" of training over a regional landscape, so Charlevoix was limited to the number of Charlevoix officers that could attend. Silva said officers from East Jordan, Boyne Valley, Alba, Hudson Township and other northern Michigan departments were involved.

Chamber, city update cooperative agreement

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

A revised agreement between the City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce "cleaned up" some agreement language, added a requirement regarding regular reports from the Chamber, and will continue the strong working relationship between the entities, Chamber Director Erin Bemis said.

Bemis, who worked with City Manager Rob Straebel on the document, said the most substantial change from the previous agreement will require her to offer a written report regarding expenditures and Chamber activity by December of each year. She provided a 2007 report to the best of her ability, she said, having gone through records in the Chamber, but noted as the new director she was not employed by the Chamber until Jan. 1, 2008.

Also included in the agreement is the $6,700 yearly payment, an expense offered by the city to the Chamber since 1989 when the contract was last developed. There has not been a payment made for this fiscal year, and because of the outdated agreement, Bemis and Straebel agreed it was time to update it.

"There are some things (such as references to the old building near Chamber Park) that no longer apply, so we've cleaned all of that up," Bemis told City Council members last week.

The draft contract, approved by council, requires the City to pay the Chamber $6,700 for 2007-08 and an additional payment of the same amount in 2009. As stated in the agreement, the funds will be used to "publish and disseminate information to make known the industrial, commercial, educational, recreational, civic, resort and other advantages of the City."

Straebel said the first payment will be made in April 2008 and the second in January 2009. Bemis noted her annual report will help assure Council and the community the funds are being spent appropriately. The agreement has been fully reviewed and approved by city attorney Jim Young. It expires February 2009 but the City can extend the agreement until Feb. 1, 2010.

In other news, A public hearing was held to close out the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) for sewer line work associated with the Michigan Scientific Corporation. Straebel explained the CDBG expires March 31 and because the City has decided not to extend the grant time period, a close out is necessary. The $45,000 grant was obtained to assist the Michigan Scientific Corporation to expand their operations into their new building located at 12625 US 31. The grant was used to extend a sanitary sewer line to the new building.

Local youth to ski in Junior Olympics competition

Gunnar Lundteigen, 12, of Charlevoix, is seen competing in the Midwest Qualifier youth ski competition at Marquette Mountain last month. He has advanced to the Junior Olympic competition in Colorado.

Gunnar Lundteigen may only be 12 years old, but he knows his way around — or down — a ski hill.

The Charlevoix youth recently participated in the Midwest Qualifier youth ski competition, held at Marquette Mountain last month, and his performance earned him a spot in the J-4 Junior Olympics competition to be held in Winter Park, Colo. March 19 through 21. His father, Eric Lundteigen, said his son's success on the ski hill is due to his dedication to the sport as well as his early start.

"We got Gunnar started when he was two years old, going down the little bump from the septic tank in the backyard," the elder Lundteigen said.

Now, 10 years later, Eric, a long-time ski racer and instructor, said he had no idea his son's ski enthusiasm would take him this far.

"It is all about having fun and getting the experience. He really enjoys this," Eric said.

The competition at Marquette Mountain put more than 90 young skiers from 13 different states up against each other, and the top performers— scoring based on percentages— qualified to advance to the national competition in Colorado. Skiers there will compete as members of regional teams— Midwest-Rockies, East and West regions, representing the entire country— in a variety of events. Gunnar has qualified to compete in three events: Giant Slalom, Slalom, and Super G.

"You don't get the opportunity to train at speeds like that around here," Eric said of Gunnar's chance to participate in the Super G competition.

Eric said skiing has become a family affair for himself— the former Charlevoix High School ski coach, a position he held for 13 years, and the current middle school ski coach as well as a former racer— his two sons, Gunnar and Garret, 9, and wife, Michele. A life-long ski enthusiast, Eric got his sons interested in the sport at early ages because it helps boost balance and muscle memory, he said, but their own interest took their participation to the next level.

"Gunnar started racing when he was about seven," Eric said, describing the transition the family's ski sessions have taken. "First we were in the back yard, then we were on the bunny hill at Mt. McSauba, now we're off to Colorado."

Eric said he couldn't say enough in support the local ski hill, Mt. McSauba, where he and his sons participate in the Fun Racing team. The hill is "a major resource for all kids" in the area, he said, and has helped keep his sons involved in the sport.

"I really want to thank Bo Boss at Mt. McSauba. He has been wonderful, and that is just a wonderful place," Eric said.

Gunnar is "extremely excited" about the chance to ski in Colorado, Eric said, adding the emphasis for such competition is on experience and "doing your best."

"This is all about the experience and enjoying the sport. It is so nice to see a kid work so hard for something and get a reward like this," he said.

Two age levels, J-4 and J-3, will participate in the Junior Olympic competition, but the older skiers, J-3 level, are the only ones who can advance to competitions in other countries. Eric said Gunnar's young age will be a benefit for him, because while he will not be able to advance regardless of his performance this year, it will be an excellent training experience that could help him in the future.

"You just want to do your best, that is the key. He'll have time to build up his experience," Eric said. "The goal at this age is to keep the kids having fun and keep them coming out."
